Editor's Note

A number of the Ohio municipalities included herein have incorporated portions of the Ohio State law directly into their municipal ordinances. In these instances, the ordinance language is identical to the corresponding portion of the State law.

To avoid undue repetition of State law language, listings for municipalities falling within this category contain only municipal codification references, followed by either the words "same as" or "adopts," and the corresponding State law citations. The reader can then refer to the appropriate portion of the State law.

In the case of Akron, for example, Section 672.01 of the municipal ordinances would contain the same language as Section 2923.11 of the Ohio State law.

The said certificate to be filed with the law enforcement officer shall carry the right thumb print of the applicant along with the information as to race, height, weight, age, color of eyes, color of hair and sex of the applicant. Provided, however, the sheriff and/or police chief may issue a written approval of such certificate, after investigation, within the fifteen (15) day period.

The fifteen (15) day waiting period shall not apply to transactions between licensed importers, licensed manufacturers, licensed dealers, or licensed collectors who meet the requirements of the first paragraph above and certify prior to the transaction the legal and licensed status of both parties. The burden shall fall upon the transferor to determine the legality of the transaction in progress. The fifteen (15) day waiting period shall not apply to transactions or transfers between a licensed importer, licensed manufacturer, or licensed dealer and a bona fide law enforcement agency or said agency's personnel as defined under Sec. 39-4902. However, all other provisions and requirements of the preceding paragraph above must be observed. The burden of proof of the legality of such transactions or transfers shall rest upon the transferor.

Nothing in this section shall preclude any person eligible to purchase a pistol or sidearm, as set out above, from making an occasional sale of a used or second hand gun legally purchased by him without being licensed to do business as such; but whenever such sale is made, the same procedure must be followed as is provided above for persons licensed by the state of Tennessee to engage in such business.

Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500), or imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed six (6) months, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Provided however, before any person, firm or corporation shall engage in the business of selling, offering for sale, giving away or otherwise disposing of any pistol, revolver or other hand gun, such person, firm or corporation shall obtain from the commissioner of revenue a permit to engage in such business in the state of Tennessee. The fee for the issuance of such a permit shall be ten dollars ($10.00) per year, and said permit when issued shall expire by its own terms on the 31st day of December of each year.

Prior to the issuance of such permit by the commissioner of revenue, the applicant shall furnish the commissioner of revenue a certificate of good moral character signed by the chief of police or the sheriff of the county in which the licensed premises shall be located. In the event the licensed premises are located in the corporate limits of a municipality, said certificate of moral character shall be signed by the chief of police. If the licensed premises are located outside the corporate limits of the municipality, the certificate of moral character shall be signed by the sheriff of the county. The certificate of moral character must state that the applicant or applicants who are to be in actual control of said business are of good moral character and are personally known to the official signing the certificate, and if the applicant be a corporation, that the executive officers of those in control are of good moral character and personally known to the official signing said certificate.

Provided further, the commissioner of revenue is hereby granted authority to revoke any permit issued by him upon good cause, or on account of any violation of this section by person, firm or corporation, to whom a permit has been issued. Said order of revocation shall be issued by the commissioner of revenue and sent by registered mail to the person, firm or corporation whose permit has been revoked, and the order of revocation shall contain the ground or reason upon which said permit was revoked. The action of the commissioner in revoking any permit issued hereunder may be reviewed in accordance with the provisions of Secs. 27-901—27-914.

The commissioner of revenue is hereby authorized to make and issue all rules and regulations necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

The restrictions pertaining to the interstate movement of cattle from quarantined areas as contained in 9 CFR Part 73, as amended, will apply to the area quarantined.

Accordingly, Part 73, Title 9, Code of Federal Regulations, as amended, restricting the interstate movement of cattle because of scabies, is hereby amended as follows:

In § 73.1a, a new paragraph (b) is added to read:

§ 73.1a Notice of quarantine.

* * * * *

(b) Notice is hereby given that cattle in a certain portion of the State of Nebraska are affected with scabies, a contagious, infectious, and communicable disease; and, therefore, the following area in such State is hereby quarantined because of said disease:

That portion of Sarpy County comprised of sec. 1, T.14N., R. 10E., Forest City township.

(Secs. 4–7, 23 Stat. 32, as amended; secs. 1 and 2, 32 Stat. 791–792, as amended; secs. 1–4, 33 Stat. 1264, 1265, as amended; secs. 3 and 11, 76 Stat. 130, 132; 21 U.S.C. 111–113, 115, 117, 120, 121, 123–126, 134b, 134f; 37 FR 28464, 28477; 38 FR 19141.)

The amendment imposes certain further restrictions necessary to prevent the interstate spread of cattle scabies and must be made effective immediately to accomplish its purpose in the public interest. It does not appear that public participation in this rulemaking proceeding would make additional relevant information available to the Department.

Accordingly, under the administrative procedure provisions in 5 U.S.C. 553, it is found upon good cause that notice and other public procedure with respect to the amendment are impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and good cause is found for making it effective less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Done at Washington, D.C., this 16th day of June 1977.

NOTE.—The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service has determined that this document does not contain a major proposal requiring preparation of an Inflation Impact Statement under Executive Order 11821 and OMB Circular A–107.

PART 78—BRUCELLOSIS

Subpart D—Designation of Brucellosis Areas, Specifically Approved Stockyards, and Slaughtering Establishments

Brucellosis Areas

AGENCY: Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, USDA.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service is amending its Brucellosis Regulations. These amendments update the Brucellosis regulations by providing the current status of various counties and States which have been designated Certified Brucellosis-Free Areas, Modified Certified Brucellosis Areas, or Noncertified Areas for purposes of interstate movement of cattle and bison from such areas. This action is required because of the change in the Brucellosis status of the areas affected.

EFFECTIVE DATE: June 24, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Dr. A. D. Robb, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Veterinary Services, Hyattsville, Maryland, Room 805, 301–436–8713.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The amendments delete the following areas from the list of Noncertified Areas in § 78.22 and add such areas to the list designated as Certified Brucellosis-Free Areas in § 78.20 because it has been determined that they again come within the definition of a Certified Brucellosis-Free Area in § 78.1(l): Vieques Municipality in Puerto Rico.

The amendments delete the following areas from the list of Certified Brucellosis-Free Areas in § 78.20 and add such areas to the list designated as Modified Certified Brucellosis Areas in § 78.21 because it has been determined that they now come within the definition of a Modified Certified Brucellosis Area in § 78.1(m): Jackson, Lafayette, Perry, Polk, and Prairie Counties in Arkansas; Dade, Pasco, and Sumter Counties in Florida; Caribou and Oneida Counties in Idaho; Jackson County in Kentucky; Franklin and Miller Counties in Missouri; Rutherford County in Tennessee; and Camuy Municipality in Puerto Rico.

The amendments delete the following areas from the list of Modified Certified Brucellosis Areas in § 78.21 and add such areas to the list designated as Certified Brucellosis-Free Areas in § 78.20 because it has been determined that they now come within the definition of a Certified Brucellosis-Free Area in § 78.1(l): Citrus County in Florida; Jasper County in Iowa, and Cheyenne, Grant, and Norton Counties in Kansas.

Accordingly, §§ 78.20, 78.21, and 78.22 of Part 78, Title 9, Code of Federal Regulations, designating Certified Brucellosis-Free Areas, Modified Certified Brucellosis Areas, and Noncertified Areas, respectively, are amended to read as follows:

The amendments impose certain restrictions necessary to prevent the spread of brucellosis in cattle and relieve certain restrictions presently imposed. They should be made effective promptly in order to accomplish their purpose in the public interest and to be of maximum benefit to persons subject to the restrictions which are relieved. It does not appear that public participation in this rulemaking proceeding would make additional relevant information available to the Department.

Accordingly, under the administrative procedure provisions of 5 U.S.C. 553, it is found upon good cause that notice and other public procedure with respect to the amendments are impracticable, unnecessary, and contrary to the public interest, and good cause is found for making them effective less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Done at Washington, D.C., this 16th day of June 1977.

NOTE.—The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service has determined that this document does not contain a major proposal requiring preparation of an Inflation Impact Statement under Executive Order 11821 and OMB Circular A–107.

Title 12—Banks and Banking

CHAPTER VI—FARM CREDIT ADMINISTRATION

MISCELLANEOUS CHANGES TO CHAPTER

AGENCY: Farm Credit Administration.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: The Farm Credit Administration, by its Federal Farm Credit Board, took final action to amend its regulations relating to the terms of office of directors of Farm Credit associations, funding programs of Farm Credit banks, and financially related service programs of Farm Credit associations. Based upon suggestions received by the Farm Credit Administration, the amendments to the terms of office provisions are being made to simplify Farm Credit association director election procedures used when Farm Credit associations merge. The Farm Credit Administration has found a need for the amendments to the regulations on funding programs of Farm Credit banks to make the regulations more comprehensive. The amendment to the regulations on financially related service programs of Farm Credit associations is intended to correct a technical problem in the regulation.

EFFECTIVE DATE: June 6, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Jon F. Greeneisen, Deputy Governor, Office of Administration, Farm Credit Administration, 490 L'Enfant Plaza SW., Washington, D.C. 20578 (202–755–2181).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Farm Credit Administration, by its Federal Farm Credit Board, took final action on amendments to its regulations which (1) in the case of a merger of two or more Federal land bank associations or production credit associations, provide a basis for allowing directors of a merging association to serve as directors of the continuing association until the expiration of their terms, (2) set forth the authority of the Farm Credit banks to issue Farm Credit securities, (3) define the responsibility of each bank's board of directors to authorize, by resolution, a bank to issue obligations up to a determined amount, (4) set forth the responsibilities of each Finance Committee, (5) require each Finance Committee to develop a debt maturity program, (6) require each bank's board of directors to adopt a debt management policy, (7) clarify the conditions under which Consolidated Systemwide Notes are issued, and (8) clarify that a Farm Credit bank board's approval for an association to offer a financially related service program shall be conditioned on the probability of recovery of all direct and indirect costs.

By notice published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on April 15, 1977, interested persons were afforded the opportunity to file written comments or suggestions on these proposed regulations. Of the thirty-seven responses received, thirty-two were either in agreement with or had no objection to the proposed regulations. Five responses suggested changes in the proposals. As a result of one comment, a change was made in § 615.5103 to clarify that the debt maturity programs of each bank shall assure that funding programs are fiscally sound in the view of the capital markets. The other suggestions received had been presented previously to the Federal Farm Credit Board and were reconsidered in arriving at the final regulations. As changed the proposed regulations were adopted by the Federal Farm Credit Board.

Chapter VI of Title 12 of the Code of Federal Regulations is amended by revising § 611.1120(a)(1); renumbering §§ 615.5100, 615.5101, 615.5102, 615.5103, and 615.5104 to be §§ 615.5101, 615.5106, 615.5107, 615.5108, 615.5109 respectively; adding § 615.5100; revising § 615.5101; adding §§ 615.5102, 615.5103, 615.5104, and 615.5105; and revising § 618.8010 (d) and (d)(3). These amendments and additions are as follows:

CHAPTER II—CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD

SUBCHAPTER A—ECONOMIC REGULATIONS

[Regulation ER–1002, Amdt. 38; Docket 30385]

PART 221—CONSTRUCTION, PUBLICATION, FILING AND POSTING OF TARIFFS OF AIR CARRIERS AND FOREIGN AIR CARRIERS

Amendment Concerning Filing of Tariff Justifications

AGENCY: Civil Aeronautics Board.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: This amendment exempts air freight forwarders and international air freight forwarders from the requirement that they file certain kinds of detailed economic data along with proposed changes in their tariff rates. This action was requested by the Air Freight Forwarders of America.

DATES: Effective July 25, 1977, adopted June 21, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Lawrence Myers, Rates and Agreements Division, Civil Aeronautics Board, 1825 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20428 (202–673–5791).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: By notice of proposed rulemaking EDR–322, dated April 7, 1977 (42 FR 19355), the Board gave notice that it had under consideration a proposal to amend Part 221 of its Economic Regulations (14 CFR Part 221) so as to eliminate the requirement that air freight forwarders and international air freight forwarders with annual revenues from forwarding operations of $5,000,000 or more must file certain kinds of detailed economic data along with proposed tariff rate changes, including estimates of the cost of service, estimates of the aggregate effect of the proposed rate changes on traffic, schedules, and revenues, and a comparison table of existing and proposed rates.

Comments in support of the proposed rule have been received from the Air Freight Forwarders Association of America and three individual air freight forwarders.[1] These comments urge adoption of the proposal for the reasons set forth in EDR–322. A comment opposing the proposal in part has been filed by a direct air carrier, The Flying Tiger Line Inc., (FTL). Upon consideration of all the comments we have determined to make the proposed rule final.

Flying Tiger opposes the finalization of EDR–322 "to the extent these amendments would eliminate the requirement that air freight forwarders engaged in significant chartering activities file detailed justifications for proposed tariff rate changes." In support of its position, FTL contends that in primary markets the overnight service provided by such charters is directly competitive with scheduled freighter service, and thus a reduction in tariff justification requirements for chartering forwarders would place direct carriers at a discriminatory competitive disadvantage. In secondary markets, FTL adds, chartering gives certain forwarders a service advantage over other forwarders, thus lessening price competition and undercutting the Board's rationale for reducing the justification requirements for forwarders.

FTL's position essentially misconstrues the effect of the proposed amendment. The exemption of large forwarders from furnishing the data required by paragraphs (b) and (c) with each tariff filing merely means that a forwarder tariff proposal cannot be rejected on the basis of inadequate justification; it does not mean that the Board cannot suspend and investigate any such proposal which raises a question of lawfulness, i.e. reasonableness, unjust discrimination, or undue preference or prejudice, under the Act.[2] All tariff proposals continue to be subject to the same substantive standards of review, and when any carrier files rates without an adequate accompanying justification, it does so at its own peril. In close cases a full justification might indicate that the proposed rates are warranted, while a lack of adequate data might lead to a Board suspension. FTL has not shown that the proposed difference in treatment of forwarder justification requirements results in any significant competitive disadvantage to the direct carriers subject to the provisions of § 221.165.

FTL's second contention, that forwarder charters in secondary markets reduce competition among forwarders and create the need for a full regulatory scrutiny of their rates, touches upon questions of fact which are at issue in the Air Freight Forwarders' Charters Investigation, Docket 23287, now pending final decision by the Board. In this proceeding however, FTL is long on allegations and sort on facts. It has produced no evidence that forwarder rates in secondary markets are out of line with those in other markets, or that charter-based rates vary from other forwarder rates within the same markets. Indeed, the absence of complaints against charter-based forwarder rates in recent years strongly suggests that FTL's argument is contrary to fact. It is sufficient to note here, however, that its position is unsupported.

Accordingly, the Civil Aeronautics Board hereby amends Part 221 of its Economic Regulations (14 CFR Part 221) as set forth below:

Section 221.165 is amended to read as follows:

§ 221.165 Explanation and data supporting tariff changes and new matter in tariff publications.

When a tariff publication is filed with the Board which contains new or changed local or joint rates, fares, or charges for air transportation, or new or changed classifications, rules, regulations, or practices affecting such rates, fares, or charges, or the value of the service thereunder, the issuing air carrier, foreign air carrier, or agent shall submit with the filing of such publication, in or attached to the transmittal letter:

SUBCHAPTER E—ORGANIZATION REGULATIONS

[Regulation OR-116, Amdt. 8]

PART 384—STATEMENT OF ORGANIZATION, DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY, AND AVAILABILITY OF RECORDS AND INFORMATION

Organizational Changes

AGENCY: Civil Aeronautics Board.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: The rule sets forth the present location, as well as the business hours, of all Board field offices. It updates this information for the benefit of the general public.

DATES: Effective June 20, 1977, Adopted June 20, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Simon J. Eilenberg, Office of the General Counsel, Civil Aeronautics Board, 1825 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20428 (202-673-5442).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: This amendment corrects and updates the description in § 384.4 of the location of all the Board's field offices. Also, since some field offices have business hours different than those of the central office, the rule now states those hours for each office.

Since this amendment is concerned with internal management and practices, and imposes no significant burden on any member of the public, the Board finds that notice and public procedure are unnecessary and that the rule may be effective immediately.

Accordingly, 14 CFR Part 384 is amended as follows:

Amend § 384.4 to read as follows:

§ 384.4 Offices.

The central offices of the Civil Aeronautics Board are located in the Universal Building, 1825 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D.C., and in the Universal Building North, 1875 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. Its mailing address is Civil Aeronautics Board, Washington, D.C. 20428. The hours of business for the central offices are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Board maintains field offices in Anchorage, Alaska (8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.); Des Plaines, Illinois (7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.); Fort Worth, Texas (8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.); Los Angeles, California (7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.); Miami, Florida (8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.); New York City, New York (8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.); San Mateo, California (8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.); and Seattle, Washington (8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.). All hours of business are local time, Monday through Friday, excluding legal holidays, unless otherwise provided by statute or Executive Order.

(Section 204(a) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended, 72 Stat. 743, 49 U.S.C. 1324.)

CHAPTER I—FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION, DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE

[Docket No. 77C-0198]

PART 73—LISTING OF COLOR ADDITIVES EXEMPT FROM CERTIFICATION

PART 81—GENERAL SPECIFICATIONS AND GENERAL RESTRICTIONS FOR PROVISIONAL COLOR ADDITIVES FOR USE IN FOODS, DRUGS, AND COSMETICS

Carmine

AGENCY: Food and Drug Administration.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: The Food and Drug Administration is "permanently" listing carmine for use in cosmetics generally, including those intended for use in the area of the eye. H. Kohnstamm & Co., Inc., filed a petition for such use. The color additive regulations are amended to reflect the listing.

DATES: Effective July 26, 1977; objections by July 25, 1977.

ADDRESS: Written objections to the Hearing Clerk (HFC-20), Food and Drug Administration, Rm. 4-65, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Gerad L. McCowin, Bureau of Foods (HFF-334), Food and Drug Administration, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 200 C St. SW., Washington, DC 20204, 202-472-5740.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: A notice published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of August 17, 1965 (30 FR 10211) stated that a petition (CAP 20) for the "permanent" listing of carmine as a color additive for use in foods, drugs, and cosmetics had been filed by H. Kohnstamm & Co., Inc., New York, NY 10013. The petition was filed pursuant to section 706 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 376).

Carmine has been provisionally listed for use in cosmetics under § 81.1(g) (21 CFR 81.1(g), formerly 21 CFR 8.501(g) prior to recodification published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of March 22, 1977 (42 FR 15553)). With permanent listing of carmine under § 73.2087, the listing under § 81.1(g) becomes obsolete.

The Commissioner, having evaluated the data in the petition and other relevant material concludes that carmine is safe under the conditions set forth below for use in coloring cosmetics generally, including those for use in the area of the eye, and that certification is not necessary for the protection of the public health.

Therefore, under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 706 (b), (c), and (d), 74 Stat. 399-403 (21 U.S.C. 376 (b), (c), (d))) and the transitional provisions of the Color Additive Amendments of 1960 (Title II, Pub. L. 86-618, 74 Stat. 404-407 (21 U.S.C. 376 note)) and under authority delegated to the Commissioner (21 CFR 5.1), Parts 73 and 81 are amended as follows:

1. In Part 73, by adding new § 73.2087 to Subpart C, to read as follows:

§ 73.2087 Carmine.

(a) Identity and specifications. The color additive carmine shall conform in identity and specifications to the requirements of § 73.100 (a)(2) and (b)(2).

(b) Use and restrictions. Carmine may be safely used in cosmetics generally, including cosmetics intended for use in the area of the eye, in amounts consistent with good manufacturing practices.

(c) Labeling. The color additive and any mixture prepared therefrom intended solely or in part for coloring purposes shall bear, in addition to any information required by law, labeling in accordance with the provisions of § 70.25 of this chapter.

(d) Exemption from certification. Certification of this color additive is not necessary for the protection of the public health, and therefore batches thereof are exempt from certification pursuant to section 706(c) of the act.

§ 81.1 [Amended]

2. In Part 81, by amending § 81.1 Provisional lists of color additives, by deleting the entry for "Carmine" in paragraph (g).

Any person who will be adversely affected by the foregoing regulation may at any time on or before July 25, 1977 file with the Hearing Clerk (HFC-20), Food and Drug Administration, Rm. 4-65, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857, written objections thereto. Objections shall show wherein the person filing will be adversely affected by the order, specify with particularity the provisions of the regulation deemed objectionable, and state the grounds for the objections. Objections shall be filed in accordance with the requirements of § 71.30 (21 CFR 71.30). If a hearing is requested, the objections shall state the issues for the hearing, shall be supported by grounds factually and legally sufficient to justify the relief sought, and shall include a detailed description and analysis of the factual information intended to be presented in support of the objections in the event that a hearing is held. Five copies of all documents shall be filed and should be identified with the Hearing Clerk docket number found in the brackets in the heading of this regulation. Received objections may be seen in the Hearing Clerk's office between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Effective date: This regulation shall become effective July 26, 1977 except as to any provisions that may be stayed by the filing of proper objections. Notice of the filing of objections or lack thereof will be announced by publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(Sec. 706 (b), (c), and (d), 74 Stat. 399-403 (21 U.S.C. 376 (b), (c), and (d)).)

Dated: July 16, 1977.

Acting Associate Commissioner for Compliance.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Secretary of the Interior, by issuance of Order No. 2997, served notice that there has been established an escrow account entitled "Deposits of Proceeds of Lands Withdrawn for Native Selection, Bureau of Indian Affairs" in the Treasury of the United States for the deposit of proceeds derived from contracts, leases, permits, rights-of-way, or easements pertaining to affected lands, or resources in affected lands withdrawn for Native selection pursuant to the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. All Departments or Agencies of the Federal Government and State of Alaska receiving such proceeds are required to deposit proceeds to the account and advise the Commissioner of the deposit in accordance with this rule.

Notice of proposal and the comment period is found to be unnecessary due to the limited applicability of this regulation and its categorization as interpretation of Section 2 of the Act of January 2, 1976 (89 Stat. 1145).

The new Part 114 shall become effective on June 24, 1977 and shall remain in effect until it is amended, revoked, or superseded. However, in the absence of the foregoing, the provisions of this order shall terminate January 3, 1979.

The authority for the Commissioner to issue these regulations is contained in Section 2 of the Act of January 2, 1976 (89 Stat. 1145), Escrow Account, and (5 U.S.C. 301), and Sections 463 and 465 of the Revised Statutes (25 U.S.C. 2 and 9), and 230 DM 1 and 2.

(2) Agencies not using the SF 1081 procedures will issue a check made payable to the Treasurer of the United States, and forward it to: accompanied by a listing in sufficient detail to permit the collecting agency to identify the collections with each parcel of land at the time distribution of the funds is to be made.

§ 114.3 Proceeds received by the State of Alaska.

The State agency responsible for making collections will deposit the proceeds to the credit of the State of Alaska. 2. Section 4–2.404–2, paragraphs (a) and (b), are revised to read as follows:

§ 4–2.404–2 Rejection of individual bids.

(a) Multiple bids. Multiple bids are two or more bids submitted by one individual on behalf of two or more companies or submitted by two or more affiliated companies. Multiple bids may be accepted, provided, acceptance would not give one bidder an unfair advantage or would otherwise prejudice the interests of the Government. If acceptance of multiple bids would be prejudicial to the Government or to other bidders they must be rejected. Multiple bids are most likely to occur where different divisions of the same company or a parent company and its subsidiary submit bids under the same invitation, each responding to separate copies of the invitation sent to them, and each unaware that their affiliated company or division is also submitting a bid. An individual may also have legitimate reasons for submitting bids on behalf of two or more companies which that individual owns or controls. This could be a situation where partial awards are permitted under the invitation and it is hoped that an award will be made to each of the companies for such amount of work that each company could capably perform.

(b) Alternate bids. An alternate bid is one that contains an offer to perform work or furnish supplies not meeting the minimum requirements of the advertised specifications and must be rejected. A bid is not necessarily an alternate bid merely because a bidder designates it as such. Many times, bidders will submit more than one bid price based on differing qualities of materials, all or some of which may meet the advertised specifications. A low bid meeting the advertised specifications, whether or not it is designated by the bidder as an "alternate" bid, may be accepted.

3. Section 4–2.405 is revised to read as follows:

§ 4–2.405 Minor informalities or irregularities in bids.

(a) Bids not on Government forms. Bids not on Government forms may be accepted provided (1) the language of the bid clearly indicates that it is in response to the advertised invitation for bids, (2) that which is offered is in accordance with the advertised specifications, and (3) no right is reserved by the bidder which would limit his liability to a greater extent than was provided in the invitation for bids. When such a bid is accepted the complete invitation for bids, in blank, shall be attached to the accepted bid and made a part of the contract.

(b) Failure to acknowledge receipt of amendment. The general rule as to the effect of a bidder's failure to acknowledge an amendment to an invitation for bids is that when the amendment affects, in other than a trivial or negligible manner, the price, quantity, or quality of the procurement, the bidder's failure to acknowledge the amendment in compliance with the terms of the invitation or amendment cannot be waived. The basis for this rule is the principle that the acceptance of a bid which disregards a material provision of an invitation would be prejudicial to other bidders. As clarification of a bid after opening is not permitted, a bidder's working papers cannot be used to show that an amendment to an invitation was received and considered and thereby act as a retroactive acknowledgment of the amendment.

(1) Failure to acknowledge receipt of an amendment to an invitation for bids may be waived in circumstances where the effect of the amendment is trivial or negligible in terms of price in relation to the overall scope of the contract and the difference between the two low bid prices. In determining whether the effect of an amendment is trivial or negligible to permit a waiver, the contracting officer shall use the Government's price estimate of the amendment and not a cost value cited by the bidder seeking the waiver. To do so would give the bidder the option to either become eligible for award or avoid award by citing smaller or larger cost values.

(2) Wage determinations. Failure to acknowledge an amendment to an invitation for bids incorporating a wage determination may not be waived as a minor informality since the amendment affects the price of the bid, even though the bidder's wages in the region may be greater than those contained in the wage determination.

(c) Questionable cases as to whether acceptance of a bid as submitted will result in a contract binding on the bidder should be referred to the Office of General Counsel for determination.

§ 4–2.407–1 [Amended]

4. Section 4–2.407–1, paragraph (a), is deleted and reserved.

5. Section 4–2.407–8 is revised to read as follows:

§ 4–2.407–8 Protests against award.

(a) General. (1) The written final decision to the protestor required by § 1–2.407–8(a)(1) of this title shall include a paragraph substantially as follows:

This decision shall be final and conclusive unless a further written notice of protest addressed to the Comptroller General of the United States is mailed or otherwise furnished to the Contracting Officer or the Comptroller General. The protest, which may be in letter form, should refer to this decision and should include a statement of the reasons why the decision is considered to be erroneous.

(2) Where protests addressed to the Comptroller General are received, the contracting officer shall immediately forward the protest and documents required by § 1–2.407–8(a)(2) of this title to the Office of Operations through agency channels. The Office of Operations will transmit the protest to the General Accounting Office.

(b) Protests after award. Protests received after award will be handled in accordance with § 1–2.407–8 and § 4–2.407–8 of this title insofar as applicable. If the award was erroneously made, the instructions in § 4–2.407–53 shall be followed. Protests addressed to the Secretary or to the Department will be handled by the Office of Operations except as otherwise instructed in individual cases. If the contracting agency is in doubt as to proper resolution of a protest addressed to it, the advice of the Office of Operations or the Office of the General Counsel should be sought.

6. Section 4–2.407–53 is revised to read as follows:

§ 4–2.407–53 Erroneous award.

(a) If, through error, award is made to other than the low responsive and responsible offeror the resulting contract is illegal, and therefore, invalid.

(b) If the contractor did not contribute to the error and was not on direct notice before award that the procedures being followed were wrong, the contract cannot be cancelled but may be terminated for convenience.

(c) If the award was made contrary to statutory or regulatory requirements because of some action or statement by the contractor, or if the contractor was on direct notice that the procedures being followed violated such requirements, the award is illegal and can be cancelled. When the award is cancelled payment must be made on the "quantum meruit" basis, i.e., the contractor can only recover the costs he has already incurred (after award and before cancellation) to the extent that they confer a tangible benefit on the Government in the form of goods which the Government has received and retained. Pre-production costs (drafting, design, tooling and production planning, and tooling material) are generally not recoverable unless they meet the above criteria.

(d) The Office of Operations and Office of the General Counsel will render assistance to agencies when exceptional cases are involved.

(e) A report on the circumstances which led to making an erroneous award and a description of measures taken to prevent their recurrence shall be submitted to the Office of Operations through agency channels.

7. Sections 4–2.202–3(b), 4–2.406–1(a), 4–2.407–6, 4–2.407–50(d) and 4–2.407–51 are revised to read as follows:

§ 4–2.202–3 Place and method of delivery of supplies.

* * * * *

(b) F.O.B. shipping point and F.O.B. destination. In some instances it may be to the advantage of the Government to solicit prices on the basis of both F.O.B. shipping point and destination. Illustrations of cases when it would be in the best interest of the Government to solicit prices both ways are:

(1) When it is the custom of the industry to bid a shipping-point price only;

(2) When it is to the advantage of the Government to encourage competition by including bidders who will bid a shipping-point price only;

(3) When the cost of the transportation of the commodity is substantial in relation to the cost of the commodity, to bring into the competition the contractor who cannot or is unwilling to meet the large transportation cost.

(4) When the ultimate destination is known and when the quantity to be purchased is estimated to weigh 20,000 lbs. or more, except for those items that are of a fragile nature or are otherwise exceptionally susceptible to damage in transit, and

(5) When the ultimate destination is known and when the quantity to be purchased is estimated to weigh 100,000 lbs, or more, and is of a fragile nature or otherwise exceptionally susceptible to damage in transit.

§ 4–2.406–1 General.

(a) General. As a general rule a bidder cannot withdraw or change his bid after opening. Such rule does not apply where the bidder establishes, prior to award, that he made an honest mistake, since acceptance of a bid with the knowledge thereof does not constitute a valid binding contract. If the contracting officer has actual or constructive notice of an error in a bid after opening he shall request from the bidder a vertification of the bid, calling attention to the suspected mistake and stating why he suspects a mistake has been made. If the bidder alleges a mistake, the matter shall be processed in accordance with this section. Such actions shall be taken prior to award. A representative of the bidder has authority to verify the bid if it appears that he is an employee of the bidder and is present at the bid opening in such capacity.

§ 4–2.407–6 Equal low bids.

Where the application of § 1–2.407–6 results in two or more bidders being equally eligible for award, the award shall be made by a drawing by lot limited to such bidders. In each such case, except as otherwise authorized by the Director, Office of Operations, the bidders involved shall be given an opportunity to be present at the drawing.

§ 4–2.407–50 Effect of acceptance period.

(d) Awards where the acceptance period of the low bidder has expired. Ordinarily, where a low bidder's acceptance period expires before acceptance and contract award, and regardless of the reason therefor, any award shall be to the next low bidder whose acceptance period is effective at the time. Such award is preferable, from the standpoint of preserving the integrity of the competitive bid system, to allowing the low bidder to renew his acceptance period after it has expired. It will be necessary to explain in the file in such instances the circumstances surrounding the failure to secure award prior to the expiration date, with a showing that award to the next low bidder was in the best interest of the Government, and that no appreciable savings could have been obtained by readvertising. Nonetheless, if award cannot otherwise be made without readvertising, when all bids have been improperly rejected or the acceptance period of all bids has expired, the low bidder may renew his acceptance period and thereby receive award. This procedure is preferred since readvertising generally should be avoided except for the most compelling reasons. (See § 1–2.404–1 of this title).

§ 4–2.407–51 Availability of funds.

Prior to award of the contract or any subsequent change therein, the contracting officer should have written assurance that sufficient funds are available within the current allotment and are reserved for the proposed action. However, where required by unusual circumstances, a contract may be executed with a condition therein that the liability of the Government for payment of all or a portion of the contract amount is subject to the availability of funds therefor. A contract provision somewhat as follows is suggested.

Funds are available in current appropriations and reserved for this contract in the amount of $---------. Completion of the contract is contingent upon appropriation of funds therefor. No legal liability on the part of the Government for the payment of more than $---------- shall arise unless and until such appropriation shall have been provided.

See 16 U.S.C. 557a regarding statutory authority and requirements for such conditional contracts in connection with the administration of the National Forests.

§ 4–2.450 [Deleted]

8. Section 4–2.450 is deleted.

CHAPTER 9—ENERGY RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

[ERDA–PR TEMPORARY REGULATION NO. 35]

PART 9–7—CONTRACT CLAUSES

AGENCY: Energy Research and Development Administration.

ACTION: Temporary regulation.

SUMMARY: ERDA Temporary Regulation No. 29, published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on April 29, 1977, made a number of changes in ERDA conflict of interest regulations on technical and management support services contracting. Because of the subsequent enactment of Public Law 95–39 signed by the President on June 10, 1977, Temporary Regulation No. 29, including its deadline of June 25, 1977, for comments, is canceled and is replaced by this temporary regulation. This regulation is more responsive to Public Law 95–39 which contains requirements relating to Organizational Conflicts of Interest in ERDA procurements.

EFFECTIVE DATE: June 24, 1977.

ADDRESS: Harry M. Tayloe, Division of Procurement, Rm. C–167, USERDA, Washington, D.C. 20545.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Harry M. Tayloe (302–353–5526).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Expiration date.—This regulation will remain in effect until canceled or until its provisions are incorporated into a permanent ERDA Procurement Regulation.

This temporary regulation, which modifies ERDA–PR Subparts 9–1.54 and 9–7.50, replaces Temporary Regulation No. 29, dated April 29, 1977, to reflect more accurately the intent of Public Law 95–39. The principal changes are (1) definitions of "evaluation services," "technical consulting and management support services," "research and development" and "architect-engineer services" and (2) the exclusion of procurements of research and development and architect-engineer services from applicability of Subpart 9–1.54.

In addition, this regulation modifies the Organizational Conflicts of Interest Clause included in Temporary Regulation No. 29, to conform its provisions to the changes contained herein.

A comprehensive revision of Subpart 9–1.54 will be completed by December 10, 1977. Therefore comments received within 60 days of this notice on any aspect of the subpart, including this temporary regulation, will be considered for inclusion in the revision.

1. Subpart 9–1.54 is amended by adding paragraph (c) to § 9–1.5402; revising § 9–1.5404; changing § 9–1.5405 by identifying the present provision as paragraph (a) and adding paragraphs (b), (c), (d), and (e); and adding paragraphs (d), (e), and (f) to § 9–1.5406.

Subpart 9–1.54 General Policy for the Avoidance of Organizational Conflicts of Interest

§ 9–1.5402 Scope and applicability.

* * * * *

(c) The disclosure provision set forth in § 9–1.5406(d) and the contract clause set forth in § 9–7.5006–40 need not apply to contracts and arrangements for (i) research and development or (ii) architect and engineering services. (See § 9–1.5405 (d) and (e).)

§ 9–1.5404 Qualification and evaluation criteria, waiver.

(a) Failure on the part of an offeror to submit information pursuant to the disclosure provision set forth in § 9–1.5406(d) or to accept the Organizational Conflicts of Interest Clause set forth in § 9–7.5006–40 shall disqualify the offeror from further consideration for contract award. However, nothing contained herein shall preclude the offeror, because of a potential conflict, from proposing to exclude specific kinds of effort from the statement of work as contained in the solicitation unless the solicitation specifically prohibits such exclusion. Any such exclusion contained in the offeror's proposal shall be considered by the Government as an evaluation factor, and if the Government considers such proposed exclusion to be an essential or integral part of the required work, the offeror's proposal may be considered nonresponsive.

(b) A manager of a field office or the Director of Procurement, or their designees, may authorize the contracting officer to grant the waiver provided for in (e) of the Organizational Conflicts of Interest Clause set forth in § 9–7.5006–40.

§ 9–1.5405 Definitions.

(a) The term "organizational conflict of interest" means a situation where a contractor, normally a corporation, has interests, either due to its other activities or its relationships with other organizations, which place it in a position that may be unsatisfactory or unfavorable (1) from the Government's standpoint in being able to secure impartial, technically sound, objective assistance and advice from the contractor, or in securing the advantages of adequate competition in its procurement; or (2) from industry's standpoint in that unfair competitive advantage may accrue to the contractor in question.

(b) The term "evaluation services" means any work or effort involving the independent study of a particular technology, process, or product which entails the assessment, appraisal, or survey of such technology, process, or product.

(c) The term "technical consulting and management support services" means any work or effort to provide internal assistance to any ERDA program division or other organizational component in the formulation or administration of its programs or projects, which normally necessitates that the contractor be given access to internal ERDA information. Such services typically include assistance in the preparation of program plans; evaluation, monitoring or review of contractors' activities or proposals submitted by prospective contractors; preparation of preliminary designs, specifications, or statements of work; the making of recommendations, or the rendering of an opinion or advice regarding any technical problem, issue, or question.

(d) The term "research and development" means any work or effort involving (1) theoretical analysis, exploration, or experimentation; or (2) the extension of investigative findings and theories of a scientific or technical nature into practical application for experimental and demonstration purposes, including the experimental production and testing of models, devices, equipment, materials, and processes.

(e) The term "architect-engineer services" means work or effort of a professional nature associated with research, development, design and construction, alteration or repair of real property including utilities and appurtenances thereto. Such services embrace conceptual design and Title I, Title II and Title III work, as defined in ERDA-PR 9–18.306–50(b).

§ 9–1.5406 General policy.

* * * * *

(d) The following disclosure provision shall be included in all solicitations for evaluation and technical consulting and management support services as defined in § 9–1.5405. Where a formal solicitation is not used, the provision shall be furnished to the offeror in whatever manner is practical in order that ERDA may receive and evaluate the required information as a condition precedent to award.

DISCLOSURE STATEMENT REGARDING ORGANIZATIONAL CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

Pursuant to ERDA–PR Subpart 9–1.54, it is ERDA policy to avoid situations which place an offeror in a position where its judgment may be biased because of any present or planned interest, financial or otherwise, the offeror may have which relates to the work to be performed pursuant to this solicitation, or where the offeror's performance of such work may provide it with an unfair competitive advantage. (As used herein, "offeror" means the proposer or any of its affiliate organizations or proposed subcontractors.) Therefore:

(1) The offeror shall provide a statement which describes in a concise manner all relevant facts concerning any present or planned interest (financial, contractual, organizational, or otherwise) relating to the work to be performed hereunder and bearing on whether the offeror has a possible conflict of interest with respect to (a) being able to render impartial, technically sound, and objective assistance or advice, or (b) being given an unfair competitive advantage.

(2) In the absence of any interest referred to above, the offeror shall submit a statement certifying that to its best knowledge and belief no such interest exists.

(3) ERDA will review the statement submitted and may require that additional relevant information be provided by the offeror. The statement and any additional information required of the offeror or otherwise known to ERDA will be used to determine whether an award to the offeror may create a conflict of interest relating to bias or prior contractual restrictions. If such conflict is found to exist, ERDA may (i) disqualify the offeror, (ii) impose appropriate conditions which satisfactorily mitigate or avoid such conflict, or (iii) determine that it is otherwse in the best interests of the Government not to disqualify the offeror.

(4) Failure to provide the statement and any additional information required, or the nondisclosure or misrepresentation of any relevant interest shall result in disqualification under this solicitation or, if discovered after award, may result in termination at no cost to the Government, disqualification under subsequent related contractual efforts, and such other remedial action as may be permitted or provided by law or the resulting contract. The attention of the offerpr in complying with this provision is directed to 18 U.S.C. § 1001.

(e) Notwithstanding any other provision contained in this subpart, the contract clause set forth in § 9–7.5006–40 shall be included in all contracts or arrangements for technical consulting and management support services and may be used, after any appropriate modification, in any contract or arrangement for evaluation services.

(f) The disclosure provision set forth in § 9–1.5406(d) and the contract clause set forth in § 9–7.5006–40 need not apply to contracts or arrangements for (1) research and development and (2) architect-engineer services, both as defined in § 9–1.5405.

2. Subpart 9–7.50 is amended by adding § 9–7.5006–40 as follows:

Subpart 9–7.50 Use of Standard Clauses

* * * * *

§ 9–7.5006–40 Organizational conflicts of interest.

The following contract clause shall be included in all contracts or arrangements for technical consulting and management support services as defined in § 9–1.5405(c) and may be included, after any appropriate modification, in any contract or arrangement for evaluation services as defined in § 9–1.5405(b).

Article—Organizational Conflicts of Interest.—(a) Purpose. The primary purpose of this clause is to aid in ensuring that the contractor (1) does not obtain any unfair competitive advantage over other parties by virtue of its performance of this contract, and (2) is not biased because of its current or planned interest (financial, contractual, organizational, or otherwise) which relate to the work under this contract.

(b) Scope. The restrictions described herein shall apply to performance or participation by the Contractor and any of its affiliate organizations or their successors in interest (hereinafter collectively referred to as the "Contractor") in the activities covered by this clause as a prime contractor, subcontractor, co-sponsor, joint venturer, consultant, or in any similar capacity.

(1) Technical Consulting and Management Support Services: (i) If the Contractor performs technical consulting or management support services, as defined in paragraph (f) below, or similar work, under this contract, it shall be ineligible thereafter to participate in any capacity in Government contractual efforts (solicited or unsolicited) which stem directly from such work, and the Contractor agrees not to perform similar work for prospective offerors with respect to any such contractual efforts. Furthermore, unless so directed in writing by the Contracting Officer, the Contractor shall not perform any such work under this contract on any of its products or services, or the products or services of another firm for which the Contractor performs similar work. Nothing in this subparagraph shall preclude the contractor from competing for follow-on contracts for technical consulting and management support services.

(ii) If the Contractor under this contract assists substantially in the preparation of a statement of work or specifications, the Contractor shall be ineligible to perform or participate in any capacity in any contractual effort which is based on such statement of work or specifications. The Contractor shall not incorporate its products or services in such statement of work or specifications unless so directed in writing by the Contracting Officer, in which case the restriction in this subparagraph shall not apply.

(iii) Nothing in this paragraph shall preclude the Contractor from offering or selling its standard commercial items to the Government.

(2) Access to and use of information: (i) If the Contractor, in the performance of this contract, obtains access to information, such as ERDA's plans, policies, reports, studies, financial plans, or data, which has not been released to the public, the Contractor agrees not to (a) use such information for any private purpose unless the information has been released to the public, (b) compete for work for ERDA based on such information for a period of six (6) months after the completion of this contract, or the release of such information to the public, whichever is first, (c) submit an unsolicited proposal to the Government which is based on such information until one (1) year after the release of such information to the public, and (d) release such information without prior written approval by the Contracting Officer.

(ii) In addition, the Contractor agrees that to the extent it receives or is given access to proprietary data or other confidential technical, business, or financial information under this contract, it shall treat such information in accordance with any restrictions imposed on such information.

(iii) The Contractor shall have, subject to patent and security provisions of this contract, the right to use technical data it first produces under this contract for its private purposes provided that, as of the date of such use, all data requirements of this contract have been met.

(c) Subcontracts. The Contractor shall include this clause, including this paragraph, in subcontracts of any tier which involve performance of work of the type specified in (b)(1) above or access to information covered in (b)(2) above. The use of this clause in such subcontracts shall be read by substituting the word "subcontractor" for the word "Contractor" wherever the latter appears.

(d) Remedies. For breach of the above restrictions or for nondisclosure or misrepresentation of any relevant interest required to be disclosed concerning this contract, the Government may, at no cost, terminate the contract, disqualify the Contractor for subsequent related contractual efforts, and pursue other remedies as may be permitted by law or this contract.

(e) Waiver. Any request for waiver under this clause shall be directed in writing to the Contracting Officer and shall include a full description of the requested waiver and the reasons in support thereof. If it is determined to be in the best interest of the Government, the Contracting Officer shall grant such waiver in writing.

(f) Definition. The term "technical consulting and management support service" means any work or effort to provide internal assistance to any ERDA program division or other organizational component in the formulation or administration of its programs or projects which normally necessitates that the contractor be given access to internal ERDA information. Such services typically include assistance in the preparation of program plans, evaluation, monitoring or review of contractors' activities or proposals submitted by prospective contractors; preparation of preliminary designs, specifications, or statements of work; the making of recommendations, or the rendering of an opinion or advice regarding any technical problem, issue, or question.

Interstate and Foreign Message Toll Telephone Service (MTS) and Wide Area Telephone Service (WATS)

AGENCY: Federal Communications Commission.

ACTION: Memorandum opinion and order.

SUMMARY: This document revises the technical (and certain administrative) requirements of the FCC's telephone equipment registration program, in response to petitions for reconsideration.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Released: June 20, 1977.

Memorandum opinion and order. In the matter of proposals for new or revised classes of Interstate and Foreign Message Toll Telephone Service (MTS) and Wide Area Telephone Service (WATS), Docket No. 19528.

1. Over the course of the past year and a half, the Commission has adopted a telephone equipment registration program for all classes of telephone terminal equipment except coin telephones and equipment used in conjunction with party-line telephone service. This program is designed to allow users of the nationwide telephone network to connect terminal equipment without the need for carrier-supplied connecting arrangements and network control signaling units, provided that such equipment complies with the standards of the registration program as contained in Part 68 of the FCC's rules and regulations.[1] Judicial review was sought of our decisions in Docket No. 19528, and the United States Court of Appeals, Fourth Circuit, imposed a stay pendente lite of the entire program (by Order dated April 28, 1976), which was subsequently modified to allow the program to become effective as to customer-provided data and ancillary equipment (Order dated June 16, 1976). The Commission has been processing applications for registration of data and ancillary equipment since June, 1976. In its March 22, 1977 decision on the merits, the Court of Appeals specifically affirmed the First and Second Reports in Docket No. 19528, our policies concerning inclusion of carrier-provided equipment and connection of registered equipment to the telephone network using standard plugs and jacks, and our reconsideration and clarification Orders dated February 13, 1976, March 15, 1976 and April 28, 1976.[2]

2. We have before us various petitions, comments and pleadings at this time. First, petitions for reconsideration of the Second Report were filed by American Telephone and Telegraph Company (AT&T), Gaines M. Crook & Associates, GTE Service Corporation (GTE) and International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation (ITT). Oppositions thereto were filed by AT&T, Computer and Business Equipment Manufacturers Association (CBEMA), GTE, International Business Machines Corporation (IBM), ITT and North American Telephone Association (NATA) and replies were filed by AT&T and GTE. GTE then filed "comments in support of petition for reconsideration" which were opposed by AT&T,[3] and NATA and ITT filed motions for extension of time to allow their technical personnel time to analyze and respond to GTE's "comments in support."[4] Second, we have before us pleadings and petitions for reconsideration relating to our March 15, 1976 Order, 58 F.C.C. 2d 716 (1976) and 41 FR 12673-79, March 26, 1976, filed by CBEMA, IDCMA and IBM, and a response thereto filed by AT&T. Third, we have before us a motion filed by AT&T on August 23, 1976 requesting a restrictive interpretation of the First Report and our February 13, 1976 and April 28, 1976 Orders with regard to "grandfathering" and short-form application procedures adopted therein; oppositions thereto were filed by the Independent Data Communications Manufacturers Association (IDCMA) and NATA, and AT&T replied. Finally, GTE has filed a petition for partial reconsideration of a September 20, 1976 Order, FCC 76-874, which accepted certain proposals made on behalf of their members by the Organization for the Protection and Advancement of Small Telephone Companies and the National Telephone Cooperatives Association.

3. In large part, the petitions for reconsideration of the Second Report relate to the problems posed by wiring and connection of Private Branch Exchange (PBX) and key telephone systems. In a companion notice of proposed rulemaking which we are adopting today we discuss these problems in detail, invite additional comments, and make specific proposals for rule changes. Because of this action, we shall not rule at this time on issues which relate to wiring, to connection of PBX and key telephone systems to the telephone network except as stated herein, and to installation procedures which might have the effect of negating the network protection provided by registered equipment itself. However, a variety of other issues are presently ripe for decision, and they are addressed in this order. Because of the procedural complexity of the various comments and responses which are before us (see the previous paragraph), we will address the issues seriatim without indicating the specific pleadings which raised and commented upon these issues. We have, of course, carefully reviewed all of the pleadings and responses before us.

I. TECHNICAL ISSUES

4. Definitions. AT&T has proposal several new definitions in clarification of the Part 68 Subpart D technical requirements. First, AT&T proposes a definition of "auxiliary leads" to be applied to connections between terminal equipment and telephone facilities other than "tip" and "ring" connections (e.g., A/A1 connections to key telephone systems). This unopposed new definition resolves ambiguity and imposes constraints on such connections which are consistent with the constraints upon telephone connections. Since this originally was our intent, we are adopting the definition. Second, AT&T proposes definitions of "network port" and "terminal port" to clarify which port faces the telephone network and which port faces the terminal equipment for protective circuitry. We are adopting this proposal as well as it also removes ambiguity and is consistent with the public interest.

5. AT&T has also proposed a new definition of "loop simulator circuit" to accomodate reverse-battery circuits, a form of trunk used with PBX equipment and not presently accomodated in the rules. As was the case of the present definition, this proposal is in the from of a schematic diagram. Gaines M. Crook comments that our present schematic diagram is too limiting as other means could be employed to generate the necessahy parameters. While AT&T takes issue with the specific alternative means advanced by Crook, it notes and we concur, that the parameters of dc line current and voltage and the ac specification of a 600 ohm load impedance, are the important criteria of the loop simulator definition and not the specific circuit depicted in the rule. We have used and will continue to use a schematic representation as we believe that this form of representation best conveys the information required. However, in adopting AT&T's proposed revision of the "loop simulator circuit" definition, we are adding clarifying language to indicate that alternative circuitry with the same parametric characteristics is acceptable.

6. AT&T has proposed other new definitions to be added to Section 68.3 which relate to matters which we are setting for further comment in our companion notice of proposed rulemaking (e.g., "common equipment", "direct connection" and "system") and we will not address them at this time. A proposed new definition of "on-site wiring" forms a substantive part of AT&T's proposals for handling connection of key telephone and PBX systems to the telephone network, and it is included in our companion notice for comment. AT&T also proposes a new definition of "special assembly" to define a class of telephone company-provided terminal equipment (but not customer-provided) which would be exempt from the registration requirements of Part 68. In conjunction with this proposed definition, AT&T proposes that such "special assemblies" be removed from the scope of the program which is expressed in Section 68.2.[5] In support of this proposal, AT&T claims that it is "necessary to allow the telephone companies to provide individualized designs for customers with nonstandard service requirements", and AT&T exemplifies such customers as "federal, state and local governments, the military, the handicapped, medical and penal institutions, and others with unique needs.". In response, CBEMA, IBM, NATA and ITT argue that the proposed definition is too broad, and if granted the exemption should apply both to customer-provided and to telephone company-provided equipment. CBEMA, IBM and ITT note that much customer-provided equipment is "individualized",[6] and ITT further notes that for competitive reasons the nontelephone company independent equipment suppliers are generally more responsive than telephone companies to customers' specialized needs. AT&T replies with a claim that the proposed category of exempt equipment does not duplicate services or equipment offered by others, and that therefore the Commission's reasons for including carrier-provided equipment within the ambit of

[1] The registration program was established in our First Report and Order in Docket No. 19528, 56 F.C.C2d 593 (1975) and initially applied to all equipment other than key telephone and Private Branch Exchange (PBX) systems, main telephones, coin telephones, and equipment used with party-line service. In a February, 1976 order, we generally affirmed the First Report, 57 F.C.C.2d 1216 (1976), and established "grandfathering" and short-form application procedures to phase in registration of equipment. In March, 1976, we revised the program's technical standards and requirements, 58 F.C.C.2d 716 (1976) and 41 FR 12673-79, March 26, 1976 in partial reconsideration of the First Report.

The program was then extended in a Second Report and Order, 58 F.C.C.2d 736 (1976) to encompass key telephone and PBX systems, and main telephones. In partial reconsideration thereof, the Second Report was generally affirmed in an October, 1976 order, 61 F.C.C.2d 396 (1976), although certain technical matters were left pendant.

In an April, 1976 order, 59 F.C.C.2d 83 (1976), we issued a declaratory ruling clarifying the "grandfathering" and short-form application procedures in response to petitions seeking such clarification.

Registered equipment is required to be connected to the telephone network using means of connection specified in Part 68. Standard plugs and jacks were adopted for this purpose in Docket No. 20774, 41 FR 28694, July 12, 1976.

Finally, the transition period during which "grandfathered" equipment may be connected without registration was recently extended by the Chief, Common Carrier Bureau under delegated authority to January 1, 1978. See Memorandum Opinion and Order released May 31, 1977, No. 70182.

[2] North Carolina Utilities Commission v. F.C.C., No. 76-1002 (4th Cir., March 22, 1977). The policy of connection using standard plugs and jacks, embodied in § 68.104 of the rules and adopted in the First Report, was before the Court for review, although the merits of the specific plugs, jacks and wiring configurations which were adopted in another proceeding (Docket No. 20774) were not. See 41 FR 28694, July 12, 1976, for a discussion of the relationship of Docket No. 20774 to Docket No. 19528.

[3] The Chief, Common Carrier Bureau accepted these comments under delegated authority, by Order released August 27, 1976, and gave interested parties an opportunity to comment thereupon.

[4] Our action today renders these motions moot.

[5] The specific proposed definition of "special assembly" is: "A custom design or arrangement of terminal equipment provided by a telephone company to meet an unusual service requirement."

[6] IBM states that almost all PBX equipment is customized to the customer's specific requirements, and CBEMA states that many data equipment systems are tailored to the individual customer, and are often specially constructed for the customer.

Part 68 are inapplicable to such equipment. Further, AT&T argues that if such an exemption were to be extended to "special assemblies" provided by other than telephone companies, harm potentially could result as this equipment would not have been evaluated either by the Commission (under the program) or by a telephone company. Finally, AT&T claims that if such one-of-a-kind "special assemblies" are not exempted from registration, the cost of providing this equipment on a registered basis might price the equipment out of the range of some users, and thereby injure them.

7. In analyzing this proposal, we note that the arguments in support of it are inconsistent with the language itself. The proposed language defining the exempt class of equipment is so broad as to include virtually all key telephone and PBX equipment, which largely is customized to the users' specific requirements. The language leaves the determination of what is, and what is not, a special assembly to the telephone companies themselves, subject only to the complaint procedures of Part 68. The proposed definitional language, "a custom design" to meet "an unusual service requirement" is overly broad and ambiguous; nowhere are the boundaries of a non-custom design, or a usual service requirement stated. In addition, as NATA has pointed out, the definition does not impose any quantitative or even qualitative numerical limitation on the class of exempt equipment; AT&T's pleadings speak of "one-of-a-kind" items, but the proposed rule does not. This proposal simply seeks reconsideration of the First Report's inclusion of telephone company-provided terminal equipment, which was sought and ruled upon in our February 1976 ruling in reconsideration of the First Report. Moreover, much of the equipment which AT&T ostensibly would place in the exempt category can be connected to the telephone network under Part 68 without registration, through registered protective circuitry.

8. Nevertheless, we are not unmindful of the concerns expressed in AT&T's pleadings where one-of-a-kind (or extremely limited production) items may not practicably be connected to the telephone network using protective circuitry. However, these concerns are more properly met in the context of specific equipments, and not broad exemptions in the rules which might be abused. Accordingly, we will entertain, as necessary, requests for waiver of the registration requirements for such equipment.

9. Registration requirement. AT&T has proposed specific changes to our § 68.102 rule to accommodate the tentative approach which we had adopted in our Second Report, for connection of PBX and key telephone systems. In view of our revisitation of connection issues in the notice of proposed rulemaking which we are adopting today, we will not address these proposed changes at this time.

10. Notification to the telpehone company. AT&T has proposed several changes to our present § 68.106 rule regarding notification to the local telephone company (by its customer). First, AT&T proposes that the rule be changed to require the customer to give notice of final disconnection of registered equipment. This unopposed change is reasonable, and is merely a "housekeeping" amendment which embodies our discussion of final disconnection in our February 1976 Order, 57 F.C.C. 2d at 1222, n. 7. Second, AT&T proposes that language be added to the rule to require a customer connecting "systems requiring on-site wiring" to give the telephone company compatibility information, information concerning the type of installation involved, the FCC registration numbers of registered protective circuitry, and the largest ringer equivalence for each line to which connection is sought. Moreover, AT&T proposes that, for such systems, the customer provide a complete list of all of the FCC registration numbers of equipment used in the system, which numbers might not otherwise be provided when per-line equipment is described. We are adopting the substance of AT&T's proposal, but without any reference to systems requiring on-site wiring. The issues surrounding on-site wiring are dealt with in the companion notice of proposed rulemaking which we are issuing today, and we do not wish to prejudice the outcome of that proceeding. Rather, we are preserving the thrust of AT&T's proposed modifications by reference to "systems assembled of combinations of individually-registered terminal equipment and protective circuitry." The "information required for compatible operation of the equipment" which will be required to be given is intended to refer primarily to means of connecting the equipment to the telephone network, and to such information as may be necessary to assure compatible network control signaling transfer between the telephone network and the terminal equipment.

11. Registration application. AT&T has proposed several revisions to our § 68.200 application rules. First, AT&T proposes changes to identify protective circuitry conformity to the tentative requirements of our Second Report for PBX and key telephone systems; these changes, if necessary, will depend upon the outcome of our companion notice of proposed rulemaking and will not be addressed at this time. Second, AT&T proposes changes to our subpart (c) requirement for a description of all circuitry employed in assuring compliance with Part 68 to (1) remove our requirement for submitting specifications of circuit elements which provide isolation means; (2) remove our requirement for a circuit diagram of the protective circuitry and substitute therefore a block diagram supplemented by a narrative description; and (3) impose on the Commission an obligation to treat any additional information which is supplied as exempt from public disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act, at the request of an applicant. ITT has proposed that our subpart (f) requirement of photographs of the equipment construction and labels be modified to allow for the submission of drawings.

12. AT&T's proposed changes are founded upon its view that the design of means of protecting the telephone network, which means are required to be disclosed in a registration application under our present § 68.200(c) requirements, may form the basis of a trade secret. Thus, AT&T seeks revisions which would limit the information to be provided in a registration application, unless the Commission specifically requests additional information. In the event of a specific governmental request, AT&T apparently feels that it would be on firm ground to request exemption from public disclosure of such additional information under the trade secret exemption provision of the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(4) and the Commission's rules in implementation thereof.

13. We reject any view which would allow for non-disclosure of registration applications. The public interest requires that interested entities have an opportunity to review and comment upon registration applications, pursuant to the notice and comment procedures of §§ 68.202 and 68.204 of the rules, and non-disclosure would largely defeat the intent of this review. Moreover, our program has been carefully designed to allow for the preservation of trade secret information. An equipment manufacturer is free to preserve a trade secret design from disclosure in a registration application by using protective circuitry registered by that manufacturer, or by another. Similarly, a manufacturer is free to market unregistered equipment; a user thereof can connect it to the telephone network using registered protective circuitry. In addition, the rules do not require disclosure of an entire equipment design; they only require disclosure, in a registration application, of the specific means which assure compliance with our rules. To clarify this point, and remove any ambiguity which remains, we are modifying the language presently contained in § 68.200(c), subparts (1) and (2) to substitute "circuitry which ensures compliance with Subpart D of this part" for the present "isolation means at the interface." Finally, the actual design of protective circuitry itself will not be treated as trade secret information by this Commission. Our public interest determination of the suitability of such designs for assuring compliance with Part 68 must, of necessity, override any private interests in maintaining this small portion of an entire equipment's design as a trade secret.[7]

14. We are rejecting ITT's proposal that drawings be substituted for the photographs required by § 68.200(f) Equipment construction and layout are vital elements to assuring compliance with Part 68, particularly with regard to the hazardous voltage limitations contained in § 68.306, which section addresses, inter alia, separation of telephone connections from power connections. We see no reason to introduce the possibility of misleading or erroneous presentations which might result if drawings are permitted to be substituted for photographs.

15. Finally, on our own motion, we are changing the language of § 68.200(g) to require that FCC registration numbers of equipment operated in conjunction with the subject of the application, if any are outstanding, be supplied.[8]

16. Changes to registered equipment. AT&T proposes that we amend § 68.214 to require that changes to registered equipment be made only by the grantee, or by a trained, authorized agent thereof. This modification is consistent both with the intent of the rule, and with our approach to repair of registered equipment (§ 68.216). Accordingly, we will clarify the rule to reflect our original intent that only the original grantee may file a "change" application. Anyone else modifying registered equipment must file an entirely new registration application.

17. Grantee's responsibility. AT&T proposes that telephone companies be exempted from the requirement of supplying certain instructions to the user (e.g. installation and repair procedures, notification to the telephone company) because telephone companies already will have notice of connection of equipment which they themselves supply, and customers do not need specific instructions concerning repair and installation services which the telephone companies provide as part of their services. We would agree that the telephone company does not have to receive notice of connection of equipment which it provides; it already will have such notice. However, we do not see why the telephone companies should not provide the information required by § 68.218(b) (1) and (3). A customer using telephone company-provided equipment terminated in standard plugs should be informed of the use of such plugs ("installation" instructions) and provision to the user of "repair procedures" could be limited to instructions concerning the calling of the telephone company's repair service. Moreover, instructions concerning fault-isolation, as contained in sub-section (3) would appear appropriate for telephone company equipment as well as customer-provided equipment, to minimize the possibility of violations of Part 68 in the event of equipment malfunction.

18. ITT seeks clarification of the registrant's responsibility for repairs and/or changes to registered equipment if performed by the registrant's agent, and "assumes" that a registrant would not be responsible for improper actions by its agents. In this regard we note that a registrant is responsible for the continuing conformance of registered equipment to the requirements of Part 68, and assumes this responsibility in a registration application. As such, the registrant is responsible for assuring that its agents, who are the only entities other than the registrant who are authorized to perform repairs and changes to registered equipment, perform these operations correctly.

19. In addition, we are adding on our own motion a new subsection to § 68.218 to require that any FCC-registered equipment which is offered to a user must be equipped with standard means of connection to the telephone network, specified in Subpart F of Part 68, and we are also amending § 68.218(b) to require that the user be provided with the appropriate Universal Service Order Code(s) compatible therewith. By this change, an anomaly which presently exists in the rules will be cured. At present, it is possible for a user to acquire FCC-registered equipment which cannot be connected to the telephone network using FCC-specified means; thus such a user cannot rely upon the existence of FCC registration as an assurance that he will be able to connect registered equipment.[9]

20. Environmental simulation—mechanical. Many of the comments before us have addressed the applicability of our environmental stress requirements to large systems such as PBX and key telephone systems. GTE has taken the position that § 68.302 should not be applicable to PBX equipment as, in GTE's view, it is intended for small, portable terminal devices. ITT argues that "large" PBXs (greater than 800 lines) should be exempt from our temperature and humidity, and vibration and shock stresses, because acceptance testing which is associated with installations of such equipment would, in ITT's view, disclose any failures due to mechanical stress during shipment. In the alternative, ITT argues that these rules not be applied to any PBX equipment. NATA agrees with the fundamental GTE and ITT position that physically large equipment need not be subjected to mechanical stress, and urges extension of the concept to large key telephone system common equipment, and to large 18 and 30 button key telephone instruments. AT&T opposes all of these comments and notes that large equipment is, in fact, subjected to mechanical stress during shipment and operation, and should conform to Part 68 under such foreseeable stress.

21. We find little merit in those comments which claim that our environmental stress rules are not intended for physically large equipment.[10] The mechanical and electrical stresses which are currently specified are intended to be representative of those stresses which foreseeably will occur to registered equipment, during shipment and use. We can, however, appreciate those comments which indicate that testing of conformance to the stresses could prove costly. Physically large equipment would require a physically large vibration table for testing to § 68.302(a), and would require a physically large temperature and humidity chamber for testing to § 68.302(b). On the other hand, the shock tests required by § 68.302(c) do not require more than a concrete surface covered by asphalt tile (or similar material) which typically would be found on the floor of the manufacturer's production facility. Thus, we are not faced with inapplicable standards here; we are faced with a possible burden if the standards are applied to physically large equipment.

22. As is discussed in greater detail in the companion notice of proposed rulemaking which we are issuing today, we are revisiting other issues related to the registration and connection of PBX and key telephone systems. Thus, we have an opportunity to elicit further comments on the mechanical stresses to be applied to large equipment. Therefore, we are requesting comments, in the companion notice, on: (1) A definition of physically "large" equipment, which might be burdensome to test under § 68.302 (a) and (b); (2) whether or not a demonstration of conformance to § 68.302(c) will be adequate for such "large" equipment, in view of the packaging, shipment and installation techniques associated with this equipment; and (3) in view of the comments on the first two issues, what specific rules or rule changes would be adopted in Part 68.

23. Environmental simulation—electrical. ITT has raised a problem attendant to our present electrical stresses, specified in § 68.302 (d)–(e). It seeks to use equipment designs that secure fail-safe protection from the adverse effects of lightning surges by causing an intentional connection between the telephone connections and earth ground. However, the use of this technique might then cause the equipment to violate our longitudinal balance limitations (§ 68.308) because of the ground connection. In response, AT&T comments that such a design technique would not cause "harm", provided that this failure-mode is either one which would render the equipment un-

[8] This change is a rule of agency procedure, and does not incorporate any new substantive requirements in the rules. It allows for an administratively-orderly method of demonstrating compliance with Subpart D through the use of previously-evaluated, registered equipment. As such, it is exempt from the requirements for notice and comment, under 5 U.S.C. 553(b).

[9] In accordance with 5 U.S.C. 553, we hereby find that the orderly administration of the registration program, and the public's interest in acquiring registered equipment which in fact may be connected in accordance with Part 68, requires these revisions. As is discussed in detail in our "Order to Show Cause, Memorandum Opinion and Order" in Docket No. 21183, FCC 77-229, released April 7, 1977, the possibility of FCC-registered equipment being unable to be connected to the telephone network in accordance with the rules is not theoretical and has already occurred. The public has a reasonable right to expect that equipment registered by the Commission can be connected and used in accordance with Part 68, and for this reason immediate adoption of the revisions is imperative.

[10] The shock stress specifications, § 68.302 (c) cover equipment weighing 600 to 1000 pounds, and over 1,000 pounds; such equipment would not be "small."

usable, or one which will cause the condition to be readily identifiable (e.g., sounding of an alarm), so that the equipment can be immediately disconnected from the telephone network. We agree with AT&T's comments on ITT's concerns, and further note that such imbalance will not result in inteference to others' telephone service if no voice-band energy is present while the unbalanced condition exists, which often will be the case when the ground connection is present because of its interference with network control signaling on the connection. Accordingly, we are modifying § 68.302 consistent with the ITT and AT&T comments to secure further flexibility in equipment designs.

24. In addition, AT&T has proposed changes to § 68.302 (d)–(e) to indicate the appropriate termination of equipment connections other than those under test. We are adopting these changes to clarify the limitations of the rule and to remove its present ambiguity. (See below.)

25. Leakage current limitations. ITT seeks clarification of § 68.304 to accommodate intentional connections of ground-start trunks with earth ground during signaling. AT&T concurs with these comments and proposes rule changes consistent therewith. We will adopt the requested clarification, and note that imbalance during signaling, when there is no voice-band energy present on the connection, is not harmful. In addition, AT&T proposes that "auxiliary lead terminals" (e.g., A/A1 connections for key telephone systems) be treated as a separate category of connections and be subjected to the same leakage current limits as telephone connections, with which they are normally run. This was our original intent, and we are adopting AT&T's proposed clarification to remove any ambiguity.

26. Hazardous voltage limitations. Similarly, AT&T seeks changes in § 68.306 to clarify that "auxiliary lead" connections are subject to hazardous voltage limitations in the same manner as telephone connections. In addition, AT&T seeks refinement of the requirement of physical separation of power conductors from telephone (and auxiliary) conductors, to remove ambiguity relating to non-hazardous voltage sources. Telephone connections, auxiliary connections and non-hazardous voltage sources must be adequately physically separated from hazardous power sources to preclude the possibility of hazardous voltages appearing on the telephone network, and we wish no ambiguity in the requirements for such separation. Accordingly, we are adopting AT&T's proposed revisions herein, as modified by NATA's comments thereupon which would allow for sharing of connectors by telephone connections and non-hazardous voltages. (See below.)

27. Signal power limitations — voice equipment. AT&T has proposed several changes to § 68.308. First, AT&T wishes us to explicitly reserve a sub-section for equipment containing "electro-acoustic transducers" (e.g. microphones) to indicate that, in the future, standards might be imposed on such equipment. In view of the natural processes which tend to limit excessively loud live-voice speech volumes to acceptable levels[11] such standards may never in fact become necessary. Thus, absent any concrete proposal for such standards, and absent any demonstration that they are required, we shall not reserve such a sub-section at this time. Second, AT&T proposes a manufacturing tolerance on internal signal sources, not intended for network control signaling, within registered equipment or circuitry. This unopposed change removes any ambiguity, is consistent with the public interest, and accordingly will be adopted. Third, AT&T proposes changes to accommodate the tentative requirement of our Second Report which would require (if adopted) interposed protective circuitry between the telephone network and PBX and key system wiring. The change which AT&T proposes would require voice signals traversing such interposed circuitry to be limited to −9 dBm by means internal to the circuitry. While we will not rule on such a change at this time, in view of our solicitation of further comments concerning PBX and key system equipment, we would note that such a limitation of live-voice signal power within protective circuitry would be inconsistent with the absence of such a limitation for all other protective circuitry used for live-voice. To implement such a requirement, additional hardware is required (e.g. a clipping device) which device would appear to be unnecessary so long as the PBX or key telephone system supplies remotely-located station equipment with loop current (DC) within the ranges supplied by our loop simulator circuit, or equivalent. In fact, AT&T also has proposed revision to § 68.308(a)(3) which would require that such dc loop current be within these ranges, and we are adopting this proposed revision herein to ensure proper limitation of live-voice signal power as it might be affected by the loop current (See below.)

28. Signal power limitations—data equipment. IDCMA has requested that we clarify a discrepancy which presently exists between the signal power limitations for programmable data equipment (§ 68.308(a)(4)(ii), a level set by connections in the jack which can be programmed in 1db steps between −12 and −3 dB with respect to 1 milliwatt) contained in § 68.308(a)(4)(ii), and the standard jacks we have adopted to implement this section (specifying a range of −12 to 0 dB with respect to 1 milliwatt in § 68.502(e)). IDCMA proposes that the two ranges be reconciled as −12 to 0 dB with respect to 1 milliwatt because it has been informed that loop losses in Independent telephone company areas often exceed 9 dB, and the more limited range would not permit equipment to operate properly in these areas. Comments were filed on this issue both in this proceeding and in Docket No. 20774 (the proceeding which adopted § 68.502(e)), and in reaching our decision herein we also are taking cognizance of the comments filed in Docket No. 20774. In reply to IDCMA, AT&T does not object to the proposal, although it notes that the higher levels would be unnecessary in Bell System areas. Finally, IBM supports IDCMA's proposal.

29. We will modify § 68.308(a)(4)(ii) to conform it with § 68.502(e) and therefore specify an upper limit of 0 dB with respect to 1 milliwatt. We do so not only for the reasons advanced by IDCMA and IBM, but also for an additional reason. Much data equipment is transferred between private lines and the switched telephone network, and for such private line service as 1 milliwatt signal power level is standard. By adopting the 1 milliwatt upper bound for registered data equipment, which level is programmed by a short-circuit connection in the jack, we facilitate the dual usage of data equipment for both the switched network, and for voice-grade private line channels.

30. Two additional proposed changes are before us. First, it is proposed that we reference the "Universal" data jack in § 68.308 for clarity. Second, it is proposed that we clarify the rules to require that data equipment connected behind non-data protective circuitry or no protective circuitry (as would typically be the case of PBX and key telephone systems) only be connected through voice jacks, in the permissive, −9 dB with respect to 1 milliwatt, mode. We are adopting both of these proposals to clarify the rules, as they accord with our original intent, and are in the public interest.

31. Longitudinal Balance Limitations. There has been much confusion, expressed in comments and applications which we have received, about the parameter which is required to be evaluated by § 68.310. This parameter, the metallic-to-longitudinal balance coefficient, relates longitudinal imbalance at the terminal equipment to induced energy in other loops or lines, and is the appropriate measure of potential for interference with telephone service. The telephone industry has devoted considerable effort, in the past, to arriving at measuring techniques for another parameter, the longitudinal-to-metallic balance coefficient, which relates longitudinal imbalance at the terminal equipment to induced energy in the equipment's own loop or line. This other parameter is relevant to assuring noise-free operation of the registered equipment, but is not relevant to harm. AT&T has provided an analysis which demonstrates that the two parameters are not necessarily identical, and this analysis is reproduced for informational purposes in Appendix A below. Our rules do not specify the use of any specific test apparatus for imbalance; all that they require is the measurements be performed which yield reliable results in terms of the parameter which requires evaluation under § 68.310. Thus, if tests of the longitudinal-to-metallic balance coefficient can be mathematically converted to a measurement of the requisite metallic-to-longitudinal balance parameter, this would be acceptable. Similarly, if a test apparatus alternative to the suggested means accompanying § 68.310 will yield results of sufficient accuracy and precision, use of alternative means is also acceptable.[12]

32. AT&T proposes revisions to § 68.310 to clarify that reverse-battery trunks are subject to the same limitations as ground-start trunks. We are adopting AT&T's proposed addition of the words "and reverse battery" to each sub-section which refers to ground-start trunks, as both types of trunks, although differently named, are subject to the same balance limitations. AT&T also proposes other revisions to implement its proposals regarding system wiring; in view of our revisiting such issues in our companion Notice, we will not rule at this time on such changes. Finally, AT&T proposes substitution of certain repeat coil (transformer) designations for those presently contained in the figures appended to this Section, because of unavailability of the present repeat coils. The substitute repeat coils appear to have the requisite characteristics to meet the requirements of this Section, and accordingly we are adopting their designation.

33. On-Hook Impedance Limitations. Several issues are pending concerning § 68.312. First, GTE seeks the addition of a type "P" ringer, covering the frequency range of 15–35 Hertz, as a "straight line" ringer designation; it seeks a change of the lower frequency bound for a type "C" ringer from 16.0 to 15.3 Hertz; and it seeks a redesignationof the parenthetical notations on types "D" and "F" to "frequency-selective ringing." We will make the changes proposed by GTE, but we note that the parenthetical designations were not intended to be restrictive of the use of types "D" and "F" ringers, but were intended to be tutorial to those who might not realize that these ringers may not be usable in type "A" areas. Second, GTE seeks the addition of superimposed dc for the types "C"–"P" simulated ringing voltages on the theory that the lack of such superimposed dc for these types, as compared with the requirement for superimposed dc for types "A" and "B" was oversight. It was not. The entries for these ringing designations were based upon GTE's own submissions in Docket No. 19528 which did not call for superimposed dc. Since it now appears that, upon reflection, superimposed dc is required for types "C"–"P" to be representative of actual ringing conditions, as is required by the purpose of the rule, we shall adopt this proposed revision to further ensure that harm does not result.

34. GTE's ringing detection techniques for what it calls "convenience" key telephone systems, and its use of ground-referenced ringing detection circuitry for key telephone systems and PBX systems, pose other problems. These techniques are inconsistent with the on-hook impedance limitations of our rules. GTE has requested that § 68.312 be made inapplicable to PBX and key telephone systems because of the use of such designs, and notes further that certain indicating lamps manufactured by the Western Electric Company (and presumably used in the Bell System, Western Electric's by far largest customer) similarly could not be used consistent with that rule. AT&T has responded by noting that the present rule is consistent with Bell System maintenance and insulation and cable pressure test requirements, and that relaxation of § 68.312's requirements in Bell System areas should not be permitted. However, AT&T does not object to a relaxation of the requirements so long as such relaxation does not apply in Bell System service areas (which use types "A" and "B"). We cannot adopt a relaxation of the on-hook impedance requirements which would not be applicable to ringing types A and B; these two designations are general ones and are in wide use in the telephone industry, both in Bell System and Independent areas. What we will do instead to accommodate such designs is to establish a new ringing type designation, "Z." Type "Z" will designate on-hook impedance characteristics which do not conform to our rules, and equipment bearing a type "Z" designation may only be used with the consent of the local telephone company.[13] Such equipment, in essence, will only be conditionally-registered by the Commission, and will not automatically create a right of connection and use by virtue of such registration, as is the case of other registered equipment. We are confident that the amount of equipment which will bear the type "Z" designation will be limited; if abuses of the use of this designation occur, we will revisit this area in the future.

35. AT&T has proposed other revisions to § 68.312 which would refine the present voltage ranges therein-specified by establishing which specifications go with which voltages; it has proposed the addition of limitations for equipment used with ground-start facilities; and it proposes allowing trained agents of the registrant to perform action at the customer's premises which may have the effect of changing the on-hook impedance presented to the telephone network by the registered equipment. We are adopting the first proposal to clarify the existing rules. With regard to the second proposal, although we indicated in our Second Report that no party had commented that pre-trip and false-trip can occur on PBX trunks, and that therefore no on-hook impedance controls would be required for such trunks, both AT&T and GTE have now commented that these effects can occur. Therefore, we are adopting AT&T's proposed limitations for ground-start PBX trunks, and making the existing limitations applicable to loop-start PBX trunks. Finally, AT&T proposes allowing "trained, authorized agents" of the registrant to perform a form of discretionary action—to disconnect ringers and otherwise execute equipment options which affect ringer equivalence—after notification to the telephone company in accordance with § 68.106. We view AT&T's third proposal as constructive, and note that so long as the local telephone company is kept adequately informed of the actual on-hook impedance characteristics of equipment connected to its facilities, no harm will result. AT&T's proposal is reasonably directed to that end, and we are adopting it.

36. Billing Protection. AT&T proposes changes to § 68.314 to: (1) Reorganize the section for clarity; (2) accommodate reverse-battery equipment; and (3) provide an alternative method of assuring proper billing with regard to off-hook current during the first 5 seconds in the off-hook state. NATA has opposed AT&T's third proposal in the (apparently) mistaken belief that this limitation would require equipment to remain off-hook for at least 5 seconds. In reply AT&T has pointed out that the rule simply requires some minimum current flow during this 5 second interval "unless the equipment is returned to the on-hook state" (which would occur if the user were to "hang up"). Thus, the burden which NATA adverts to does not exist; voice equipment is not required to remain off-hook for at least 5 seconds. Accordingly, we are adopting the substance of the proposed revisions as they will clarify the existing rules and allow for greater flexibility in equipment designs. (See below.)

II. GTE's Petition for Partial Reconsideration of the September 20, 1976 Order

37. In our April, 1976 order in clarification of the "grandfathering", short-form and transition period procedures, 59 F.C.C. 2d 83 (1976), we ordered all telephone companies to file lists containing sufficient descriptive information to identify all terminal equipment of which the carriers were aware which was directly connected to the telephone network as of May 1, 1976. These lists were to be amalgamated and form a basis for resolving disputes concerning eligibility of equipment for "grandfathering" and short-form application procedures. Subsequent to our adoption of this order, the United States Court of Appeals, Fourth Circuit, stayed the order and then subsequently removed the stay with respect to data and ancillary equipment.

[12] The foregoing moots further consideration of proposed changes by Gaines M. Crook, which seek specification of an alternative to the "recommended test apparatus" of Figure 68.310(a).

[13] Such consent, however, may not be given so as to discriminate. If the telephone company itself provides "Z" equipment, customers must also be allowed to use "Z" equipment with similar characteristics.

38. The Organization for the Protection Advancement of Small Telephone Companies, and the National Telephone Cooperative Association, on behalf of their members, then filed a petition seeking our acceptance of a unified list of equipment prepared by the Rural Electrification Administration in lieu of indiviual submissions by their small telephone company members, and in our September 20, 1976 order, FCC 76-874, we accepted that list. GTE has filed a petition for partial reconsideration of the September order seeking deletion of items on the unified list which either were inconsistent with the stay (e.g. telephone instruments, PBX and key telephone equipment) or which were components that cannot operate without other equipment. We are granting GTE's petition because the items identified therein do not properly belong in our amalgamated list of equipment eligible for "grandfathering" and short-form application procedures; these items have been removed from the list.

III. Summary

39. In this order and in various predecessor orders, we have ruled on all of the petitions for reconsideration which are presently pending before us in Docket No. 19528. Our rulings herein have resulted in modifications to the present Part 68 rules and are contained below. In our predecessor orders we have distinguished protection of the telephone network, the object of Part 68, from compatible operation of terminal equipment and have encouraged cooperative industry-wide dissemination of information to deal with the latter. We are pleased to observe that such cooperation is presently occurring.[14] The final set of issues which still remain relate to installation and connection of PBX and key telephone equipment; these issues are treated in a companion supplemental notice of proposed rulemaking which we are also adopting today.

40. The United States Court of Appeals, Fourth Circuit, has affirmed our decisions in Docket No. 19528, including our decision to adopt a registration program applicable to all terminal equipment (except coin equipment and equipment connected to party lines), and our decision to require that registered equipment be connected to the telephone network through means of connection specified in Part 68. However, the Court has decided to maintain the present stay pendente lite to allow parties to seek review of the Court of Appeals' decision in the United States Supreme Court. In view of the continuation of the stay, our solicitation of further comments concerning PBX and key telephone equipment will not delay implementation of the registration program as to such equipment; the Court's stay will continue to apply to other than customer-provided data and ancillary equipment.

41. Although implementation of the registration presently remains stayed as to PBX and key telephone equipment, the public interest still requires expeditious resolution of the issues which we have not addressed in this order, and which we have set for further rulemaking in our companion notice. While we probably have an adequate record before us to amend the rules at this time, we are permitting a final round of comments and replies to assure that the rules which we adopt for the registration, installation and connection of PBX and key telephone equipment are economical, reasonable, and consistent with the public interest.

42. Accordingly, and for the reasons heretofore stated, It is hereby ordered, That pursuant to 47 U.S.C. 154(i), 154(j), 201-05 and 405, Part 68 of the Commission's rules and regulations, 47 CFR 68.1 et seq., is hereby revised, as shown below, effective July 20, 1977.

(Secs. 4, 201-205, 405, 48 Stat., as amended, 1066, 1070, 1071, 1072, 1095; (47 U.S.C. 154, 201-205, 405).)

Federal Communications Commission,[15]
Vincent J. Mullins,
Secretary.

[14] E.g. 41 FR 28694, July 12, 1976, and 61 F.C.C. 2d 396, 404, n. 28. The Commission wishes to recognize committee activity sponsored by the Electronic Industries Assocation and by the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers which is currently addressing dissemination of information and voluntary design criteria relating to compatible operation of terminal equipment, as well as analysis of the Part 68 technical requirements, and to express its hope that such industry-wide cooperation will continue.

Appendix A

Relationship Between Metallic-to-Longitudinal Balance and Longitudinal-to-Metallic Balance

(a) Metallic-to-Longitudinal Balance

From Figure 1a, the metallic-to-longitudinal balance is

$$BAL_{m-\ell} = 20 \log_{10} \left| \frac{V_m}{V_\ell} \right| = 20 \log_{10} \left| \frac{E_m - i_{m_1} Z_m}{i_{\ell_1} Z_\ell} \right|$$

(b) Longitudinal-to-Metallic Balance

From Figure 1b, the longitudinal-to-metallic balance is

$$BAL_{\ell-m} = 20 \log_{10} \left| \frac{V'_\ell}{V'_m} \right| = 20 \log_{10} \left| \frac{E_\ell - i_{\ell_2} Z_\ell}{i_{m_2} Z_m} \right|$$

(c) Comparison Between $BAL_{m-\ell}$ and $BAL_{\ell-m}$

If $E_m = E_\ell$, then, using the reciprocity theorem, $i_{\ell_1} = i_{m_2}$ and

$$BAL_{m-\ell} - BAL_{\ell-m} = 20 \log_{10} \left| \frac{(E - i_{m_1} Z_m)(Z_m)}{(E - i_{\ell_2} Z_\ell)(Z_\ell)} \right|$$

Where $E = E_m = E_\ell$.

...ote that these balances are only equal if $Z_\ell = Z_m$ (the test circuit impedances) and if $i_{m_1} = i_{\ell_2}$. Examining the two figures, it is clear that i_{m_1} depends on the metallic impedance of the terminating equipment and i_{ℓ_2} depends on the longitudinal impedance of the terminating equipment. Therefore, the balances in general would not be equal.

Registration Number and Ringer Equivalence of the registered terminal equipment or registered protective circuitry. The customer shall give notice to the telephone company upon final disconnection of such equipment or circuitry from the particular line(s).

(b) Systems assembled of combinations of individually registered terminal equipment and protective circuitry. Customers connecting such assemblages to the telephone network shall, before such connection is made, shall provide the following information to the telephone company:

(iii) The largest Ringer Equivalence to be presented to that line.

(2) A list of FCC Registration Numbers for equipment to be used in the system.

3. Section 68.108 is amended as follows:

§ 68.108 Incidence of harm.

Should terminal equipment or protective circuitry cause harm to the telephone network, the telephone company shall, where practicable, notify the customer that temporary discontinuance of service may be required; however, where prior notice is not practicable, the telephone company may temporarily discontinue service forthwith, if such action is reasonable in the circumstances. In case of such temporary discontinuance, the telephone company shall (a) promptly notify the customer of such temporary discontinuance, (b) afford the customer the opportunity to correct the situation which gave rise to the temporary discontinuance, and (c) inform the customer of the right to bring a complaint to the Commission pursuant to the procedures set forth in Subpart E of this part.

5. In § 68.214, the headnote and text are amended to read as follows:

§ 68.214 Changes in registered equipment and circuitry.

Changes in registered terminal equipment or registered protective circuitry shall be made as follows:

(a) No change in registered terminal equipment or registered protective circuitry that would result in any change in the information furnished the Commission pursuant to § 68.200 may be made, except after grant of a new application made on FCC Form 730.

(b) Changes which do not result in any change in the information furnished the Commission pursuant to § 68.200 may be made without express Commission approval. Provided, That prior written notification is given the Commission on FCC Form 730.

(2) Instructions that registered terminal equipment or protective circuitry may not be used with party lines or coin lines.

(3) Instructions that when trouble is experienced the customer shall disconnect the registered equipment from the telephone line to determine if the registered equipment is malfunctioning, and that if the registered equipment is malfunctioning, the use of such equipment shall be discontinued until the problem has been corrected.

(4) Instructions that the user must give notice to the telephone company in accordance with the requirements of § 68.106, and instructions specifying the Universal Service Order Code(s), other than RJ11 (see § 68.502), of means of connection of the equipment which may be required to be ordered from the telephone company if not already installed.

(c) * * *

(d) The grantee or its agent shall assure that any registered equipment or circuitry which is offered to a user shall be equipped with standard means of connection to the telephone network specified in Subpart F of this part.

7. Section 68.220 is amended as follows:

Applications for registration of terminal equipment or protective circuitry shall, in addition to the requirements of this subpart, comply with the provisions of Subpart L of Part 2 of this chapter.

8. In § 68.302, the headnote, paragraphs (d)(3) and (e)(3) are amended and paragraph (f) is added to read as follows:

§ 68.302 Environmental simulation.

(d) Metallic voltage surge. Two 800-volt peak surges of a metallic voltage (one of each polarity) having a 10-microsecond maximum rise time to crest and a 560-microsecond minimum decay time to half crest applied between tip and ring and between any other pair of connections on which lightning surges may occur (with one of the connections of the pair under test grounded) with the equipment in each of the following states:

(1) Any operational state which can affect compliance with the requirements of Part 68;

(2) Any state in which the equipment might be connected to the telephone network and from which it is capable of transferring to an operational state by an automatic or manual action required for proper use of the equipment; And, provided, That any such state can affect compliance with the requirements of this Part 68; and

(3) Any state in which the equipment might be connected to the telephone network through an automatic or manual action under all reasonably foreseeable possibilities of disconnection of connections of such equipment with primary commercial power sources (including possible loss of equipment grounding through disconnection of a third-wire ground connection contained in a primary power source plug).

All other equipment leads (telephone connections, auxiliary leads, and terminals for connection to nonregistered equipment) not being surged or connected to those being surged should be terminated in a manner which is no less severe than that which occur in normal use and affect compliance with Subpart D of this part. Also, equipment states which cannot be achieved by normal means of power shall be achieved artificially by appropriate means, if necessary to comply with the above requirements. The peak current drawn from the surge generator must not be limited to less than 100 amperes by the capabilities of the surge generator.

(e) Longitudinal voltage surge. * * *

(1) * * *

(2) * * *

(3) * * *

All other equipment leads (telephone connections, auxiliary leads, and terminals for connection to non-registered equipment) not being surged or connected to those being surged should be terminated in a manner which is no less severe than that which would occur in normal use and affect compliance with Subpart D of this part. Also, equipment states which cannot be achieved by normal means of power shall be achieved artificially by appropriate means, if necessary to comply with the above requirements.

(f) Failure modes resulting from the application of metallic and longitudinal surges. Registered terminal equipment and registered protective circuitry is permitted to reach a failure-mode state in violation of the longitudinal balance requirements of § 68.308 after application of the electrical surges specified in paragraphs (d) and (e) of this section: Provided, That:

(1) Such failure results from an intentional, designed failure-mode which has the effect of connecting telephone or auxiliary connections with earth ground; and

(2) If such a failure-mode state is reached, the equipment is designed in such a manner that it would become substantially and noticeably unusable by the user, or an indication is given to the user (e.g. an alarm), in order that such equipment can be immediately disconnected or repaired.

NOTE.—The objective of this sub-section is to allow for safety circuitry which diverts lightning-like transients to earth ground, but which may continue to maintain the earth ground connections after the transients have ceased. Such a failure-mode has the potential for causing interference resulting from longitudinal imbalance, and therefore designs must be adopted which will cause the equipment either to be disconnected or repaired rapidly after such a state is reached, should it occur in service.

9. Section 68.304 is amended as follows:

§ 68.304 Leakage current limitations.

Registered terminal equipment and registered protective circuitry shall assure that, if a voltage source is connected to the combinations listed in the table below, of the following points on such equipment:

(a) All telephone connections,

(b) All power connections,

(c) All possible combinations of exposed conductive surfaces on the exterior of such equipment or circuitry excluding terminals for connection to other terminal equipment,

(d) All terminals for connection to nonregistered equipment,

(e) Points having a conducting path to the secondaries of any power supply, and

(f) All auxiliary lead terminals.

and is gradually increased, from zero to the values listed in the table below, over a 30 second time period, and then applied continuously for 1 minute, the current in the mesh formed by the voltage source and these points shall not exceed 10 milliamperes peak at any time during this 90 second time interval.

NOTES: (a) If, in any operational state, one of the telephone connections or auxiliary leads has an intentional conducting path to earth ground, that lead may be excluded from the leakage current test in that operation state. Connections excluded for this reason must comply with the requirements of § 68.306(c) in addition to other applicable rules.

(b) Terminal port connections to registered protective circuitry shall be treated as point (4) leads for the purposes of leakage current limitation.

(c) Leakage current limitations shall be met between each of the point (4) or point (6) leads and all pairs of tip and ring telephone connections. (Testing all pairs may be done by a sequence of appropriate combinations of pairs.)

(d) Equipment states which cannot be achieved by normal means of power shall be achieved artificially by appropriate means, if necessary to comply with the requirements of this section.

10. Section 68.306(b) is amended and a new § 68.306(c) is added, as follows:

§ 68.306 Hazardous voltage limitations.

(b) Connection of nonregistered equipment to registered terminal equipment or registered protective circuitry.—(1) General. Leads to or any elements having a conducting path to telephone connections or auxiliary leads shall:

(i) Be reasonably physically separated and restrained from; not routed in the same cable as; nor use the same connector as leads or metallic paths connecting to power connections;

(ii) Be reasonably physically separated and restrained from; not routed in the same cable as; nor use adjacent pins on the same connector as metallic paths to leads to nonregistered equipment, when specification details provided to the Commission pursuant to § 68.200(g) do not show that the interface voltages are less than non-hazardous voltage source limits in § 68.306(b)(4).

(2) Connections to registered terminal equipment. The voltage measurable between auxiliary leads, auxiliary leads to ground, tip and ring, tip to ground, and ring to ground, shall not exceed 70 volts peak for more than 1 second, with tip to ring and auxiliary lead to auxiliary lead each terminated with 1500 ohms center-tapped through 1000 ohms to ground, if 120 volts rms 60 Hz. ac is applied between all connections to other equipment tied together (except connections to non-hazardous voltage sources) and ground. The source shall not be limited to less than 20 amperes continuously, nor to less than 50 amperes for 1 minute, and shall not be interrupted by an overcurrent device permitting less total energy flow than a 20 ampere time delay fuse or breaker.

(3) Connections to registered protective circuitry. The voltage measurable between auxiliary leads, auxiliary leads to ground, tip and ring, tip to ground, and ring to ground, shall not exceed 70 volts peak for more than 1 second, with tip to ring and auxiliary lead to auxiliary lead each terminated with 1500 ohms, center-tapped through 1000 ohms to ground, if either 120 or 300 volts rms 60 Hz. ac is applied:

(i) Between all protective circuitry connections, other than telephone connections (and connections to non-hazardous voltage sources), tied together and ground; and under all reasonable applications of earth ground to the protective circuitry. The source shall not be limited to less than 20 amperes continuously, nor to less than 50 amperes for 1 minute, and shall not be interrupted by an overcurrent device permitting less total energy flow than a 20 ampere time delay fuse or breaker.

(ii) Across all protective circuitry connections, other than telephone connections (and connections to non-hazardous voltage sources) which have a transmission path to the telephone connections, with alternate leads grounded;

(4) Non-hazardous voltage source. A voltage source is considered a non-hazardous voltage source if it conforms with the requirements of §§ 68.302, 68.304 and 68.306(b)(1), with all connections to the source other than primary power connections treated as "telephone connections," and if such source supplies voltages no greater than the following under all modes of operation and of failure:

(i) Ac voltages less than 42 volts peak;

(ii) Dc voltages less than 80 volts; and

(iii) Combined ac and dc voltages with the dc component between 21 and 80 volts, ac voltages less than $(55-0.6 \times V_{dc})$ peak.

(c) Hazards from exposed surfaces (to be applied for intentional conductive paths to ground as required by § 68.304). The voltage measurable between auxiliary leads, auxiliary leads to ground, tip and ring, tip and ground, and ring and ground, shall not exceed 70 volts peak for more than 1 second, with tip to ring and auxiliary lead to auxiliary lead each terminated with 1500 ohms, center-tapped through 1000 ohms to ground, if 120 volts rms 60 Hz. ac is applied between conductive exposed surfaces and ground. The source shall not be limited to less than 20 amperes continuously, nor to less than 50 amperes for 1 minute, and shall not be interrupted by an overcurrent device permitting less total energy flow than a 20 ampere time delay fuse or breaker.

11. In § 68.308, paragraphs (a)(1), (a)(3), (a)(4) and (c) are amended to read as follows:

§ 68.308 Signal power limitations.

(a) Voiceband metallic signal power.—(1) Limitations on internal signal sources not intended for network control signaling. For registered terminal equipment or registered protective circuitry, other than data equipment or data protective circuitry which is registered in accordance with § 68.308(a)(4), the maximum power of other than live voice signals delivered to a loop simulator circuit shall not exceed −9 dB with respect to one milliwatt, when averaged over any 3-second interval. No manufacturing tolerance is allowed which would permit this power to be exceeded by any unit of equipment.

(2) Limitations on internal signal sources primarily intended for network control signaling, contained in voice and data equipment. For all operating conditions of registered terminal equipment and registered protective circuitry, the maximum power delivered to a loop simulator circuit shall not exceed one milliwatt when averaged over any 3-second interval, during normal usage.

(3) One port terminal equipment and protective circuitry with provision for through transmission from other equipment, excluding data equipment and data protective circuitry which is registered in accordance with § 68.308(a)(4). (i) Registered terminal equipment and registered protective circuitry shall have no adjustments that will allow net amplification to occur in the through-transmission path within the frequency range of 200 to 4000 Hertz, when measured from a 600 source into a loop simulator circuit. The net gain of such equipment shall be designed so as not to exceed 0 dB; however, the gain for any single unit of registered terminal equipment or registered protective circuitry may exceed 0 dB by as much as 1.5 dB, provided that the net gain, averaged over all such units, is no greater than 0 dB.

(ii) Where through-transmission equipment provides a dc electrical signal to equipment connected therewith (e.g. for powering of electro-acoustic transducers), dc conditions shall be presented which fall within the range of conditions provided by a loop simulator circuit, unless the combination of the through-transmission equipment and equipment connected therewith is registered as a combination which conforms to § 68.308(a)(1)–(2).

(iii) Through-transmission equipment to which remotely-connected data terminal equipment may be connected shall not be equipped with, or connected to, either a Universal or Programmed data jack (see § 68.308(a)(4)).

(4) Limitations on registered data terminal equipment and registered one-port protective circuitry with provision for through-transmission from data equipment. When such equipment or circuitry is used for the transmission of data signals to the telephone network, it shall assure in all operating conditions, other than during network control signaling (see § 68.308(a)(2)), that one of the following limitations is met, depending upon the means of connection of the equipment or circuitry to the telephone network. The transmitted signal power, averaged over any 3-second time interval, delivered to a loop simulator circuit, shall not exceed:

(i) A maximum level adjustable to no greater than −4 dB with respect to one milliwatt, for connection to a Universal Data Jack used in the "fixed-loss loop" configurations (see § 68.502(e)).

(ii) A maximum level determined by means of connections in a Programmed Data Jack, or Universal Data Jack used in the "programmed" configurations (see § 68.502(e)), which level can be programmed in 1 dB steps from −12 dB to 0 dB with respect to one milliwatt.

(iii) A nonadjustable level no greater than −9 dB with respect to one milliwatt for connection by means of connection other than the Programmed or Universal Data Jacks. Equipment or circuitry designed in accordance with the −9 dB limitation shall conform to § 68.308(a)(1) and therefore be treated as non-live voice equipment; Provided, That the data terminal equipment or through-transmission equipment shall not be equipped with or connected to either a Universal or Programmed Data Jack, unless a registered adapter is interposed between such jacks and any through-transmission path to the telephone network, to assure compliance with the −9 dB limitation.

The maximum signal power specified in subdivisions (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph may exceed the specified maximum level by as much as 1.0 dB; Provided, that the power, averaged over all units of the equipment, complies with the specified maximum. In accordance with § 68.308(a)(1), the maximum signal power specified in subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph may not be exceeded by any units.

(c) Longitudinal voltage except during network control signaling. At the telephone connections of registered terminal equipment and registered protective circuitry, the longitudinal voltage shall be less than the maximum voltages listed below when measured across the specified longitudinal termination and a 600 ohm metallic termination in the states and under the conditions specified in paragraph (b) of this section for metallic signal power above 4005 Hertz.

Frequency band	Maximum voltage (dBV)[1]	Longitudinal termination impedance (ohms)
100 Hz to 4 kHz	−53 (2.2 mV)	500
4 kHz to 10 kHz	−57 (1.4 mV)	500
10 kHz to 25 kHz	−62 (0.80 mV)	300
25 kHz to 40 kHz	−74 (0.20 mV)	200
40 kHz to 1 MHz	−80 (0.10 mV)	200

[1] dBV is the voltage in decibels relative to 1 V rms.

In the 100 to 4000 Hertz band, the −53 dBBV limit applies to the longitudinal voltage that is the resultant of all the component voltages in that band after they are weighted according to the curve in Figure 68.308. The weighting curve in Figure 68.309 has an absolute gain of unity at 4000 Hertz. A circuit which provides a longitudinal termination impedance of 500 ohms is depicted in Figure 68.310(g) in the longitudinal Balance Limitations section of these rules. The specific resistor values depicted therein should be appropriately changed to yield other Y-networks with a metallic termination of 600 ohms impedance and with the 200 and 300 ohm aggregate longitudinal termination impedances required in this section.

12. In § 68.310, paragraphs (a), (d), (f) and (h) are amended and (i) is added to read as follows:

§ 68.310 Longitudinal balance limitations.

(a) Technical Description and Application. The metallic-to-longitudinal balance coefficient, BALANCEm−1, is expressed as:

where e_L is the longitudinal voltage produced across a 500-ohm longitudinal termination and e_M is the metallic voltage across the tip-ring interface of the input port when a voltage (at any frequency $200 < f < 400$ Hertz) is applied from a balanced 600-ohm metallic source. The source voltage should be set such that $e_M = 0.775$ volts rms (0 dBm) when a 600-ohm termination is substituted for the terminal equipment. The minimum balance coefficient specified in this section (as appropriate) shall be equalled or exceeded at all values of dc loop current that the port under test is capable of drawing when attached to a loop simulator circuit (see § 68.3). An illustrative test circuit that satisfies the above conditions is shown in Figure 68.310(a); other means may be used to determine the balance coefficient specified herein: Provided, That adequate documentation of the appropriateness, precision and accuracy of the alternative means is provided by the applicant. The minimum balance requirements specified below shall be equalled or exceeded under all reasonable conditions of the application of earth ground to the equipment or protective circuitry under test:

Equipment state	Minimum balance requirement (decibel)	Frequency range (hertz)
Subpars.:
(b)	Both on-hook and off-hook	60 200 to 1000.
		40 1000 to 4000.

(h)	Off-hook	40 200 to 4000.

• • • • •

(d) Registered one-port equipment for ground-start and reverse-battery applications. The one-port shall be driven from a 600-ohm metallic source having a 500-ohm longitudinal impedance.

• • • • •

(f) Registered protective circuitry for ground-start and reverse-battery applications. These criteria shall be met with either terminal of the interface to other equipment connected to earth ground. The interface to other equipment shall be terminated in an impedance which will be reflected to the telephone connection as 600-ohms in the off-hook state of the protective circuit. Figure 68.310(f) shows the interface of the protective circuitry under test and the required arrangement at the interface to other equipment.

• • • • •

(h) Registered multi-port equipment for ground-start and reverse-battery applications. These criteria shall be satisfied for all network ports when all ports not under test are terminated in their appropriate networks for both their on-hook and off-hook states, as will be identified below, and when interface connections other than the ports are terminated in circuits appropriate to that interface. The minimum balance coefficients shall also be satisfied for all values of dc loop current that the registered equipment is capable of drawing through each of its ports when these ports are attached to a loop simulator circuit. The port under test shall be driven from a 600-ohm metallic source having a 500-ohm longitudinal impedance. The terminations for all ports other than the particular one whose balance coefficient is being measured shall have a metallic impedance of 600-ohms and a longitudinal impedance of 500-ohms in their off-hook states and they shall be unterminated in their on-hook states. Figure 68.310(g) shows this termination.

(i) Ringing type Z equipment for loop-start applications. Equipment which has on-hook impedance characteristics which do not conform to the requirements of § 68.312 (e.g. "Type Z"), need comply with a minimum balance requirement of 40 dB in the frequency range 200 to 4000 Hertz, under the applicable subparagraph above. See § 68.312 (f) for conditions upon registration of "Type Z" equipment.

13. In § 68.312, paragraphs (a), (a)(1)(i) and (a)(1)(ii) are amended, (b) is redesignated as (c) as amended and new paragraphs (b), (d), (e) and (f) are added to read as follows:

§ 68.312 On-hook impedance limitations.

(a) Limitations on individual equipment intended for operation on loop-start telephone facilities.—(1) Registered terminal equipment and registered protective circuitry shall conform to the following limitations, for each Ringing Type which is listed as part of its Ringer Equivalence:

(i) The dc resistance between tip and ring conductors, and between each of the tip and ring conductors and earth ground shall be greater than 10 megohms for all dc voltages up to and including 100 volts.

(ii) The dc resistance between tip and ring conductors, and between each of the tip and ring conductors and earth ground shall be greater than 30 kilohms for all dc voltages between 100 and 200 volts.

(iii) • • •

(iv) • • •

(2) • • •

(b) Limitations on individual equipment intended for operation on ground-start telephone facilities. Registered terminal equipment and registered protective circuitry shall conform to the following limitations for each Ringing Type which is listed as part of its Ringer Equivalence Number:

(1) During the application of simulated ringing, as listed in Table I below, the total dc current flowing between tip and ring conductors shall not exceed 3.0 milliamperes.

(2) During the application of simulated ringing, as listed in Table I below, the total impedance of the parallel combination of the ac impedance across tip and ring conductors and the ac impedance from the ring conductor to ground (with ground on the tip conductor) shall be greater than the value specified in Table I. Except as provided in paragraph (a)(2) of this section, such impedance shall be less than 40 kilohms.

(c) Ringer equivalence definition. The values of each of the parameters for which a limitation is imposed in paragraph (a) or (b) of this section, as appropriate, shall be determined for a representative unit under test. Quotients of each such value shall be formed according to the following:

(1) For individual equipment intended for operation on loop-start telephone facilities:

(i) 50 megohms divided by the minimum measured on-hook dc resistance for all dc voltages up to and including 100 volts.

(ii) 150 kilohms divided by the minimum measured on-hook dc resistance for all dc voltages between 100 and 200 volts.

(iii) The maximum total dc current flowing between tip and ring during the application of simulated ringing as listed in Table I below, in milliamperes, divided by 0.6 milliampere.

(iv) Five times the impedance limitation listed in Table I, below, divided by the minimum measured ac impedance, defined as in paragraph (a)(1)(iv) of this section, during the application of simulated ringing as listed in Table I.

(2) For individual equipment intended for operation on ground-start telephone facilities:

(i) The maximum total dc current flowing between tip and ring conductors during the application of simulated ringing as listed in Table I below, in milliamperes, divided by 0.6 milliamperes.

(ii) Five times the impedance limitation listed in Table I below divided by the minimum measured ac impedance, defined in paragraph (b)(1)(ii) of this section, during the application of simulated ringing as listed in Table I.

The largest of the unitless quotients so formed, followed by the Ringing Type letter indicator representing the frequency range for which that number is valid, is the Ringer Equivalence. If Ringer Equivalence is to be stated for more than one Ringing Type, testing shall be performed at each frequency range to which Ringer Equivalence is to be determined in accordance with the above, and the largest resulting Ringer Equivalence number so determined will be associated with each Ringing Type letter designation for which it is valid.

(d) Registered terminal equipment and registered protective circuitry shall have at least one ringer equivalence number shown on the registration label. Where options that will vary the ringer equivalence are involved, either each option that results in a ringer equivalence number greater than 0.1 and its corresponding Ringer Equivalence shall be listed on the registration label, or the largest ringer equivalence number that can result from such options shall be stated on the label. A trained, authorized agent of the Grantee may disconnect ringers, bridge ringers to another line, or execute options affecting ringer equivalence after the telephone company has been notified in accordance with § 68.106.

(e) All registered terminal equipment and registered protective circuitry which can affect on-hook impedance shall be assigned a Ringer Equivalence. The sum of all such ringer equivalences on a given telephone line or loop shall not exceed 5; in some cases, a system which has a total ringer equivalence of 5 or less may not be usable on a given telephone line or loop.

(f) Ringing Type Z Equipment. Equipment which has on-hook impedance characteristics which do not conform to the requirements of this Section may be conditionally registered, notwithstanding the requirements of this section: Provided, That it is labelled with a Ringing Type designation "Z". It should be noted that registration of equipment bearing the designation "Z" does not necessarily confer any right of connection to the telephone network under these rules; any equipment registered with the type Z designation may only be used with the consent of the local telephone company: Provided, That the local telephone company does not discriminate in its treatment of equipment bearing the type Z designation.

[1] Requirements at these frequencies, which are identical to type A frequencies, are not consistent with the type A requirements; equipment intended for use both on type A facilities and facilities using frequency-selective ringing must comply with the requirements on types A, D, and F independently.

14. In § 68.314, paragraph (b) is amended and (c) and (d) are added to read as follows:

§ 68.314 Billing protection.

(b) Voice and data equipment on-hook signal requirements. Registered protective circuitry and registered terminal equipment shall comply with the following:

(1) The power delivered into a loop simulator circuit in the on-hook state, by loop-start or ground-start equipment, shall not exceed −55 dB with respect to one milliwatt within the frequency band from 200 to 4000 Hertz. Registered protective circuitry shall also assure that for any input level up to 10 dB above the maximum level that is expected under normal operation, the power delivered to the loop simulator circuit does not exceed the above limits.

(2) The power delivered into a loop simulator circuit in the on-hook state by reverse battery equipment shall not exceed −55 dB with respect to one milliwatt, unless the equipment is arranged to inhibit incoming signals.

(c) Voice and data equipment loop current requirements. The loop current through registered terminal equipment or registered protective circuitry, when connected to a loop simulator circuit with the 600 ohm resistor and 500 microfarad capacitor therein disconnected, shall, for at least 5 seconds after the equipment goes to the normal off-hook state which would occur in response to ringing (called party condition) shall:

(1) Be at least as great as the current obtained in the same loop simulator circuit with a 200 ohm resistance connected across tip and ring in place of the registered terminal equipment or registered protective circuitry; or

(2) Not decrease by more than 25 percent from its maximum value attained during this 5-second interval; unless the equipment is returned to the on-hook state during the above 5-second interval.

(d) Signaling interference. Registered terminal equipment and registered protective circuitry shall not deliver signals into a loop simulator circuit, from sources internal to the registered equipment or circuitry, with energy in the 2450 to 2750 Hertz band unless an at least equal amount of energy is present in the 800 to 2450 Hertz band.

CHAPTER II—NATIONAL MARINE FISHERIES SERVICE, NATIONAL OCEANIC AND ATMOSPHERIC ADMINISTRATION, DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

PART 255—FISHING VESSEL OBLIGATION GUARANTEE PROGRAM PROCEDURES

AGENCY: National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Commerce.

ACTION: Amendment to procedures.

SUMMARY: This amendment increases fees to be paid by those applying for or receiving guarantees under the Fishing Vessel Obligation Guarantee Program. This increase is required because of the administrative decision not to seek appropriated funds to pay program administration costs.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Effective for all applications received on or after June 27, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Michael L. Grable, Chief, Financial Assistance Division, National Marine Fisheries Service, Washington, D.C. 20235 (202–634–7496).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On April 27, 1977, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration published a proposed amendment (42 FR 21489) to increase the fees paid by those applying for or receiving guarantees under this program. As stated in the proposal, the increase is required because of the administrative decision not to seek appropriated funds to pay program administration costs.

One comment received in response to the proposed change suggested that the decision not to seek appropriations for administration of the fund be re-evaluated and the increase in fees be eliminated. Since the decision not to seek appropriated funds for this program's cost of administration had been thoroughly evaluated previously without a reversal of the policy that this program should be made self-financing if possible and since the comment presented no new fact, the fee increase will be adopted as proposed.

The Amendment provides for an increase in fees as follows:

(1) Guarantee fee (annual fee based on unpaid principal balance of guaranteed obligation). Increase is from ½ of 1 percent to ¾ of 1 percent.

(2) Filing and Commitment fee (one-time fee based on initial principal amount of obligation to be guaranteed). Fee had previously been ½ of 1 percent of first $100,000 of original principal amount of obligation to be guaranteed, ¼ of 1 percent of the next $200,000, and nothing thereafter. Increase will be to a total filing and commitment fee of ½ of 1 percent of the first $300,000 of the obligation to be guaranteed and ¼ of 1 percent on the remaining balance (with no ceiling). One-half of the total amount of the new filing and commitment fee is due as a filing fee at the time of application and is non-refundable. The other one-half of the new total amount is not payable unless the application is approved and is due as a commitment fee at the time the Secretary's commitment is issued.

Additionally, a filing fee is for the first time established for refinancings and assumptions of previously guaranteed obligations at ¼ of 1 percent of the unpaid principal balance of guaranteed obligations to be refinanced or assumed.

Accordingly, 50 CFR Part 255 is amended as follows:

§ 255.3 [Amended]

1. In § 255.3(g)(1) substitute "Three-quarters" for "One-half."

2. Substitute the following for 255.4(f).

§ 255.4 Applications.

(f) (1) Filing fee. The filing fee for all applications (other than those in paragraph (f)(3) of this section) shall be an amount equal to ¼ of 1 percent of the first $300,000 (or portion thereof) of the principal amount of the obligation to be guaranteed and ⅛ of 1 percent of the balance of that obligation. This filing fee will be retained by the Secretary regardless of the application's disposition.

(2) Commitment fee. The commitment fee for all approved applications (other than those in paragraph (f)(3) of this section) shall be an amount equal to ¼ of 1 percent of the first $300,000 (or portion thereof) of the principal amount of the obligation to be guaranteed and ⅛ of 1 percent of the balance. This commitment fee is due when the Secretary first advises the applicant that its application for a guarantee has been approved and must be received by the Secretary before the actual commitment is issued. This amount, once the Secretary's commitment is issued, will be retained by the Secretary regardless of the commitment's subsequent disposition.

(3) Refinancing or assumption fee. The fee for refinancing or assuming previously guaranteed obligations shall be ¼ of 1 percent of the principal amount of the guaranteed obligation to be refinanced or assumed. This fee must accompany the application for refinancing or assumption and will be retained by the Secretary regardless of the application's disposition. Where an assumption serves mainly to protect the Secretary's interest (rather than principally as a convenience to the parties involved) the assumption fee may, in the Secretary's discretion, be waived.

(4) Where payable. All checks should be made payable to "NMFS, NOAA, FSFF—Commerce" and delivered to the Regional National Marine Fisheries Service Office processing the application involved.

By order of the Administrator, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Dated: June 21, 1977.

WILMOT N. HESS,
Acting Associate Administrator.

PART 280—PACIFIC TUNA FISHERIES

Miscellaneous Amendments

ACTION: Amendments to Final Rulemaking.

SUMMARY: Under the Tuna Conventions Act of 1950, as amended, the United States has an obligation to assist the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission in obtaining accurate reports of yellowfin tuna catches by U.S. tuna vessels fishing under international management quotas in the Eastern Tropical Pacific Ocean.

Amended reporting requirements are being implemented to require U.S. flag tuna purse seine vessels which fish outside the Commission's Yellowfin Regulatory Area (CYRA) to report to the National Marine Fisheries Service prior to leaving port, prior to departing the CYRA and prior to reentering the CYRA. The reports are necessary to accurately assess the tonnage of yellowfin tuna taken inside and outside the regulatory area during the open season.

EFFECTIVE DATE: June 24, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Gerald V. Howard, Regional Director, Southwest Region, National Marine Fisheries Service, 300 South Ferry Street, Room 2016, Terminal Island, California 90731 (213–548–2575).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission (IATTC) has established an annual quota for yellowfin tuna. Pursuant to section 6(c) of the Tuna Conventions Act of 1950, as amended, the U.S. has an obligation to assist the Commission in obtaining accurate reports of tuna catches by U.S. vessels fishing inside the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission's Yellowfin Regulatory Area (CYRA) during the open season. It is necessary to know the location of the vessels on the fishing grounds to allocate accurately yellowfin tuna catches by U.S. vessels fishing inside the CYRA.

Final regulations for the Pacific Tuna Fisheries were published May 20, 1977. On May 25, the National Marine Fisheries Service became aware that at least two tuna purse seiners might be operating outside the CYRA during the open season. On May 28, approximately 31 vessels were known to be operating outside the regulatory area. By May 30, 37 vessels were operating outside the CYRA. This is the first time since regulations were originally promulgated in 1966 that vessels have fished outside the CYRA during the open season.

The present reporting requirements for fishing this area do not provide adequate information to assess the tonnage of yellow tuna being taken inside and outside the CYRA. By requiring reports similar to those required during the closed season, adequate catch information can be accumulated to assess properly the current fishing effort. The closed season reporting requirements to be adopted for the open season are that a vessel must report, 48 hours prior to departure from port, 24 hours prior to departing the CYRA and 24 hours prior to reentering the CYRA. The requirement for daily reporting while outside the CYRA is already in the regulations but of itself is not sufficient to provide adequate information. For the above stated reasons, it is hereby for good cause found that the notice, public procedure and delayed effectiveness of provisions of 5 U.S.C. 553 are impractical and contrary to the public interest. These amendments are, therefore, effective June 24, 1977, as published.

Issued at Washington, D.C., and dated June 21, 1977.

WINFRED H. MEIBOHM,
Associate Director, National Marine Fisheries Service.

In consideration of the foregoing 50 CFR 280.6(b) is amended to read as follows:

§ 280.6 Procedures for fishing inside and outside CYRA on open season trips.

* * * * *

(b) Any fishing vessel electing to fish in the Pacific Ocean, but outside the regulatory area, shall report to the Regional Director, within 48 hours before leaving port, giving the name of the reporting vessel and the port of departure; within 24 hours before leaving the regulatory area, giving the latitude of departure, the approximate time of departure, and the tonnage by species aboard; and, within 24 hours before returning to the regulatory area, giving the latitude of reentry, the approximate time of reentry, and the tonnage by species aboard.

(1) Vessels which are at sea and elect to fish outside the CYRA in the Pacific Ocean may do so provided they report departing the CYRA 24 hours prior to departure.

(2) Vessels may fish both inside and outside the CYRA on the same voyage without restriction or well inspection.

(3) During the open yellowfin tuna season, every fishing vessel operating in the Pacific Ocean, but outside the regulatory area, shall transmit daily a message between 1600 Coordinated Universal Time (C.U.T.) and 1800 C.U.T. The message shall be transmitted directly to Coast Guard Radio San Francisco (NMC) on frequency 16,565.0, 12,421.0, or 8,281.2 KHz and shall state: "This message is being transmitted in compliance with the U.S. Eastern Tropical Pacific Yellowfin Tuna Regulations and confirms that the vessel (name of reporting vessel) is fishing in the Pacific Ocean, but outside the regulatory area as of this date (give date)."

SUMMARY: At the request of the Pacific Fishery Management Council, the Secretary amends the emergency regulations of May 24, 1977 (42 FR 26580) to provide fishing rights to the Quileute Indian Tribe in a portion of Management Area A, from May 1, 1977, to October 31, 1977. FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Mr. Donald Johnson, Northwest Regional Director, National Marine Fisheries Service, Seattle, Washington, 98109 (206-442-7575).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: During the Pacific Fishery Management Council meetings on June 13-14, 1977, in Los Angeles, California, a representative of the Quileute Tribal Council requested recognition in the Ocean Salmon Management Plan of that tribe's treaty fishing rights.

The terms and conditions for fishing were discussed by the subcommittee of the Council and the representative of the Quileute tribe on June 14.

The Council, in a public meeting on June 14, 1977, voted to adopt a second amendment to the Fishery Management Plan for "Commercial and Recreational Salmon Fisheries off the Coasts of Washington, Oregon, and California" which would authorize for the Quileute Tribe an all-species salmon trolling season from May 1 to October 31, 1977, within the designated area.

Therefore, under section 305(e)(2) of the Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976, the Secretary hereby amends the emergency regulations which implement the fishery management plan for the Commercial and Recreational Salmon Fisheries off the Coasts of Washington, Oregon, and California.

Dated: June 22, 1977 at Washington, D.C.

PART 294—AVAILABILITY OF OFFICIAL INFORMATION

Disclosure of Information From Official Personnel Folders

AGENCY: Civil Service Commission.

ACTION: Final regulation.

SUMMARY: In order to comply with the requirement of subsection (a)(3) of the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552, that information be made available to "any person," the regulations are amended to remove the restriction on disclosure of the name, present and past position titles, grades, salaries, and duty stations of a present or former Government employee when this information is sought for commercial or other solicitation purposes. The information will not be disclosed when it is subject to one of the exemptions of the Freedom of Information Act, as, for example, when the information is requested in such a way that disclosure would reveal information beyond the five items, the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

EFFECTIVE DATE: June 24, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Accordingly 5 CFR 294.702 is amended by revising paragraph (a), adding a new paragraph (b) and relettering present paragraphs (b) through (f) as follows:

(b) Disclosure of this information will not be made where the information requested is a list of present or past position titles, grades, salaries, and/or duty stations of Government employees which is determined by the agency official responsible for custody of that information, is:

(1) Selected in such a way as to constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy because the nature of the request calls for a response that would reveal more about the employees on whom information is sought than the five enumerated items; or

(2) Would otherwise be protected from mandatory disclosure under an exemption of the Freedom of Information Act.

(c) In addition to the information that may be made available under paragraph (a) of this section, the following information may be made available to a prospective employer of a Government employee or former Government employee:

(1) Tenure of employment:

(2) Civil service status;

(3) Length of service in the agency and the Government; and

(4) When separated, the date and reason for separation shown on the Notification of Personnel Action, Standard Form 50.

(d) In addition to the information to be made available under paragraphs (a) and (c) of this section, the home address of an employee shall be made available to a police or court official on receipt of a proper request stating that an indictment has been returned against the employee or that complaint, information, accusation, or other writ involving nonsupport or a criminal offense has been filed against the employee and the employee's address is needed for service of a summons, warrant, subpena, or other legal process.

(e) The General Services Administration, National Archives and Records Service, may make information from the Official Personnel Folder of an employee separated from the service available to a person engaged in research for historical or educational purposes or for similar purposes when the person has written permission from the Commission to receive such information. This permission may be requested in writing from:

Director, Bureau of Manpower Information Systems, U.S. Civil Service Commission, 1900 E Street, NW., Washington, D.C. 20415.

Requests for this type of information should include identifying information as described in § 294.106(c)(1) of this part, and verification from a publisher, educational research, or other similarly recognized institution that the information is being sought for historical, educational, or other similar purposes. Except as provided in § 294.703(a) of this part, information made available under this paragraph shall be in the form of an abstract of the former employee's service in the Government and, when he has been separated at least five years, an abstract of his educational experience background as reflected in his application for employment with the Government. Information that is derogatory to the former employee shall not be made available under this paragraph.

(f) In addition to the information to be made available under paragraph (a) of this section, the Social Security Account Number and place of actual residence shall be disclosed to a State or local tax authority, or both, as provided in the Office of Management and Budget Circular No. A–38 revised.

(g) Except as provided in paragraphs (a) through (f) of this section, information required to be included in an Official Personnel Folder by the instructions of the Commission is not available to the public.

Title 29—Labor

CHAPTER V—WAGE AND HOUR DIVISION, DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

SUBCHAPTER B—STATEMENTS OF GENERAL POLICY OR INTERPRETATIONS NOT DIRECTLY RELATED TO REGULATIONS

PART 775—GENERAL

AGENCY: Department of Labor.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: The Supreme Court ruled on June 24, 1976, in National League of Cities v. Usery that the minimum wage and overtime compensation provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act could not constitutionally be applied to State and local government employees who are engaged in traditional governmental activities. When the case was sent back to Federal district court for entry of a final judgment, the district court requested the Department of Labor to create a procedure by which to identify those governmental functions which are nontraditional, and therefore still constitutionally subject to the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. This rule sets forth those procedures in a special enforcement policy which has been endorsed by the district court.

EFFECTIVE DATE: June 24, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Mr. Carl W. Gerig, Jr., Deputy Associate Solicitor, Fair Labor Standards Division, Office of the Solicitor, U.S. Department of Labor, Room N–2620–A, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20210, Telephone No. 202–523–7834.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Fair Labor Standards Act, as originally enacted in 1938, did not apply to employees employed by States or political subdivisions. The first such application was in 1966, when Congress extended the Act's coverage (including the prohibition against sex-based wage differentials adopted by the Equal Pay Act of 1963) to employees of States and other public enterprises engaged in operating transit companies, hospitals, schools and related institutions. The constitutionality of this extension of the Act's provisions was upheld in Maryland v. Wirtz, 392 U.S. 183.

In 1974, Congress amended the Fair Labor Standards Act to cover virtually all public sector employees except those specifically exempt as one who holds a public elective office or is appointed by such an office holder to be a "member of his personal staff" or "to serve on a policymaking level" or as an immediate advisor "with respect to the constitutional or legal powers of his office." The 1974 amendments also extended the provisions of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act to all State and local government employees, except those who were elected or appointed by elected officials to the personal staffs or to policymaking positions.

On June 24, 1976, the Supreme Court ruled in National League of Cities, Inc., v. Usery, 426 U.S. 833, that the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act could not constitutionally be applied to State and local government employees who were engaged in traditional governmental activities. The Court expressly overruled its earlier decision in Maryland v. Wirtz insofar as that decision upheld the application of the Act's minimum wage and overtime provisions to public school and hospital employees. The Court's decision did not affect the continued application of the Act's minimum wage and overtime provisions to employees engaged in nontraditional functions nor did it affect the application to all nonexempt employees (including those engaged in traditional governmental functions) of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, or of the other substantive provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act other than its minimum wage and overtime provisions. Because the Court did not establish a test for distinguishing between traditional and nontraditional governmental functions for purposes of applying the Act's minimum wage and overtime provisions, the three-judge district court to which the case was remanded requested the Secretary to propose a means of providing interpretative guidance to public employers in identifying the nontraditional functions which are constitutionally subject to the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. The court also indicated that the States and political subdivisions should not be subject to an award for "liquidated damages" (over and above back wages) except as to activities which had already been identified as nontraditional. In response to this request, the Secretary submitted a proposal for the amendment of the Secretary's enforcement policy stated in 29 CFR 775. This proposal was approved by the court on March 9, 1977. The amendment would add §§ 775.2 and 775.3 by stating a "special enforcement policy" concerning the application of the Fair Labor Standards Act to the States and political subdivisions. It is published below as it was approved by the court, but with the addition of the last phrase to § 775.2(d), beginning with the words "or for periods * * *" which was added for purposes of clarity. Official citations have also been added.

PREPARATION OF DOCUMENT: This document was prepared under the direction and control of Warren D. Landis, Acting Administrator, Wage and Hour Division, and Carin Ann Clauss, Solicitor of Labor.

Accordingly, 29 CFR Part 775 is amended by amending the table of contents and by adding new §§ 775.2 and 775.3 as follows:

1. The table of contents is amended to read as follows:

Sec.
775.0 General enforcement policy.
775.1 Advisory interpretations announced by the administrator.

Sec.
775.2 Special enforcement policy concerning States and political subdivisions.

AUTHORITY: Fair Labor Standards Act, 52 Stat. 1060, 29 U.S.C. 201 et seq.

2. There is added to Part 775 a new § 775.2 which reads as follows:

§ 775.2 Special Enforcement Policy Concerning States and Political Subdivisions.

(a) On June 24, 1976, the United States Supreme Court ruled in National League of Cities, et al. v. Usery, 426 U.S. 833, 96 S. Ct. 2465, 49 L. Ed. 2d 245, that the mininmum wage and overtime compensation provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) are not constitutionally applicable to the integral operations of the States and their political subdivisions in areas of traditional governmental functions. Such areas include, among others, schools and hospitals, fire prevention, police protection, sanitation, public health, and parks and recreation. They do not include, among others, the operation of a railroad by a State. 426 U.S. at 854, n. 18.

(b) In view of the National League decision, the Secretary will not file suit to enforce the minimum wage and overtime compensation provisions of the FLSA against a State or its political subdivisions unless at least 30 days notice has first been given that, in the opinion of the Administrator, the activities in question are not integral operations in areas of traditional governmental functions. Such notice will be provided either by specific notification of the employing body in question or by general notification by publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER in the form of amendments to § 775.3. A reasonable opportunity will be allowed the employing body, after the notice of the administrative determination, to come into compliance voluntarily before suit is brought.

(c) Each such notice will be made available to wage-hour reporting services and to any interested person or association, for information or further publication, except for deletions reasonably necessary to protect the privacy of individual employers and employees.

(d) Because of the complexity of the questions raised by the National League decision, it would be inappropriate to seek liquidated damages in addition to back pay in cases to enforce the minimum wage and overtime compensation provisions of the Act against States or their political subdivisions, except as to activities determined by prior controlling judicial decision, or by prior administrative ruling published in the FEDERAL REGISTER, not to be integral operations in areas of traditional governmental functions. The Secretary will therefore seek relief under Section 17, which does not authorize additional liquidated damages, and not under Section 16(c), as to activities not covered by such decision or ruling, or for periods of employment prior to the publication of such decision or ruling.

(e) As already noted, the National League decision applies only to the minimum wage and overtime compensation provisions of the FLSA. This section and § 775.3 accordingly do not apply to claims arising under:

(1) The Equal Pay Act of 1963 (see Usery v. Allegheny Co. Institution Dist., 544 F.2d 148 (3rd Cir., 1976)).

(2) The Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (see Usery v. Bd. of Educ. of Salt Lake City, 421 F.Supp. 718 (D. Utah, 1976)).

(3) The child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

(4) The protective provisions of Section 15(a)(3) of the Act, making it unlawful to discriminate against any employee for participating or assisting in FLSA proceedings.

3. There is added to Part 775 a new § 775.3 which reads as follows:

§ 755.3 Nontraditional functions of States and their political subdivisions.

(a) In the National League decision, it was made clear that the operation of a railroad by a State or its political subdivision is not an integral operation in the area of traditional governmental functions. 426 U.S. 883, 854, n. 18.

(b) From time to time, this Section will be amended to list other operations determined by the Courts or by the Administrator not to be such integral operations. Listing in this Section will serve as a form of notice under the provisions of § 775.2 (b).

Signed at Washington, D.C., on June 22, 1977.

RAY MARSHALL,
Secretary of Labor.

CHAPTER IX—AGRICULTURAL MARKETING SERVICE (MARKETING AGREEMENTS AND ORDERS; FRUITS, VEGETABLES, NUTS), DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

[Lemon Reg. 98]

PART 910—LEMONS GROWN IN CALIFORNIA AND ARIZONA

Limitation of Handling

AGENCY: Agricultural Marketing Service, USDA.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: This regulation establishes the quantity of California-Arizona lemons that may be shipped to fresh market during the weekly regulation period June 26-July 2, 1977. This regulation is needed to provide for orderly marketing of fresh lemons for this regulation period because of the production and marketing situation confronting the lemon industry.

EFFECTIVE DATE: June 26, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Charles R. Brader, Deputy Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250 (202-447-3545).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: (a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the amended marketing agreement and Order No. 910, as amended (7 CFR Part 910), regulating the handling of lemons grown in California and Arizona, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601-674), and upon the basis of the recommendations and information submitted by the Lemon Administrative Committee established under the amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is found that the limitation of handling of such lemons, as provided in this regulation will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) The need for this regulation to limit the quantity of lemons that may be marketed during the specified week stems from the production and marketing situation confronting the lemon industry.

(i) The committee has submitted its recommendation for the quantity of lemons it considers advisable to be handled during the specified week. The recommendation resulted from consideration of the factors covered in the order. The committee further reports the demand for lemons is similar to last week Average f.o.b. price was $6.55 per carton the week ended June 18, 9177, compared to $6.65 per carton the previous week Track and rolling supplies at 240 cars were up 15 cars from last week.

(ii) Having considered the recommendation and information submitted by the committee, and other available information, the Secretary finds that the quantity of lemons which may be handled should be established as provided in this regulation.

(3) It is further found that it is impracticable and is contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule-making procedure, and postpone the effective date until 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (5 U.S.C. 553), because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this regulation is based became available and the time when it must become effective to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient. A reasonable time is permitted, for preparation for the effective time; and good cause exists for making the regulation effective as specified. The committee held an open meeting during the current week, after giving due notice, to consider supply and market conditions for lemons and the need for regulation. Interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit information and views at this meeting. The recommendation and supporting information for regulation during the period specified were promptly submitted to the Secretary after the meeting was held, and information concerning the provisions and effective time has been provided to handlers of lemons. It is necessary, to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this regulation effective as specified. The committee meeting was held on June 21, 1977.

(b) Order. (1) The quantity of lemons grown in California and Arizona which may be handled during the period June 26, 1977, through July 2, 1977, is established at 285,000 cartons.

(2) As used in this section, "handled" and "carton(s)" have the same meaning as when used in the amended marketing agreement and order.

CHAPTER XVII—RURAL ELECTRIFICATION ADMINISTRATION, DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

PART 1701—PUBLIC INFORMATION

Electric Loan Policies and Application Procedures

AGENCY: Rural Electrification Administration, USDA.

ACTION: Rule.

SUMMARY: The substantive change in revised REA Bulletin 20-2, Electric Loan Policies, is to provide for the removal of limits on the amounts which can be approved in a single loan to electric distribution borrowers for their two-year construction requirements. At present, many REA loans are made to such borrowers in amounts which meet needs for only one year. The bulletin has also been brought up to date with respect to recent amendments in the Rural Electrification Act.

DATE: Effective date: June 13, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Richard F. Richter, Assistant Administrator, Electric, Room 4056, South Building, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, telephone 202-447-6237.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Pursuant to the Rural Electrification Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. 901 et seq.), Appendix A to Part 1701, Title 7, is hereby amended to provide for the revision of REA Bulletin 20-2, Electric Loan Policies and Application Procedures.

Since the substantive change in the revision of REA Bulletin 20-2 complies with the requests of many REA electric distribution borrowers and benefits them by being more responsive to their financing needs, it is not considered necessary to invite comment prior to adoption. However, any comment on revised Bulletin 20-2 may be submitted to the REA contact named above.

NOTE.—REA has determined that this document does not involve a major action requiring preparation of an Economic Impact Statement under Executive Order 11821, as amended by Executive Order 11949, and OMB Circular A-107.

Dated: June 13, 1977.

Administrator.

[AMENDMENT NO. 115]

PAYMENTS OF CERTAIN ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS OF STATE AGENCIES FOOD STAMP PROGRAMS

Definition of Project Areas

AGENCY: Food and Nutrition Service, USDA.

ACTION: Proposed rule.

SUMMARY: This proposed amendment would revise the definition of a project area to clarify that Indian reservations, welfare districts, combinations of counties or partial counties can be designated as project areas for Food Stamp Program purposes.

DATE: Comments should be received on or before July 25, 1977.

ADDRESS: Comments should be submitted to: Nancy Snyder, Director, Food Stamp Division, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Grant Tolley, Program Development Branch, Food Stamp Division, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, 202–447–8325.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: This amendment was generated in response to a specific request to designate the Indian Reservations in a certain State as food stamp project areas separate from the counties which overlap with the reservation boundaries. The current definition of a "project area" as a "political subdivision within a State * * *" appears to exclude Indian reservations from its scope. We believe it will be advantageous to the reservations, the States, and FNS to allow Indian reservations to be designated as project areas for Food Stamp Program purposes. In addition, we believe there may be other requests for technical redesignations of unique project areas as State administrative structures expand and change. Therefore, the proposed amendment revises the project area definition to clarify that Indian reservations, welfare districts, combinations of counties or partial counties can be designated as project areas for Food Stamp Program purposes. The proposed amendment is not intended to relieve States, in situations where welfare districts or combinations of counties are designated as a project area, from maintaining certification and issuance points in each county.

PART 270—GENERAL INFORMATION AND DEFINITIONS

1. It is proposed to amend § 270.2(pp) to read as follows:

§ 270.2 Definitions.

* * * * *

(pp) Project area means the geographic entity within a State approved by the Department for participation in the program and used by the State as the administrative unit for program operations. Upon State request and Departmental approval, a county, city, Indian reservation, welfare district, or any other entity with clearly defined geographic boundaries, or any combination of such entities, may be designated as a project area. In addition, with appropriate justification, States as a whole may be designated as single project areas.

* * * * *

PART 275—PAYMENTS OF CERTAIN ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS OF STATE AGENCIES FOOD PROGRAMS

2. Likewise, it is proposed to amend the third paragraph in § 275.10(b) to read as follows:

§ 275.10 Monitoring and reporting program performance.

(b) Definitions * * *

"Project area" means the geographic entity within a State approved by the Department for participation in the program and used by the State as the administrative unit for program operations. Upon State request and Departmental approval, a county, city, Indian reservation, welfare district, or any other entity with clearly defined geographic boundaries, or any combination of such entities, may be designated as a project area. In addition, with appropriate justification, States as a whole may be designated as single project areas. Also, for the review and reporting purposes of this section, either FNS or the State Agency with FNS approval may establish a different administrative unit as its project area.

SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

[13 CFR Parts 116, 117]

LEAD-BASED PAINT

Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

AGENCY: Small Business Administration.

ACTION: Proposed rule.

SUMMARY: SBA presently has separate regulations for flood insurance protection, Part 116, and veterans, Part 117. The proposed regulation merely consolidates these two Parts as subpart A and B of a new Part 116. Subpart C contains a new regulation which describes the prohibition against the use of lead-based paint in all residential structures constructed or rehabilitated with SBA assistance in any form, as required by the Lead-Based Paint Poisoning Prevention Act.

DATE: Comments must be received by July 25, 1977.

ADDRESS: Comments on proposed subpart C should be submitted to: General Counsel, Small Business Administration, 1441 L Street, NW., Room 722, Washington, D.C. 20416, 202–653–6649.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Alan N. Heibein, Attorney,
Office of General Counsel,
202–653–6649.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: An increasing number of regulations imposed upon SBA lending activities, or national policies adopted by SBA, affect all program areas but do not merit a separate regulation. SBA therefore has decided to adopt a new part 116 which would contain various subparts which implement these program policies and regulations. Subparts A and B have been taken from the present regulations and placed in this new part 116 without material alteration. The old parts 116 and 117 will be deleted.

The provisions which are now in Part 117 will be transferred to new Part 116 and become Subpart B. No comments are being requested on this part of the NPRM because the only substantive changes that are being made are in the section numbers and the section titles, ie §§ 117.1, 117.2 and 117.3 will become §§ 116.10, 116.11 and 116.12 respectively.

Subpart C contains new regulations implementing the Lead-Based Paint Poisoning Prevention Act, Pub. L. 91–695 (42 U.S.C. Section 4801 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the Act. The Act as passed in 1971 provided in Section 401 that HEW should take steps to prohibit the use of lead-based paint in residential structures constructed or rehabilitated by the Federal Government, or with Federal assistance in any form.

In 1976, the Act was extended and responsibility for prohibiting the use of lead-based paint in such residential structures was transferred to the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). As a result, HUD issued new regulations, 24 CFR 35.60–.65, 42 FR 5042, January 27, 1977, detailing the responsibility of all Federal agencies under the Act. The regulations impose a requirement that all Federal agencies adopt a regulation implementing their responsibilities under the Act.

The HUD regulations contain definitions of the key terms "Lead-Based Paint," "residential structure," and "applicable surfaces," which define the scope of the Act and regulation. SBA has adopted the definitions verbatim.

The Act prohibits the use of lead-based paint in construction or rehabilitation of a residential structure where there is Federal assistance in any form. SBA has determined that all of its assistance programs except for Management Assistance are subject to the restrictions of the Act.

Finally, to insure compliance with the prohibition SBA has provided that any recipient of such assistance who improperly uses lead-based paint must remove the paint and repaint the affected surface at the recipient's own expense.

Since subparts A and B are merely a transfer of existing regulations which have already been subject to comment, they will only be published in final form.

Accordingly, pursuant to authority contained in 5 U.S.C. 301 and 15 U.S.C. 634(b)(6), notice is hereby given that the Small Business Administration proposes to amend Part 116 of Chapter I, Title 13 of the Code of Federal Regulations to read as follows:

Subpart A—Veterans

Sec.
116.1 Purpose and scope.
116.2 Definitions.
116.3 Special consideration criteria.

Subpart B—Flood Insurance Protection

116.10 Purpose and scope.
116.11 Requirements.
116.12 Related Regulations.

Subpart C—Lead-Based Paint

Sec
116.20 Purpose and scope.
116.21 Definitions.
116.22 Prohibition.

. . . . . .

. . . . . .

Subpart C—Lead-Based Paint

§ 116.20 Purpose and scope.

This subpart implements the requirements of the Lead-Based Paint Poisoning Prevention Act, 42 U.S.C. 4801 et seq., and the regulations imposed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, 24 CFR 35.60–.65, which has the responsibility of insuring compliance with the Act. All SBA programs of assistance except Management Assistance are subject to this subpart.

§ 116.21 Definitions.

(a) Lead-based paint. Lead-based paint means:

(1) Any paint containing more than five-tenths of 1 per centum lead by weight (calculated as lead metal) in the total non-volatile content of the paint or the equivalent measure of lead in the dried film of paint already applied or both; or

(2) With respect to paint which is manufactured after June 22, 1977, lead-based paint means any paint containing more than six one-hundredths of 1 per centum lead by weight (calculated as lead metal) in the total non-volatile content of the paint or the equivalent measure of lead in the dried film of paint already applied.

(b) Residential structure. Residential structure means any house, apartment or structure intended for human habitation, including any institutional structure where persons reside, such as an orphanage, boarding school, dormitory, day care center, or extended care facilities, college housing, hospitals, group practice facilities and community facilities.

(c) Applicable surfaces. Applicable surfaces means all interior surfaces, whether accessible or not, and those exterior surfaces such as stairs, decks, porches, railings, windows and doors which are readily accessible to children under 7 years of age.

§ 116.22 Prohibition.

All recipients of SBA assistance granted in connection with the construction or rehabilitation of a residential structure are prohibited from using lead-based paint on the applicable surfaces of such residential structure.

§ 116.23 Penalty.

In the event lead-based paint is improperly used, the recipient will be required to remove the paint and repaint the affected area at the recipient's expense.

2. Failing to securely affix to or place on, each such product a stamp, tag, label, or other means of identification showing in a clear and conspicuous manner each element of information required to be disclosed by Section 4(a)(2) of the Wool Products Labeling Act of 1939.

It is further ordered, That respondents Premier Clothing Co., Inc., a corporation, its successors and assigns, and its officers and Sidney Kriegler, individually and as an officer of said corporation, and respondents' representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the importing, advertising, offering for sale, sale or distribution of men's and boys' coats in or affecting commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, as amended, do forthwith cease and desist from misrepresenting the character or amount of constituent fibers contained in such products on invoices or shipping memoranda applicable thereto, or in any other manner.

PREMIER CLOTHING CO., INC., FILE NO. ----

ANALYSIS OF PROPOSED CONSENT ORDER TO AID PUBLIC COMMENT

The Federal Trade Commission has accepted an agreement to a proposed consent order from Premier Clothing Co., Inc., and Sidney Kriegler, and officer of the company.

The proposed consent order has been placed on the public record for sixty (60) days for reception of comments by the public. Comments received during this period will become part of the public record. After sixty (60) days, the Commission will again review the agreement and the comments received and will decide whether it should withdraw from the agreement or make final the agreement's proposed order.

Premier Clothing Co., Inc., is a New York corporation and is a manufacturer and distributor of clothing. Sidney Kriegler is the President of the corporation. He controls and is responsible for its acts and practices.

The complaint alleges that the corporation manufactured and distributed men's and boys' coats falsely represented to be composed of "100% cashmere," a woolen fiber, when, in fact, the coats were composed of a lesser percentage of cashmere and were composed, in substantial part, of other fibers not set forth on the labels.

The consent order in this matter prohibits Premier Clothing Co., Inc., and Sidney Kriegler, from misrepresenting the wool and other fiber content of their wool blend clothing and requires that they notify their customers that the clothing that they purchased was misbranded.

The order is generally designed to prevent deception as to the wool content of clothing and to protect the corporation's competitors from unfair competition.

The purpose of this analysis is to facilitate public comment on the proposed order and it is not intended to constitute an official interpretation of the agreement and proposed order or to modify in any way their terms.

CAROL M. THOMAS,
Secretary.

SECTION C. INSTRUCTIONS FOR WITNESSES

1. Advance notice. If you want to testify at a hearing, please inform the Commission representative for that hearing location immediately. This will enable us to assist you in complying with the requirements set forth below. You may testify at only one hearing in this proceeding.

You must notify Mr. Luna of your desire to testify and file with him your word-for-word statement no later than August 22, 1977.

(b) If you want to testify at the Chicago hearing, please inform Jeff Roberts, 312–353–5598, Chicago Regional Office, Federal Trade Commission, 55 East Monroe Street, Suite 1437, Chicago, Illinois 60603. You must notify Mr. Roberts of your desire to testify and file with him your word-for-word statement no later than September 16, 1977.

(c) If you want to testify at the San Francisco hearing, please inform Barry I. (d) If you want to testify at the Washington hearing, please inform David H. You must notify Mr. Williams of your desire to testify and file with him your word-for-word statement of testimony no later than November 3, 1977.

3. Exceptions. If you do not intend to deliver a prepared word-for-word statement at the hearing, you must file with the Commission representative at the location where you desire to testify a comprehensive outline of what you expect to say. Such an outline must list each fact, observation, opinion and conclusion you are going to discuss and recite the basis for each such observation, opinion and conclusion. The outline must be filed with the appropriate representative prior to the applicable deadline specified in paragraph 2. If the outline you file is not sufficiently detailed or factual, the Presiding Officer may require you to file a complete word-for-word statement before you testify.

4. Use of exhibits. Use of exhibits during oral testimony is encouraged, especially when they are to be used to help clarify technical or complex matters. If you plan to offer documents as exhibits, file them as soon as possible during the general comment period (see Section A) so they can be studied by other interested persons. If such documents are unavailable to you during this period, file them as soon as you can but not later than the deadlines in paragraph 2 for filing statements or outlines. Mark each of the documents with your name, and number them in sequence, e.g., Jones Exhibit 1. The Presiding Officer has the power to refuse to accept for the public record any hearing exhibits that are not furnished by the deadline.

5. Expert witnesses. If you are going to testify as an expert witness, you must attach to your statement or outline a curriculum vitae, biographical sketch, resume or summary of your professional background and a bibliography of your publications. It would be helpful if you would also include documentations for the opinions and conclusions you express by footnotes to your statements or in separate exhibits. If your testimony is based upon or chiefly concerned with one or two major scientific works, copies should be furnished. The remaining citations to other works can be accomplished by using footnotes in your statement referring to those works.

6. Results of surveys and other research studies. If in your testimony you will present the results of a survey or other research study, you must also present as an exhibit or exhibits in compliance with paragraph 4 above the following:

(a) A complete report of the survey or other research study and the information and documents listed in (b) through (e) if they are not included in that report.

(b) A description of the sampling procedures and selection process including the number of persons contacted, the number of interviews completed, and the number of persons who refused to participate in the survey.

(c) Copies of all completed questionnaires or interview reports used in conducting the survey or study if respondents were permitted to answer questions in words of their choice rather than to select an answer from one or more answers printed on the questionnaire or suggested by the interviewer.

(d) A description of the methodology used in conducting the survey or other research study including the selection of and instructions to interviewers, introductory remarks by interviewers to respondents and a sample questionnaire or other data collection instrument.

(e) A description of the statistical procedures used to analyze the data and all data tables which underlie the results reported.

Other interested parties may wish to examine the questionnaires, data collection forms, and any other underlying data not offered as exhibits and which serve as a basis for your testimony. This information along with punch cards or computer tapes which were used to conduct analyses should be made available (with appropriate explanatory data) upon request of the Presiding Officer. The Presiding Officer will then be in a position to permit their use by other interested parties or their counsel.

7. Identification, number of copies, and inspection. To assure prompt consideration, all materials filed by prospective witnesses pursuant to the instructions contained in paragraphs 2–6 of this section should be identified as "Credit Practices Statement" ("and Exhibits", if appropriate), and submitted in five copies when feasible and not burdensome.

Copies of all materials filed by witnesses will be made available for examination at each hearing location specified above for the submission of such materials.

8. Reason for requirements. The foregoing requirements are necessary to permit us to schedule the time for your appearance and that of other witnesses in an orderly manner. Other interested parties must have your expected testimony and supporting documents available for study before the hearing so they can decide whether to examine or cross-examine you or file contradictory statements (rebuttals). If you do not comply with all of the requirements, the Presiding Officer has the power to refuse to let you testify.

9. Content of testimony. In your testimony you can discuss any questions of fact, law or policy concerning the proposed rule. You do not have to limit your testimony to the issues designated in Section D; but if it does bear on those issues, you may be examined and cross-examined by the Presiding Officer or other persons, and there may be rebuttals. Also, the Presiding Officer may question you directly or let others cross-examine you about other issues.

10. Procedures and time limits. These hearings will be informal and courtroom rules of evidence will not apply. You will not be put under oath unless the Presiding Officer so requires. Ordinarily you will have about twenty minutes to give your testimony. If you need more than twenty minutes, submit your request for extra time when you file your word-for-word statement of testimony or outline. The Presiding Officer may set other reasonable time limits and may also allow extra time for questioning. If you want to discuss more than can be presented in the time allotted to you, include all of the material in your word-for-word statement. Then you may summarize the statement in your testimony, and the entire written statement will be introduced into the record as an exhibit. The Presiding Officer further has the right to limit the number of witnesses to be heard if the orderly conduct of the proceeding so requires.

SECTION D. DESIGNATED ISSUES

Set forth below are the issues which the Presiding Officer has determined to designate under Section 1.13(d)(1) of the Rules of Practice as issues to be considered in accordance with Section 1.13(d) (5) and (6) of the Rules of Practice:

1. Are contracts used in consumer credit transactions printed on standardized forms prepared by or for creditors and presented to consumers on a "take it or leave it" basis? If so, what are the reasons for this practice, and to what extent is the practice utilized by creditors?

2. With respect to those terms of contracts used in consumer credit transactions and creditor practices that would be affected by the proposed rule, to what extent are consumers able to comparison shop for credit among creditors in a given locale?

3. To what extent do consumers and co-signers understand the meaning, legal effect and possible consequences of the provisions included in contracts used in consumer credit transactions?

4. With what frequency do contracts used by creditors in consumer credit transactions constitute or contain the provisions described in § 444.2(a) of the proposed rule?

5. To what extent does the availability or use by creditors of the practices and remedies, that would be proscribed or limited by the proposed rule, affect a creditor's decision to extend credit, reduce the risk of default, and increase the likelihood of the successful collection of a delinquent account?

6. To what extent does the use of the practices and remedies by creditors, that would be proscribed or limited by the proposed rule, result in lower credit costs to consumers, lower the costs incurred by creditors as a result of defaults, or affect the availability of credit, and creditor and consumer credit costs generally?

7. What are the nature and prevalence of the use or abuse of the creditor remedies and practices, that would be proscribed or limited by the proposed rule? How prevalent is the practice of failing to use such creditor remedies after a threat has been made to do so?

8. What are the nature and prevalence of consumer injuries or benefits resulting from the use of the creditor practices and remedies proscribed or limited by the proposed rule?

9. Do the creditor practices and remedies, that would be proscribed or limited by the proposed rule, prevent the assertion of valid or meritorious defenses by consumers? If so, with what frequency?

10. What are the nature and prevalence of consumer injuries or benefits resulting from the use of co-signers in consumer credit transactions?

11. What is "fair market retail value," and how can the "fair market retail value" of collateral be determined? With what frequency do creditors fail to sell collateral at as high a price as possible in the circumstances or fail to credit the proceeds of the sale to the debtor?

12. Is there a significant number of consumer defaults or delinquencies resulting from circumstances beyond or not entirely within the control of those consumers? Conversely, do a significant number of consumers assume debts without a serious and fixed intention to repay those debts in accordance with the terms of the applicable contract or do some consumers intentionally default even though they have the means to pay?

13. What have been the demonstrable effects of state laws that impose requirements or restrictions similar to one or more provisions of the proposed rule?

14. What will be the economic effect of the proposed rule upon small creditors and upon creditors generally?

Testimony with respect to the foregoing issues may entitle group representatives or other interested persons to conduct or have conducted such cross-examination as the Presiding Officer may determine to be appropriate and required for a full and true disclosure with respect to any issues so designated. In the alternative, the Presiding Officer may determine that full and true disclosure as to any issue may be achieved through rebuttal submissions or the presentation of additional written or oral statements.

The Presiding Officer may at any time on his own motion or pursuant to a written petition by an interested person add to or modify the designated issues listed above at any time. Such petitions will not be considered unless good cause is shown why such issue or modification was not proposed during the time specified in the initial notice. If such was proposed during the initial notice period and not accepted, good cause must be shown why it should now be designated.

SECTION E. REQUESTS FOR RIGHT TO CROSS-EXAMINE

If you want to examine or cross-examine witnesses on the designated issues, you must give written notification to the Presiding Officer by July 25, 1977. State your particular interest in and your position on each designated issue or, if you have no interest or position as to any issue, merely indicate, "No interest." Also furnish any explanation as to why you are requesting the right to take part in examination, cross-examination or to offer rebuttals. Send your request to Henry B. Cabell, Presiding Officer, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580, by July 25, 1977, regardless of which hearing you want to take part in. Mark your notice "Credit Practices Notification" so that it can be easily identified and given prompt consideration.

If new issues are designated, you must promptly give the Presiding Officer an additional notice of interest and request for the right to cross-examination with respect to each such new issue in the same manner.

Before the hearings begin, the Presiding Officer will identify groups of persons with the same or similar interests in the proceeding. Such groups will be required to select a single representative for the purpose of examination, including cross-examination. If members of any group cannot agree on a representative, the Presiding Officer may select one.

If you are a member of such a group, you must make a good faith effort to agree on a representative. If you cannot agree and you have a position with respect to one or more of the designated issues that will not be adequately presented by the group representative, notify the Presiding Officer. He may allow you to conduct or have conducted examination of witnesses, including cross-examination, or to offer rebuttals.

Issued: June 24, 1977.

HENRY B. CABELL,
Presiding Officer.

TOLERANCES FOR PESTICIDES IN FOOD AND ANIMAL FEEDS ADMINISTERED BY THE ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY

Proposed Food and Feed Additive Tolerances for Glyphosate

AGENCY: Office of Pesticide Programs, Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

ACTION: Proposed rule.

SUMMARY: This proposal will permit the use of glyphosate in an experimental program. The program involves application of the herbicide to growing sugarcane. This amendment will permit the marketing of sugarcane molasses while further data on glyphosate is collected.

DATE: Comments must be received on or before July 25, 1977.

ADDRESS COMMENTS TO: Federal Register Section, Technical Services Division (WH–569), Office of Pesticide Programs, EPA, Rm. 401 East Tower, 401 M Street, SW., Washington, D.C. 20460.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Ms. Libby Zink, Registration Division (WH–567), Office of Pesticide Programs, EPA, 202–755–4851.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On August 20, 1976, the EPA published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (41 FR 35216) a notice that Monsanto Agricultural Products Co., 800 N. Linbergh Blvd., St. Louis MO 63116, had submitted a petition (FAP 6H5140). This petition proposed that 21 CFR 193 and 561, be amended by establishing food additive regulations permitting the use of the herbicide glyphosate [N-(phosphonomethyl)glycine] and its metabolite aminomethylphosphonic acid in a proposed experimental program involving application of the herbicide to growing sugarcane with a tolerance limitation of 1.0 part per million (ppm) for residues of the herbicide in sugarcane molasses.

Subsequently, the petitioner amended the petition by proposing that the tolerance be increased from 1 ppm to 2 ppm. Since sugarcane molasses is primarily an animal feed, human exposure will not be affected by this increase. The part of the molasses consumed by man will add very little to the already existing maximum theoretical exposure, i.e., less than 0.1 percent. Thus, the allowable daily intake (ADI) of 0.05 milligram/kilogram/day for man will not be exceeded by the proposed increase. The data submitted in the petition and all other relevant material have been evaluated, and it is concluded that the pesticide may be safely used in the prescribed manner when such use is in accordance with the label and labeling registered pursuant to the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act, as amended (86 Stat. 973, 89 Stat. 751; 7 U.S.C. 136(a) et seq.).

The scientific data considered in making this determination were that the metabolism of glyphosate in plants and animals is adequately understood, and there is an adequate analytical method for enforcement (gas chromatography with a phosphorus-specific flame photometric detector). The toxicological data reviewed included acute dog and rat feeding studies, a mouse carcinogenic study, rat reproduction tests, mouse mutagenicity results, rabbit teratogenic analysis, 2-year rat and dog feeding studies, as well as cholinesterase-inhibition and hen neurotoxicity studies. A no-effect level of 100 ppm has been determined. Permanent tolerances have been established for residues of glyphosate in or on grain crops at 0.1 ppm (negligible residue), forage grasses at 0.2 ppm (negligible residue), soybeans at 0.2 ppm (negligible residue), and soybean forage and hay at 0.4 ppm (40 CFR 180.364). Food and feed additive tolerances have also been established for residues of glyphosate in potable water at 0.1 ppm (21 CFR 193.235) and dried citrus pulp at 0.4 ppm (21 CFR 561.253). Temporary tolerances were also established (42 FR 24305) for glyphosate residues in or on sugarcane and the liver and kidney of cattle, goats, hogs, horses, poultry and sheep at 0.1 ppm.

Therefore, it is proposed that 21 CFR 193 and 561 be amended as set forth below.

Any person who has registered, or submitted an application for the registration of a pesticide under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act which contains any of the ingredients listed herein may request, on or before July 25, 1977, that this rulemaking proposal be referred to an advisory committee in accordance with section 408(e) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

Interested persons are invited to submit written comments on the proposed regulation. Three copies of the comments should be submitted to facilitate the work of the Agency and of others interested in inspecting them. The comments must bear a notation indicating both the subject and the petition/document control number, "P6H5140/P8". All written comments filed in response to this notice of proposed rulemaking will be available for public inspection in the office of the FEDERAL REGISTER Section from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Dated: June 15, 1977.

DOUGLAS D. CAMPT,
Acting Director,
Registration Division.

OCCUPATIONAL EXPOSURE TO BENZENE

Clarification of Scope of Hearing; Request for Information on Gasoline

AGENCY: The Occupational Safety and Health Administration, Department of Labor.

ACTION: Notice to clarify issues at informal benzene hearing; request for information on gasoline.

SUMMARY: This notice announces that the informal public hearing on occupational exposure to benzene, which will begin July 19, 1977, will not consider issues related to the storage, transportation, distribution, dispensing or sale of gasoline as a fuel subsequent to the discharge from bulk terminals, and announces that the final permanent standard on benzene will not cover these operations. In light of the time required to analyze pertinent data, and because of the complexity of these issues, they will be addressed in a future rulemaking proceeding on the marketing of gasoline.

DATES: The informal public hearing on benzene will be held on July 19, 1977. Information concerning gasoline distribution must be submitted on or before August 23, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Mr. James Foster, Office of Public Affairs, OSHA, Third Street and Constitution Avenue NW., Room N3641, Washington, D.C. (202–523–8151).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On May 3, 1977, an Emergency Temporary Standard (ETS) for occupational exposure to benzene was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (42 FR 22516) as 29 CFR 1910.1028. The basis for this ETS was clinical and epidemiological evidence that benzene causes leukemia in humans. Due to the short duration of the ETS (6 months) and the evidence from limited data available that benzene exposure during gasoline dispensing operations was generally below 1 ppm, OSHA determined that the exclusion of retail automotive service stations from the ETS was appropriate. Subsequently, as published in the May 24, 1977, FEDERAL REGISTER (42 FR 26429), this exclusion was expanded by exempting from the ETS the storage, transportation, distribution, dispensing, or sale of gasoline as a fuel subsequent to discharge of this gasoline from bulk terminals. This amendment was based on the availability of equipment required for compliance. OSHA determined that the potential demand for respirators and monitoring equipment by employers involved in the distribution of gasoline after it leaves bulk terminal facilities could not feasibly be met in a short time. On May 27, 1977, a proposed standard for the regulation of occupational exposure to benzene was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (42 FR 27452). Like the ETS, the proposal exempts those activities related to the marketing of gasoline subsequent to its discharge from bulk terminals. In recognition of (1) the need to develop appropriate control equipment to minimize the loss of gasoline vapors containing benzene, and (2) the related statutory authorities of OSHA and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and EPA's extensive background knowledge in the engineering control of these vapors, OSHA announced in the proposal that a joint Federal agency task force would be established with EPA and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH). The purpose of the task force is to coordinate regulatory efforts to reduce workers' and the public's exposure to the benzene released from gasoline in automotive service stations and from the transportation, storage, distribution, and sale of gasoline. In light of the inherently complex nature of these issues and the time requirements necessary to permit full development and evaluation of the evidence by the task force, OSHA believes these issues are more appropriately addressed in a separate rulemaking proceeding dealing exclusively with this subject. Accordingly, OSHA will exclude from the scope of the informal hearings beginning July 19, 1977, and from the final permanent standard regulating occupational exposure to benzene, those activities related to the storage, transportation, distribution, dispensing, and sale of gasoline as a fuel subsequent to its discharge from bulk terminals.

At the conclusion of the task force's deliberations, OSHA will examine and assess the various regulatory actions necessary to protect workers who are exposed to benzene as a result of the storage, transportation, distribution, dispensing or sale of gasoline.

REQUEST FOR INFORMATION ON GASOLINE DISTRIBUTION

In order to assist in the subsequent development of a proposal for this industrial segment, OSHA is requesting that interested persons submit written data, views and arguments concerning the following major issues at this time:

1. Exposure data. OSHA requests detailed information on employee exposure to benzene including the following:

(a) Description of work activities or operations involved and associated measured levels of worker exposure.

(b) Number of workers involved in each activity or operation.

(c) Vapor control equipment in use, if any.

(d) Analytical and sampling methods utilized.

(e) Correlations between benzene exposure and other parameters, such as temperature, volume and rate of gasoline transfer, benzene content, etc.

(f) Ambient levels of benzene.

2. Technological feasibility of controls to reduce gasoline vapor emissions containing benzene. (a) Comparison of various emission control systems as to: (1) Effectiveness; (2) reliability; (3) safety.

(b) Reduction in the benzene content of gasolines.

3. Economic impact. OSHA requests information as to compliance costs and the potential economic implications for various segments of the gasoline distribution industry. This information should include the effects on other variables, such as employment, prices, productivity, market structure, exports and imports, and the consumption of energy and critical materails. Also, information is requested on anticipated benefits such as a reduction in worker's compensation costs, lost time, pain and suffering to employee and his family, and savings in medical costs.

4. The environmental impact of regulating benzene exposure at these worksites.

5. Appropriate monitoring, medical surveillance and other provisions to supplement engineering controls capable of reducing worker exposure to the lowest feasible level.

6. The desirability of a "vertical" standard for retail gasoline dispensing facilities and other industry segments with respect to benzene exposure and other workplaces hazards.

Interested persons are invited to submit comments on or before August 23, 1977, concerning all issues relating to a standard for regulating benzene exposure in the storage, transportation, distribution, dispensing, or sale of gasoline as a fuel subsequent to the discharge from bulk terminals. Written data, views, and arguments must be submitted in quadruplicate to the Docket Officer, Docket No. H–060, OSHA Technical Data Center, Room S6212, U.S. Department of Labor, 3rd Street and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20210.

The data, views, and arguments that are submitted will be available for public inspection and copying at the above address. All timely written submissions received will be made part of the record of this proceeding.

Procedures for participation in the informal public hearing on benzene scheduled for July 19, 1977, are outlined in the FEDERAL REGISTER for May 27, 1977 (42 FR 27452).

This document was prepared under the direction of Eula Bingham, Assistant Secretary of Labor for Occupational Safety and Health, U.S. Department of Labor, 3rd Street and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20210.

STANDARDS OF PERFORMANCE FOR NEW STATIONARY SOURCES

Grain Elevators

AGENCY: Environmental Protection Agency.

ACTION: Suspension of proposal.

SUMMARY: Proposed air pollution standards for new and modified grain elevators are being suspended until further notice because EPA is reexamining the standards in light of significant public comments and pending Clean Air Act amendments. The effect of this suspension is to exempt current grain elevator construction and modification projects from the standards. Only those facilities commencing construction or modification on or after the date the proposal is reinstated by FEDERAL REGISTER notice will be affected by the standards.

DATES: The suspension is effective June 24, 1977.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Don R. Goodwin, EPA, Research Triangle Park, N.C. 27711, Phone 919-688-8146, ext. 271.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On January 13, 1977 (42 FR 2842), the Environmental Protection Agency proposed standards of performance under Section 111 of the Clean Air Act for certain types of new, modified, and reconstructed grain elevators. EPA is today suspending this proposal until further notice.

A great deal of controversy has been generated by this proposal, which is due in part to some basic misunderstandings of EPA's intent. EPA has recognized that some criticisms may be valid, however, and the Agency is now reconsidering certain issues—particularly the scope of coverage. In addition, amendments to the Clean Air Act passed by the House of Representatives on May 26 (H.R. 6161) would, if enacted into law, require further changes to the proposal.

Under Section 111(a)(2) of the Clean Air Act, facilities covered by a new source performance standard are legally bound to comply if they commence construction on or after the date of the standard's proposal. In this case, a substantial time has already passed since the proposal, EPA's reexamination is still far from complete, and additional uncertainties have been created by the pending Clean Air Act amendments. Under these circumstances, EPA believes that leaving the proposal in effect would unfairly create major legal uncertainties for those who need to construct or modify grain elevators at the present time. Accordingly, the proposal is being suspended effective immediately.

EPA will give notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER when it decides to reinstate the proposal. Only those facilities commencing construction or modification on or after the date of such reinstatement would therefore be affected.

Dated: June 17, 1977.

DOUGLAS COSTLE,
Administrator.

IMPLEMENTATION OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11914, NONDISCRIMINATION WITH RESPECT TO THE HANDICAPPED IN FEDERALLY ASSISTED PROGRAMS

Coordination of Federal Agency Enforcement of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973

AGENCY: Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

ACTION: Proposed rule.

SUMMARY: This proposed rule implements Executive Order 11914, "Nondiscrimination With Respect to the Handicapped in Federally Assisted Programs," under which the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare is required to coordinate governmentwide enforcement of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended. In particular, this proposal sets forth enforcement procedures, standards for determining which persons are handicapped, and guidelines for determining what practices are discriminatory. These procedures, standards, and guidelines are to be followed by each federal agency that provides federal financial assistance in issuing regulations implementing section 504.

DATES: Comments are invited from other Federal agencies and the public. They must be received on or before July 25, 1977. Comments (preferably in triplicate) should be sent to Box 2602, Office for Civil Rights, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20013. Written comments may be inspected by the public in Room 5400, 330 Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, D.C. 20201.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

BACKGROUND

As part of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (Pub. L. 93-112), Congress enacted section 504, which provides that "no otherwise qualified handicapped individual in the United States * * * shall, solely by reason of his handicap, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance." The definition of "handicapped individual" applicable to section 504 is contained in section 111(a) of the Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1974 (Pub. L. 93-516).

On April 28, 1976, the President issued Executive Order 11914 (41 FR 17871) to provide for consistent governmentwide enforcement of section 504; the executive order is reprinted at Appendix A to this proposed rule. The order directs the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to coordinate the implementation of section 504 by all federal departments and agencies that extend financial assistance to any program or activity. Specifically, section 1 directs the Secretary to establish standards for determining who are handicapped individuals and guidelines for determining what are discriminatory practices under section 504 and to assist other agencies as necessary to assure the coordinated and consistent implementation of section 504. Sections 2 and 3 also contemplate that this Department will establish procedures to guide other federal departments and agencies in implementing section 504.

In addition to setting forth the responsibilities of this Department, the executive order directs other agencies to issue regulations consistent with HEW standards and procedures, to furnish the Secretary with reports and information upon request, and to cooperate with this Department in their implementation of section 504.

Finally, the executive order, in section 3, contains general procedures and sanctions for securing compliance with section 504 and, in section 5, requires the consistent implementation of all of title V of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 as well as the Architectural Barriers Act of 1968 (Pub. L. 90-480).

On May 4, 1977, this Department issued its final regulation implementing section 504 as to recipients of financial assistance from HEW. The Secretary noted in the preamble to that regulation (42 FR at 22677), as he had in proposing the regulation, that the standards and guidelines pursuant to the executive order would be based on Subparts A, B, and C of the HEW section 504 regulation.

The purpose of this proposed rule is to carry out the Department's responsibilities under the executive order by specifying procedures for the promulgation and enforcement of section 504 regulations by all agencies providing financial assistance, standards for determining who are handicapped individuals, and guidelines for determining what practices are discriminatory under section 504. The Department will also, on a continuing basis, fulfill its responsibilities under the executive order to assist and consult with other agencies in their implementation of section 504 and to monitor compliance with the executive order.

SUMMARY OF PROPOSED RULE

Subpart A of the proposed regulation sets forth general uniform procedures for the enforcement of section 504. Section 85.4 contains procedures for the promulgation of agency regulations. In accordance with section 2 of the executive order, such regulations are required to be consistent with the standards and guidelines contained in this proposed regulation. Agencies are invited to examine Subparts A, B, and C of the HEW section 504 regulation to determine whether their regulations should include any of the more detailed provisions to be found there. In addition, each agency should examine the programs and activities to which it provides assistance to determine whether detailed requirements concerning any such program or activity should be included in its regulations, similar to those contained in Subparts D, E, and F of the HEW section 504 regulations.

Section 85.4(b) sets forth a schedule for issuing agency regulations. Comment is invited as to whether the time periods provided are adequate. The Secretary believes that the provision for review of each agency's draft final regulation by the Director of the HEW Office for Civil Rights before it is finally issued is an effective and appropriate method of promoting consistency of regulation under section 504 throughout the government.

Section 85.5, which contains the basic elements for a compliance and enforcement system, is not intended to be exhaustive. For example, agencies may wish to consider requirements that recipients conduct self-evaluations or establish grievance procedures, as is required by §§ 84.6(c) and 84.7 of the HEW section 504 regulations. Moreover, in many cases, agencies may find it appropriate in incorporate their title VI enforcement procedures, as does the HEW section 504 regulation (§ 84.61). The Secretary invites comment on whether the final executive order regulation should require adherence to title VI procedures in order to promote consisteint governmentwide civil rights enforcement.

Section 85.6 contains provisions concerning interagency cooperation. In this regard agencies may find it useful to extend existing title VI delegations to section 504.

Section 85.7 is designed to ensure the consistent and coordinated implementation of sections 502, 503, and 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. Comment is solicited as to whether its provisions are the most effective and appropriate means of meeting the Department's responsibilities in this regard.

Subpart B contains the standards for determining who are "handicapped persons" and "qualified handicapped persons" within the meaning of section 504. Except for the addition noted below, the definition of handicapped person (§ 85.31) is identical to the one contained in § 84.3(j) of HEW's section 504 regulation. Further discussion of its provisions may be found in paragraph 3 of Appendix A of that regulation (42 FR 22685-6). A final sentence has been added to the definition listing, for illustrative purposes, some of the diseases and impairments that are included in the term "physical or mental impairment."

It should be noted that drug addiction and alcoholism are included in that list. The question of section 504's application to drug addicts and alcoholics was a difficult one on which the Secretary of HEW sought the advice of the Attorney General. In an opinion dated April 12, 1977, the Attorney General concluded that drug addiction and alcoholism are physical or mental impairments and are thus handicaps for the purpose of section 504 if they result in a substantial limitation to a "major life activity."

A detailed analysis of the implications of the inclusion of drug addicts and alcoholics within the scope of section 504 is set forth in paragraph 4 of Appendix A of the HEW regulation (42 FR at 22686). It should be emphasized that the fact that drug addiction and alcoholism may be handicaps does not mean that the behavioral manifestations of these conditions must be ignored in determining whether a person is qualified for services or employment. The statute applies only to qualified handicapped persons.

The definition of qualified handicapped person in § 85.32 has been adapted from § 84.3(k) of the HEW section 504 regulation. Other agencies may wish to supplement its provisions with additional guidance concerning qualifications for specific programs, as was done in §§ 84.3(k) (2) and (3) of the HEW section 504 regulation.

Subpart C, setting forth guidelines for determining discriminatory practices, is divided into three parts: General, based on § 84.4 of the HEW section 504 regulation; employment, based on Subpart B of the HEW section 504 regulation, and program accessibility, based on Subpart C of the HEW section 504 regulation. A more detailed discussion of these subparts than is contained below may be found in Appendix A of the HEW regulation.

The general prohibitions against discrimination on the basis of handicap set forth in § 85.51 incorporate basic principles that the Department determined, in developing its own regulation, to be inherent in section 504. First, section 504, like other nondiscrimination statutes, prohibits not only those practices that are overtly discriminatory, but also those that have the effect of discriminating. And it is equal opportunity, not merely equal treatment, that is essential to the elimination of discrimination on the basis of handicap. Thus, in some situations, identical treatment of handicapped and nonhandicapped persons is not only insufficient but is itself discriminatory. On the other hand, separate or different treatment can be permitted only where necessary to ensure equal opportunity and truly effective benefits and services. Federally assisted programs and activities must thus be provided in the most integrated setting appropriate to the needs of participating handicapped persons.

Subpart C also contains the basic requirements for the elimination of discrimination on the basis of handicap in employment. It should be augmented, where possible, with provisions appropriate to the programs assisted by each agency. Specifically, § 85.53 could be supplemented, as is the corresponding § 84.12 of the HEW section 504 regulation, with examples of actions constituting reasonable accommodation and with factors to be considered in determining undue hardship; and § 85.54, with provisions adapted from the more specific requirements of the parallel § 84.13 of the HEW section 504 regulation.

Although § 85.55, like § 84.14 of the HEW section 504 regulation, generally bans preemployment medical exams and inquiries concerning handicap, certain qualifications to this general prohibition, found in §84.14 and cross-referenced in § 85.55, should be noted. First, while employers may not, prior to employment, inquire about the existence of a specific handicap (for example, epilepsy), they may ask about the applicant's ability to perform duties necessary to the job in question. Second, they may make voluntary inquiries as to handicap if they are subject to remedial or affirmative action obligations or if they are undertaking voluntary action to increase their employment of handicapped persons. Third, they may condition an offer of employment on the successful completion of a medical examination: Provided, That the examination follows the requirements of § 84.14(c) and that no offer is withdrawn on the basis of medical conditions that are not job-related.

Sections 85.56-85.58 of Subpart C concern "program accessibility," a term that summarizes the concept of prohibiting the exclusion of handicapped persons from programs by virtue of architectural barriers to such facilities as buildings, vehicles, and walks, while not requiring that existing facilities be completely barrier-free. Although new facilities are to be designed and constructed so as to be physically accessible to handicapped persons, structural modifications of existing facilities need be undertaken only where other methods are inadequate to assure that a program is available to handicapped persons. The Department recognizes that the implementation of the concept of program accessibility will necessarily vary from agency to agency, but believes that the principles contained in §§ 85.56–58 are applicable generally and are essential to the effective and consistent implementation of section 504.

Agencies are urged to delineate in their regulations illustrative types of actions that they will permit their recipients to use as alternatives to structural changes to existing facilities. (See § 84.22(b) of the HEW section 504 regulation.) Agencies may also wish to consider supplementing this section with other details from § 84.22, such as the requirements concerning transition plans and notice.

The Secretary believes it important to issue this regulation in final form as soon as possible. Moreover, federal agencies as well as the public have had a prior opportunity—in the context of HEW's section 504 regulation—to comment on the basic provisions of the proposed standards and guidelines. Accordingly, no extensions of the 30-day period for comment on this proposed regulation will be granted.

In consideration of the foregoing, it is hereby proposed to add Part 85 to Title 45 of the Code of Federal Regulations to read as set forth below.

Dated: June 17, 1977.

JOSEPH A. CALIFANO, Jr.,
Secretary, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

§ 85.6 Interagency cooperation.

(a) Where each of a substantial number of recipients is receiving assistance for similar or related purposes from two or more agencies or where two or more agencies cooperate in administering assistance for a given class of recipients, the agencies shall (1) coordinate compliance with section 504 and (2) designate one of the agencies as the primary agency for section 504 compliance purposes.

(b) Any agency conducting a compliance review or investigating a complaint of an alleged section 504 violation shall notify any other affected agency upon discovery of its jurisdiction and shall inform it of the findings made. Reviews or investigations may be made on a joint basis.

§ 85.7 Coordination with sections 502 and 503.

(a) Agencies shall consult with the Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board in developing requirements for the accessibility of new facilities and alterations, as required in § 85.5, and in enforcing such requirements with respect to facilities that are subject to section 502 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, as well as to section 504.

(b) Agencies shall consult and coordinate with the Department of Labor in enforcing requirements concerning employment discrimination with respect to recipients that are also federal contractors subject to section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended.

APPENDIX A

NONDISCRIMINATION WITH RESPECT TO THE HANDICAPPED IN FEDERALLY ASSISTED PROGRAMS

Executive Order 11914. April 28, 1976

By virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the United States of America, including section 301 of title 3 of the United States Code, and as President of the United States, and in order to provide for consistent implementation within the Federal Government of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794), it is hereby ordered as follows:

SECTION 1. The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall coordinate the implementation of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, hereinafter referred to as section 504, by all Federal departments and agencies empowered to extend Federal financial assistance to any program or activity. The Secretary shall establish standards for determining who are handicapped individuals and guidelines for determining what are discriminatory practices, within the meaning of section 504. The Secretary shall assist Federal departments and agencies to coordinate their programs and activities and shall consult with such departments and agencies, as necessary, so that consistent policies, practices, and procedures are adopted with respect to the enforcement of section 504.

SEC. 2. In order to implement the provisions of section 504, each Federal department and agency empowered to provide Federal financial assistance shall issue rules, regulations, and directives, consistent with the standards and procedures established by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

SEC. 3. (a) Whenever the appropriate department or agency determines, upon all the information available to it, that any recipient of, or applicant for, Federal financial assistance is in noncompliance with the requirements adopted pursuant to this order, steps to secure voluntary compliance shall be carried out in accordance with standards and procedures established pursuant to this order.

(b) If voluntary compliance cannot be secured by informal means, compliance with section 504 may be effected by the suspension or termination of, or refusal to award or continue, Federal financial assistance or by other appropriate means authorized by law, in accordance with standards and procedures established pursuant to this order.

(c) No such suspension or termination of, or refusal to award or continue, Federal financial assistance shall become effective unless there has been an express finding, after opportunity for a hearing, of a failure by the recipient of, or applicant for, Federal financial assistance to comply with the requirements adopted pursuant to this order; however, such suspension or termination of, or refusal to award or continue, Federal financial assistance shall be limited in its effect to the particular program or activity or part thereof with respect to which there has been such a finding of noncompliance.

SEC. 4. Each Federal department and agency shall furnish the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare such reports and information as the Secretary requests and shall cooperate with the Secretary in the implementation of section 504.

SEC. 5. The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare may adopt rules and regulations and issue orders which he deems are necessary to carry out his responsibilities under this order. The Secretary shall ensure that such rules, regulations, and orders are not inconsistent with, or duplicative of, other Federal Government policies relating to the handicapped, including those policies adopted in accordance with sections 501, 502, and 503 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, or the Architectural Barriers Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 4151 et seq.).

SPANISH LANGUAGE FOR THE RADIOTELEPHONE THIRD CLASS OPERATOR PERMIT AND BROADCAST ENDORSEMENT

ACTION: Proposed rulemaking.

SUMMARY: The Commission has received numerous requests for a Spanish-language examination for the Broadcast Endorsement which, when placed on the Radiotelephone Third Class Operator Permit, authorizes the operation of most AM and FM broadcast stations. The proposed rule amendment would permit the administration of this examination to persons who are bilingual in Spanish and English but who attest to a superior knowledge of Spanish. The intended effect of the amendment is to encourage Spanish-speaking citizens to seek employment in the broadcasting field.

DATES: Comments must be received on or before July 18, 1977 and reply comments on or before July 28, 1977.

ADDRESSES: Federal Communications Commission, Washington, D.C. 20554.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Adopted: June 1, 1977.

Released: June 16, 1977.

In the matter of amendment of Part 0 of the Commission's rules to permit the administration of written examinations in the Spanish language for the Radiotelephone Third Class Operator Permit and Broadcast Endorsement.

1. Notice of Proposed Rulemaking is hereby given in the above-captioned matter. The Commission has received numerous requests from Spanish-Speaking persons that its Radiotelephone Third Class Operator Permit and Broadcast Endorsement examinations be made available, upon request, in the Spanish language. Section 13.22 of the Rules requires that applicants for all classes of commercial radio operator licenses have "the ability to transmit and receive spoken messages in English" and § 13.23 requires that "the written examination shall be in English except when waived in accordance with authority specified in § 0.314."

2. Section 0.314(p) of the Rules currently delegates authority to the Engineer in Charge at each field office only "to act upon requests for a waiver of the English language provisions of §§ 13.22 and 13.23 of this chapter, in the case of Spanish-speaking applicants in and around Puerto Rico and Miami, Florida, and to issue licenses bearing appropriate restrictions to those applicants found qualified." The purpose of this delegation of authority was to alleviate a situation which existed in Puerto Rico and the Caribbean area. As a result of the Commission's Rules under Part III of Title III, of the Communications Act, which requires radiotelephone equipment to be installed on certain passenger boats and the operators thereof to hold Radiotelephone Third Class Operator Permits, a condition became apparent in the vicinity of Puerto Rico among small boat operators (particularly charter fishing boats) where Spanish-speaking persons could not meet the English language requirement for examination. Such persons were, however, capable of passing the examination in their own language and operating their vessels safely in accordance with the Commission's Rules. Permits issued as a result of these examinations bear the following restrictive endorsement:

Valid only for ship stations on board vessels in the vicinity of Puerto Rico.

3. It now appears there is a demand for examinations for the third class, broadcast endorsed, permit to be made available in the Spanish language not only in Puerto Rico but at various locations throughout the United States. In that the basic third class permit authorizes the holder to operate ship stations and, with the endorsement certain classes of Broadcast stations, several problems are raised. Regulation 4 of the 1973 Great Lakes agreement specifies that as a condition for obtaining a commercial operator certificate the applicant must have the ability to receive correctly and send correctly using the English language. Section 26.07 of the U.S. Coast Guard regulations states that persons maintaining the bridge to bridge listening watch must speak in English. More importantly, § 73.933 of the Rules governing the operation of the Emergency Broadcast System (EBS) requires that the Emergency Action Notification Message be broadcast in English. Stations which broadcast primarily in a language other than English may broadcast in such foreign language following the broadcast in English. In view of the foregoing, the Commission is precluded from issuing unrestricted third class permits to persons who have a complete lack of knowledge of the English language.

4. However, there would appear to be sufficient justification to allow written examinations in Spanish to those individuals who are bilingual in Spanish and English but who attest to a superior knowledge of Spanish. The proposed revision of § 0.314(p) of the Rules would allow this procedure at any of our field examination points and would permit the issuance of a nonrestrictive license to those who qualify. For individuals in Puerto Rico who are fluent only in Spanish and seek only a license to operate on board ships, the previous examination procedure (without the requirement to attest to fluency in English) would still apply and a license restricting their activity to the Puerto Rican area would continue to be issued to qualified applicants.[1]

5. Authority for the adoption of the proposed amendment and the request for comments is contained in Sections 4(i) and 303(l)(1) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

6. Pursuant to the applicable procedures set forth in § 1.415 of the Commission's Rules, interested persons may file comments on or before July 18, 1977, and reply comments on or before July 28, 1977. All relevant and timely comments and reply comments will be considered by the Commission before final action is taken in this proceeding. In reaching its decision in this proceeding, the Commission may also take into account specific information before it, in addition to the comments invited by this Notice.

7. In accordance with the provisions of § 1.419 of the Rules, an original and 5 copies of all comments, reply comments, pleadings, briefs, and other documents shall be furnished the Commission. In an effort to obtain the widest possible response in this proceeding, informal comments (without extra copies) will be accepted. These informal comments should specifically reference this proceeding. Responses will be available for public inspection during regular business hours in the Commission's Public Reference Room located at its headquarters at 1919 M Street NW., Washington, D.C.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,

VINCENT J. MULLINS,
Secretary.

[1] The proposed revision deletes reference to Miami, Florida as the only other location where a permit for ship use in the area of Puerto Rico could be obtained. This deletion is required to permit nationwide implementation of the new Spanish language third class, broadcasting, examination. As a practical matter our Miami office has never been requested to conduct a Spanish examination for the third class shipboard permit which is restricted to use only in the area of Puerto Rico.

1. It is proposed to revise § 0.314(p) to read as follows:

* * * * * *

(p) To act upon requests for a waiver of the English language provisions of §§ 13.22 and 13.23 of this chapter in the case of Spanish-speaking applicants in and around Puerto Rico for the examination for the Radiotelephone Third Class Operator Permit; to issue licenses bearing appropriate restrictions to those applicants found qualified; and to act upon requests for a waiver of the English language provision of § 13.23 of this chapter in the case of applicants who are bilingual in Spanish and English but who attest to being more fluent in the Spanish language for the examination for the Radiotelephone Third Class Operator Permit and the Broadcast Endorsement.

INTERSTATE AND FOREIGN MESSAGE TOLL TELEPHONE SERVICE (MTS) AND WIDE AREA TELEPHONE SERVICE (WATS)

New and Revised Classes

AGENCY: Federal Communications Commission.

ACTION: Supplemental notice of proposed rulemaking.

Part 68 of the FCC's rules presently allows for registration and connection of this equipment, but proposals before the Commission indicate that revised rules will permit greater flexibility. The intent is to amend Part 68 to allow for new options for registration, connection and installation of key telephone and PBX equipment.

SUPPLEMENTAL NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULEMAKING

Adopted: June 8, 1977.

Released: June 20, 1977.

In the matter of proposals for New or Revised Classes of Interstate and Foreign Message Toll Telephone Service (MTS) and Wide Area Telephone Service (WATS), Docket No. 19528.

1. In a companion Memorandum Opinion and Order which we have adopted today, we have ruled on many of the issues which are pending before us in Docket No. 19528, primarily in the form of petitions for reconsideration and comments thereupon. As will be discussed in further detail herein, however, certain issues related to registration of Private Branch Exchange (PBX) and key telephone systems still remain, and these issues are addressed in this supplemental notice of proposed rulemaking.

2. In our Second Report and Order in Docket No. 19528 (Second Report), 58 F.C.C. 2d 736 (1976), we extended the FCC's telephone equipment registration program to apply to PBX and key telephone systems. Under the program, the Commission evaluates terminal equipment designs and test results to determine whether the equipment, under foreseeable mechanical and electrical stress and over its service life, will conform to parametric limitations contained in Subpart D of Part 68 of the FCC's Rules, violations of which, in the Commission's judgment, have a possibility of interfering with network performance ("harm"). In the Second Report, we noted that PBX and key telephone systems typically today consist of common equipment (centrally-located equipment shared by the system) and station equipment (remotely-located equipment, usually telephone instruments, which is connected to the common equipment), with intrasystem wiring between them. We recognized that the long wiring runs which typically connect station and common equipment in PBX and key telephone systems, if improperly planned and installed, can nullify the network protection provided by the equipment at the ends of these wiring runs unless specific protective circuitry protects against wiring aberrations. See 58 F.C.C. 2d at 744–46.

3. In the absence of concrete proposals which would assure that wiring is properly performed in specific installations, we adopted the same approach which the telephone companies themselves had adopted in the post-Carterfone period—a requirement that protective circuitry be interposed between any system wiring and the point of connection to the telephone network. At the same time, we invited proposals for assuring proper installation of system wiring, in recognition that such protective circuitry would be unnecessary where the wiring is properly performed. See 58 F.C.C. 2d at 746, n. 12.

4. Petitions for reconsideration of our Second Report were filed which addressed, inter alia, the problems posed by system wiring, by American Telephone and Telegraph Company (AT&T), GTE Service Corporation (GTE), and International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation (ITT). Oppositions thereto were filed by AT&T, Computer and Business Equipment Manufacturers Association (CBEMA), GTE, International Business Machines Corporation (IBM), ITT, and North American Telephone Association (NATA). Replies were filed by AT&T and GTE. These petitions and comments addressed a variety of policy and technical issues. The policy issues were ruled upon in an Order released on October 18, 1976, 61 F.C.C. 2d 396 (1976), and many of the technical issues are addressed in the companion order which we are adopting today. However, as will be discussed, we left reconsideration of the technical standards and requirements to be applied to PBX and key telephone systems pendant, in view of the uncertainty surrounding various proposals for dealing with the problems posed by system wiring.

5. In our October, 1976 order, we noted that GTE had proposed an alternative to our tentatively-adopted requirement for interposed protective circuitry (see para. 3, supra.), which had been opposed by AT&T, and that GTE had subsequently refined its proposal in "comments in support of petition for reconsideration."[1] AT&T also opposed GTE's refinement, but it promised to submit its own alternative to the tentative requirements of the Second Report which would, according to AT&T, reduce the costs of compliance. In view of this commitment by AT&T, we declined to rule prematurely in our October order on the highly interactive technical issues which were before us, pending the submission of additional comments and proposals, 61 F.C.C. 2d at 402–04. In response to a letter of the Chief, Common Carrier Bureau, which requested the status of AT&T's efforts to arrive at the promised alternative proposal, AT&T filed on February 1, 1977, "supplemental comments in opposition to petitions for reconsideration." These comments included a proposed structure for dealing with the problems posed by system wiring as well as a draft circuit design to demonstrate the feasibility of AT&T's approach.

6. In this notice, we shall analyze the issues concerning PBX and key telephone system registration. Our analysis is not confined solely to the two proposals which have been placed before us—AT&T's and GTE's—because in our view the fundamental issues which underlie registration of these systems have not been adequately explored.

[1] The Chief, Common Carrier Bureau accepted these comments under delegated authority, by Order released August 27, 1976, and gave interested parties an opportunity to comment thereupon.

A. ACTION WHICH, IF IMPROPERLY PERFORMED, CAN NULLIFY THE NETWORK PROTECTION ACCORDED BY THE COMMISSION'S REGISTRATION OF EQUIPMENT UNDER PART 68 OF THE FCC'S RULES

7. Two fundamental issues remain concerning the registration and connection of PBX and key telephone systems. These are the problems posed by system wiring, and specification of means of connecting such systems to the telephone network. Underlying any analysis of these issues, however, is consideration of action which, if improperly performed can upset the Commission's determination that equipment conforms to the parametric limitations of Subpart D of Part 68 of the rules.

8. Our basic approach to telephone equipment registration has been, as was discussed in para. 2 above, to have the FCC determine, on the basis of submissions by applicants, whether or not particular equipment designs will be harmless (not violate the technical standards contained in our rules). However, certain actions subsequent to the manufacture of registered equipment have the potential of nullifying the network protection accorded by FCC registration if improperly performed. The three forseeable actions which have this potential are installation, repair and modification of registered equipment. Part 68 presently controls these actions, and assures that network protection is not compromised, either by making the action failsafe or by making the registrant responsible for its proper performance. Thus, repairs may only be performed by the registrant or an agent thereof,[2] and minor design modifications require a notice filing with the Commission while major modifications (modifications which change the information previously furnished the Commission on an application) require a revised application and FCC approval. In either case, the modification may only be performed by the registrant, or by another entity who will independently accept responsibility for conformance of the modified equipment with the standards of Part 68.[3]

9. Installation of equipment has been made fail-safe by adoption of the same technique which the telephone companies (and, for that matter, electric power companies) have been using for many years to allow customer-installation of equipment. Our rules require that registered equipment be connected to the telephone network through the use of standard plugs, which may be inserted by the customer into telephone company-installed standard jacks. Proper installation of the jacks is presumably assured because only the telephone companies' trained craftspersons, and not untrained

[2] Telephone companies are not required to receive formal agency authority from the registrant, 59 F.C.C. 2d 83, 86 (1976).

[3] Thus, equipment refurbishers who are not, themselves, agents of the registrant, are required to register their work product. 59 F.C.C. 83, 86–87, n. 7 (1976).

subscribers, are permitted to install them. Similarly, untrained telephone subscribers are permitted to replace and install replaceable components in registered equipment (e.g. fuses, lamps, and plug-in protective circuitry) if the applicant demonstrates to us that improper performance of such replacement will not affect compliance with our rules. See 56 F.C.C. 2d at 612.

10. These controls, however, pose certain practical difficulties in the environment of PBX and key telephone systems. First, these systems are typically formed of common equipment and station equipment connected by relatively long wiring runs, which wiring is uniquely configured and installed for each system installation. Second, these systems are often, to varying degrees, customized to the customer's unique requirements, and in such cases the common equipment and station equipment may require modification or reconfiguration to meet the customer's needs.[4] Such modifications are not necessarily major, and often involve only replacement of printed circuit cards with others and/or replacement of jumper wires, but improper performance of such modification might conceivably negate the network protection built into the equipment itself.

11. Under the present structure of Part 68, actions which have the potential of nullifying the protection built into the equipment are also limited depending upon who performs them. Telephone companies may perform such acts at their own facilities (e.g., modification, repair and assembly of systems from components as part of the process which creates registered equipment and at customer premises (e.g., installation of wiring, installation of standard jacks). Registrants and their agents, other than telephone companies, may perform such acts at their own facilities as part of the process which creates registered equipment, but they may not perform such acts at the premises where equipment is to be installed unless protective circuitry is interposed between the point where such action is performed and the telephone network connections. The protective circuitry would, by definition, insulate and protect the telephone network from any potential adverse effects.

12. System wiring is one act which might negate the effectiveness of network protection built into a given equipment design; means of connection of registered equipment to the telephone network, unless limited (as is presently the case) to fail-safe means such as standard jacks and plugs, is another (infra., paras. 18–27). The problem before the Commission is to assure that any such action will in fact be performed in such a manner that the entire system—equipment, wiring, and means of connection to the telephone network—complies with the parametric limitations of Part 68 at the point of connection of the terminal equipment to the telephone network.

13. To deal with potential aberrations in the installation of wiring or in the connection of systems to the telephone network, the Commission has, as a matter of judgment, made these operations fail-safe for equipment which will tend to be connected by the untrained (e.g., telephone instruments). Parties in this proceeding, other than the carriers, asset that complex PBX and key telephone systems of necessity are not installed by the untrained; rather, they are installed by these parties' trained personnel. These non-telephone company parties further claim that their personnel are in fact competent and trained, and must be in order that such complex equipment can be sold.

14. We have recognized the telephone network's vulnerability to installation and wiring aberrations, but recognition of this vulnerability does not mandate a conclusion that the aberrations are likely to occur equally for all equipment types. As we noted in our October, 1976 Order in partial reconsideration of the Second Report, 61 F.C.C. 2d 396 at 403:

> • • • the telephone companies do not have a monopoly on adequately-trained installation personnel. Installation personnel employed by the telephone companies' competitors are often trained by the same manufacturers who train the telephone companies' installers in the installation of equipment which is sold to both. Such non-telephone company installers have access to the same wire and cable suppliers as do the telephone companies, and in fact often use the same installation techniques as the telephone companies do for efficiency.

In their comments, both GTE and AT&T have addressed certain aspects of the problems posed by these potential aberrations, but they have done so within the context of system wiring, or of means of connection, separately. Both GTE and AT&T have proposed institutional safeguards against those acts which could lead to longitudinal imbalance—generally, inadvertent connection of wiring with earth ground (limitations upon which are contained in § 68.310 of the rules)—and they have proposed forms of acceptance testing, to be performed at the completion of an installation, to determine whether or not the wiring is connected wtih earth ground and could cause imbalance. When GTE and AT&T part company, conceptually, is over those wiring aberrations which could cause hazardous voltage if improperly performed. GTE proposed institutional safeguards against such aberrations as well—attestation by the installer that the wiring conforms to certain standards—while AT&T seeks retention of interposed protective circuitry, a hardware safeguard. With regard to means of connection of registered PBX and key telephone systems to the telephone network, both GTE and AT&T seek continuation of the fail-safe approach which has been adopted for connection of other terminal equipment—standard plugs and jacks. With this background, we now address the specific proposals which are before us.

15. System wiring. GTE's specific proposal for dealing with system wiring is that we adopt a means of determining which installation personnel are competent to perform action associated with wiring, and that we adopt standards to which such wiring, performed by these competent installers, must conform. In essence, GTE would define as competent:

> An individual with twelve months of on-the-job experience in telecommunications who had received training by the manufacturer, or a qualified training agent, on the specific system to be installed.

Such a presumed-competent individual would be required to attest in writing that each specific installation:

> Was performed in accordance with the pertinent sections of the National Electrical Code (or such local standards as are adopted in substitution therefor or in addition thereto); and
> Was performed such that the longitudinal balance requirements of Part 68 are met, as measured for each possible combination of telephone trunk (or line) connections with station equipment, measured with appropriate equipment at the point of direct connection with the telephone network.

GTE's proposal is limited to those classes of equipment which do not already inherently incorporate protective circuitry to protect against improper wiring (most key telephone systems and some PBX equipment) and, in addition, is conditioned upon our adoption of fail-safe means of connecting such equipment to the network (e.g., plugs and jacks). Thus, GTE proposes meeting our concerns that hazardous voltages and line imbalance could potentially result from improper installation of wiring by adopting the National Electrical Code's wiring standards to prevent hazardous voltages, and by using acceptance testing to determine whether or not there will be line imbalance.

16. AT&T's proposal is that hardware protection be retained to protect against hazardous voltages, and that acceptance testing be used to determine whether or not there will be line imbalance, for those systems which do not already inherently incorporate protection against both conditions. Specifically, AT&T has proposed that a limited-purpose protective circuit be interposed between each telephone trunk or line connection, and any system wiring, and that this circuit only limit excessive voltages. A preliminary design of such a circuit was submitted to indicate its feasibility, and AT&T has estimated the installed costs of this design at about $20 to $25 per line if integrated into the common equipment.[5] AT&T's proposed acceptance testing for longitudinal imbalance is less complex than GTE's proposal, and involves a call origination, per-line, to the central office from each station, confirmation by listening that dial tone has been received, that dial tone has been broken by the dialing of a digit, and listening to assure that there is not excessive noise on the line (which would be caused by imbalance).

17. In addition, AT&T's proposal requires that there be dc continuity between the telephone network connections and system station equipment to allow detection from the central office of connections with earth ground which might cause imbalance, but which do not cause audible noise on the connection which would be apparent during these acceptance tests. As was the case of GTE's proposal, AT&T also has coupled its proposal with the use of fail-safe means of connection.

18. Means of connection. Wiring has otherwise been addressed, informally, within the context of arriving at suitable means of connecting registered key telephone and PBX systems to the telephone network. Basically, this extra-system wiring cannot be protected against by any form of protective circuitry precisely because, of necessity, it is always connected on the telephone network side of the protective circuitry. Unless the telephone companies are willing themselves to install their wiring to the customer's protective circuitry, which they have indicated they are not willing to do, there always will be some length of wire between the customer's equipment and the point of connection to the telephone network.

19. In our Second Report, we indicated that we would convene informal meetings between members of the affected public (primarily, telephone companies and equipment manufacturers) to discuss means of connection to be used to connect registered key telephone and PBX systems to the telephone network.[8] At our informal meetings on May 13 and May 14, 1976, the telephone companies took the position that since the Commission had separated issues raised by intra-system wiring (wiring between the common equipment and station equipment) from issues raised by extra-system wiring (wiring between the common equipment and the telephone network) they would not discuss wiring issues as a unified topic of discussion, particularly in view of the pendency of filed petitions for reconsideration which addressed, inter alia, intra-system wiring.

20. There was substantial disagreement between the telephone company and non-telephone company participants. The telephone companies sought a continuation of the fail-safe philosophy which had already been adopted for connection of telephone instruments, data and ancillary equipment—fail-safe plug and jack connection, with the jacks installed by the local telephone company. The non-telephone company participants claimed that their personnel were as competent as telephone company personnel and that they should be permitted to use the same techniques as are currently employed by many telephone companies for installation of similar equipment, techniques which are not inherently fail-safe. When the participants found that they could not agree over the basic ground rules for connection of PBX and key telephone systems to the telephone network, in order that some useful result could be obtained they assumed arguendo that the fail-safe philosophy already in the rules would apply to these systems, and agreed to implementations thereof, while the non-telephone company participants reserved the right to contend formally before the Commission whether or not such fail-safe means would be required.

21. Under the assumption that action which could potentially negate the network protection built into the equipment would be limited, it was agreed that where "close proximity cabling" (defined below) is used to connect the PBX or key telephone system to the telephone network, certain plugs and telephone company-installed jacks could be used to effectuate the connection. The telephone companies agreed to bring the telephone connections into "close proximity" to the registered equipment or protective circuitry. Connectorized cabling would then be required between the equipment and the interface to the telephone network, and field installation of the connectors would not be permitted; instead, prior registration of the cable/connector combinations would be required. Thus, action during installation would be fail-safe, and not involve acts which, if improperly performed by the installer, could cause the parametric limitations of Part 68 to be exceeded. In recognition that this proposal would not allow for activities which are customary in PBX and key telephone installations (e.g., moves, rearrangements, connection, and disconnection of station equipment) it was also agreed that registered adapters which themselves are relatively fail-safe could also be used as part of the wiring path between the system and the telephone network. Such adapters would be required to contain internal jack and plug means for cross-connection and the like (pluggable patch panels).

22. "Close proximity cabling" was defined functionally as follows:

(a) Registered cable-connector combinations with pre-installed connectors;

(b) Installed in a visible manner (not in conduit);

(c) Fastened with non-conductive fasteners (for mechanical support) or laid in smooth-surface troughs.

23. In order for this limited proposal to operate, the telephone companies had to commit themselves to bringing the telephone connections into close proximity with the terminal equipment. There was discussion as to the meaning of this requirement and several proposed definitions were rejected as too limiting (e.g. "location specified by the customer", "in the same room", "in the same location as the telephone companies would use for installation of their own equipment", etc.). The consensus result was that a location would be chosen for interface of the terminal equipment with the telephone network which would allow the constraints on "close proximity cabling" (para. 22, supra.) to operate.[7]

24. The non-telephone company participants pointed out that under various local electrical and fire codes, when they install a PBX switchboard in a lobby they are required to place system wiring cables in conduit (a form of pipe which encloses electrical wiring) and that therefore, because space is limited in the switchboards, the proposal would not accommodate such installations. It was estimated that such lobby installations represented about 2 percent of all installations, and the carriers indicated their willingness to work out special procedures to accommodate such a small proportion of PBX installations. No such procedures have been proposed to date.

25. The non-telephone company participants, as was discussed previously, reserved the right to contend formally before us their desire to use the same wiring and connection techniques which the telephone companies are today using for their own key telephone and PBX installations. In fact, these non-telephone company participants asserted that they are presently using these techniques, although since their connections and wiring to date have been performed behind protective circuitry (telephone company-provided "connecting arrangements") this action has not had a significant potential for harm.

26. These telephone company techniques have included a mix of pre-fabricated connectorized cables (using wire which has either been manufactured or purchased to specifications on quality) and hard-wiring of the wire to connection blocks. It was indicated at the meeting that the current predominant form of connection block is a so-called "punch-down" block, with metallic tines into which wires may be inserted using an appropriate tool. The telephone companies claimed that this operation is not fail-safe, as it requires training in the use of the tool, and training of the personnel to assure that the proper wire is connected with the proper tine; pre-assembled connectorized cabling makes both such forms of training unnecessary. In addition, the telephone companies have used connectors which are field-installable, thereby permitting their wires to be cut to the appropriate length, and fished through narrow ducts or conduit (which would not allow a bulky connector to pass through its interior).

27. Our informal meetings also assumed, for the purposes of discussion, that the telephone companies themselves would have to use whatever means of connection were adopted.[9] There was some discussion as to whether adoption, by the telephone companies, of the fully connectorized means of connection of PBX and key telephone systems to the network, as proposed in the meeting, would increase their costs of equipment installation, as compared to their present practices of using a mix of hard-wiring and connectorized systems. While the views expressed at the meetings were somewhat speculative, there was general agreement that economies resulting from the more automated fully-connectorized technique would tend to balance any increased costs of using that technique, and that potentially the cost of installation would be reduced in the long run.

DISCUSSION

28. At this juncture, we are faced with several options in addressing extra-system and intra-system wiring, and means of connection of PBX and key telephone systems. First, there are problems related to action which, if improperly performed, can negate the effectiveness of network protection provided by registered equipment or protective circuitry. Second, there are problems related to customization and assembly of systems from sets of standard components which are uniquely assembled and configured for each unique installation. Third, there are problems related to a choice between institutional safeguards (GTE's approach) and hardware safeguards (AT&T's approach) to assuring conformance to the limitations of the rules.

29. PBX and key telephone systems will not, ordinarily, be installed by the uninformed lay public. They will tend to be installed either by the equipment manufacturer, a supplier who configures together subassemblies of the same or different manufacturers, or by service entitities specializing in such installations. Thus, the absolute fail-safe, mistake-proof philosophy of installation of telephone instruments, data and ancillary equipment, which we have adopted in the past for such equipment to be installed by the untrained, does not necessarily apply to PBX and key telephone installations. Some degree of discretionary action would appear to be warranted. On the other hand, the risk of exposure to violations of the technical requirements of Part 68, if these installations in fact are not properly performed, is greater for PBX and key telephone systems than other equipment; physically long runs of wire are involved, with greater opportunities of contacting power wiring and earth ground than with discrete items of terminal equipment such as telephone instruments (which normally have relatively short wires in full sight which are not embedded in walls and ducts).

30. The standards of the National Electrical Code, if followed in every installation, will tend to prevent the occurrence of hazardous voltages, but would be largely ineffective with regard to possible line imbalance due to crosses of the wiring with earth ground. Specifically, the Code provides, in section 800–3 thereof, that communications wiring must be physically separated from electrical power wiring, which would make crosses with such sources of hazardous voltages virtually impossible. The problem with adopting these standards is two-fold: (1) How do we assure that in every installation the standards will be followed; and (2) what force, if any, would the National Electrical Code have in the many jurisdictions which have not adopted it? An answer to the second question might be that we could adopt, as part of our rules, the applicable provision of the National Electrical Code and thereby make it effective nationally for telephone terminal equipment installation, wholly independent of the existing enforcement mechanisms for the Code.

31. This would still leave the first question pendant, however. GTE proposes attestation by the installer that each installation conforms to the standard, which process might well provide adequate assurances, particularly in view of the customer's substantial interest in properly performing business telephone services such as are provided in PBX and key telephone systems. Improperly performed installation which would violate the limitations of Part 68 has a high probability of rendering the equipment inoperative. AT&T, however, takes the position that attestation is not enough, that some form of inspection would be required[9], although it does not offer to perform such inspections.[10] AT&T's alternative proposal, of using a limited-purpose protective circuit (for hazardous voltages only) would moot considering the questions raised by GTE's proposals, as such a circuit would make it unnecessary for us to specify installation standards for system wiring except for the wiring between the circuitry and the telephone network. This extra-system wiring poses a simpler set of concerns as it need not consist of long runs, nor be located in close proximity to power wiring.

32. In considering the issues and proposals before us, relating to system wiring and means of connection of PBX and key telephone systems to the telephone network, we note that there may not have been adequate exploration of all possibilities for assuring adequate network protection with minimal governmental interference with efficient equipment design and installation techniques. Proposals before us concerning extra-system wiring are inconsistent with proposals before us concerning intra-system wiring, although the potential aberrations from improper wiring remain the same regardless of which type of wiring is involved (unless protective circuitry is interposed before such wiring).

33. We note that AT&T's proposed definition of "on-site wiring", for example, would allow for the installation of wiring terminated in spade lugs to be placed under terminal screws at the premises. This proposal relates to the extra-system wiring, to which no protection is accorded by protective circuitry, and if improperly performed (e.g. by placement of the lugs under the wrong screws, or by positioning the lugs so that they short against other screws or against one another) this installation could nullify the network protection accorded by equipment registration. Thus, AT&T's own proposal would allow for this form of discretionary action. On the other hand, if connectors are used for such wiring, field installation of the connectors using somewhat more fail-safe wire insertion tools is not permitted under AT&T's proposal, on the theory that mistakes in the installation of the connector could potentially lead to "harm". Finally, AT&T would only allow for intra-system wiring behind protective circuitry which would assure that this wiring, regardless of how it is performed, is fail-safe.

34. GTE's proposal requires different treatment of extra-system wiring and intra-system wiring. The intra-system wiring, which typically involves longer wiring runs and more wires than the extra-system wiring, is controlled under GTE's proposal through installer qualification and attestation. Yet, the extra-system wiring, which is more visible and presents far fewer problems, would be required to be rigidly limited by the FCC's rules, essentially to the constraints contained in our informal meeting's proposed definition of "close proximity cabling."

35. Moreover, we are informed that it is fairly widespread practice for telephone companies to contract out the installation of telephone wiring to others. While it could be argued that a telephone

[8] Such informal procedures, followed by formal rulemaking in Docket No. 20774, had expeditiously been used to arrive at suitable standard plugs and jacks for the connection of telephone instruments, ancillary and data equipment.

[7] Appendix B, infra., lists the entities who attended these meetings and Appendix C reports the agreed-upon specific means of connection of registered PBX and key telephone systems. AT&T subsequently submitted a proposed definition of "on-site wiring" which contains, inter alia, a somewhat different version of the constraints on "close proximity cabling" which were arrived at at the meetings. This too is reproduced in Appendix C and is available for comment herein. While adoption of the proposed connectors of Appendix C is a possible outcome of this proceeding, adoption of hard-wired ("punch-down") terminal blocks, either with or without some form of per-line or per-trunk disconnect mechanism (e.g. removable metallic links or clips) is also a possible outcome in view of our analysis of discretionary action and solicitation of comments thereupon.

[9] This was not a foregone conclusion at that time; that issue was then on appeal to the United States Court of Appeals, Fourth Circuit. The Court of Appeals has now sustained our inclusion of telephone company equipment within the registration program although pending a decision by the United States Supreme Court, the program presently remains stayed pendente lite as to telephone company equipment.

[9] The National Electrical Code is largely intended to govern installation of electrical power wiring and apparatus, although it also contains provisions related to communication wiring. It is today enforced, depending upon the jurisdiction involved, by licensure of electricians, by inspection by authorities, or by combinations thereof.

[10] The Rochester Telephone Company in Rochester, New York, has for several years allowed customer-provided PBX and key telephone equipment to be connected without "connecting arrangements". That telephone company itself performs inspection of the customer's system wiring.

company's contractor is operating under the telephone company's (presumably) informed control and possible inspection, the inescapable fact is that others than telephone company employees have been deemed by the telephone companies themselves to be competent to install and place wiring. This pattern also indicates that it has not been an insurmountable problem for other than telephone company installers to learn a set of wiring standards, and to conform their wiring to such standards.

B. PROPOSED RULES RELATING TO PBX AND KEY TELEPHONE SYSTEM INSTALLATION AND CONNECTION

36. In view of the foregoing discussion, we are soliciting comments on a variety of possible approaches to assuring adequate network protection, while retaining flexibility in equipment design and without imposing unnecessary burdens. We are asking that the fundamental issues relating to possible negation of the network protection built into the equipment be addressed, in the real-world environment of PBX and key telephone system installation, as well as the more specific issues relating to FCC rule changes and means of connection to the network.

37. We ask that comments not be limited solely to the GTE and AT&T proposals, as these proposals are not the only means available for assuring network protection. For example, both AT&T and GTE have proposed (different) acceptance tests to assure that no longitudinal imbalance results as a consequence of wiring installation; perhaps some form of acceptance testing (e.g. high-voltage pulse testing, or breakdown testing) could also be used to assure adequate insulation of telephone and power wiring. Alternatively, wiring could be required to be run in pipes (conduit) devoted exclusively to communications wiring. If that were the case, it would become virtually impossible for such wiring to contact hazardous voltages, and therefore hazardous voltage concerns would be vitiated. If such wiring were even further constrained, by requiring such pipes to be metallic and connected with earth ground, no possibility of exposure of the telephone network to hazardous voltages would remain.

38. Inspection could be used to assure proper wiring as well. A competent inspector could be required to examine, and if necessary to test, wiring installations to determine adequate insulation of the telephone wiring from power wiring; acceptance testing could be used, as currently proposed by both GTE and AT&T, to determine adequate longitudinal balance either as part of the inspection process or outside this process. Or, overall balance could be measured from the telephone company central office. That this possibility is not merely speculative is demonstrated by the fact that one telephone company, Rochester Telephone, has for several years used inspection to asusre adequate installation of non-telephone company premises wiring, without incident.

39. Other mixtures of discretionary action with constraints imposed by our rules are also possible when wiring and means of connection are considered together as part of the broader issues. For example, the constraints over extra-system wiring contained in AT&T's proposal no longer may be required (e.g. fail-safe installation techniques, standard plug/jack interface) if we adopt suitable controls over intra-system wiring which are applicable to extra-system wiring as well.

40. With regard to hardware protection, as currently proposed by AT&T (and by GTE for equipment which inherently incorporates this protection as part of its design), the draft circuit design submitted by AT&T to demonstrate feasibility may not be the most economic approach to achieving hazardous voltage limitation. This approach uses electromechanical technology (relays) which is not amendable to the cost reductions evidenced over the past decade in semiconductor technology. Other entities, other engineering expertise and other design approaches may well produce an alternative means of achieving the same degree of protection at a far lower cost than AT&T's estimated $20 per-circuit. A change in the cost of acheiving such protection might well tip the balance in our ultimate decision as to which approach to adopt.

41. In sum, therefore, we conclude that additional consideration of these matters is necessary. We specifically wish comments to address:

(a) What should be the form and extent of any discretionary action allowed in the installation of PBX and key telephone systems, and the configuration of PBX and key telephone systems from sets of registered components and subassemblies thereof?

(b) How, if at all, is the class of persons who are to be deemed competent to perform such action to be defined?

(c) What constraints shall be placed upon extra-system wiring (wiring between the system and the telephone network) and intra-system wiring (wiring between system components) through technical standards to be incorporated in Part 68 of the FCC's rules, consistent with levels of discretionary action which are to be allowed?

(d) If the present (tentative) approach of the registration program to PBX and key telephone system registration (interposition of protective circuitry between the telephone network and intra-system wiring) is to be continued, either without modification, modified as proposed by AT&T (hazardous voltage protection only) or as an alternative option to whatever rules are adopted herein, are there designs or design constraints which can reduce the cost of such circuitry below the levels which AT&T has advanced: $30 to $40 per-circuit if the tentative requirement of protection against both hazardous voltages and imbalance is retained; $20 to $25 per-circuit for AT&T's initial design of a circuit intended to protect solely against hazardous voltages?

(e) In view of the possible definition of a class of persons deemed competent to perform acts which potentially could negate the network protection built into registered PBX and key telephone equipment if improperly performed, and the possible allowance of levels of such action herein, what means shall be specified in Part 68 of the FCC's rules for connection of PBX and key telephone systems to the telephone network?

(f) Should inspection by qualified inspectors be used to assure proper installation of wiring? How is the class of "qualified" inspectors to be defined?

(g) Are telephone company employees qualified to perform inspection, and if so should telephone companies be required to conduct inspection of PBX and key telephone installations by non-affiliated suppliers or installers? Under what terms and conditions should the telephone companies be required to do so?

(h) Are the authorities who normally enforce the National Electrical Code (local inspectors or licensed electricians) qualified to perform inspection of PBX and key telephone installations? Could the Commission appropriately adopt rules which condition the right to connect registered PBX and key telephone systems to the telephone network upon satisfactory completion of such local inspection?

(i) If telephone companies are to remain as the only entities qualified to install wiring unless electrically located behind interposed protective circuitry, to what extent shall the telephone companies be required to install wiring that connects registered components of PBX and key telephone aystems? On what basis will the customer be able to use such telephone company-installed wiring? Who shall be required to furnish and/or own the wiring itself?

(j) In view of the possible continuation of our tentative requirement for interposed protective circuitry, or of our possible adoption of AT&T's proposal for limited-purpose interposed protective circuitry or a variant thereof, what procedures shall be adopted to allow for the installation of "grandfathered" PBX and key telephone equipment which does not already inherently contain such interposed protective circuitry?

(k) In view of the foregoing, what specific rules should be adopted in Part 68 of the FCC's rules and regulations, 47 CFR 68.1 et seq., to deal with the issues of discretionary action regarding installation and/or configuration of PBX and key telephone systems?

42. Appendix C hereto reports the means of connection which were advanced at our informal meetings regarding means of connecting PBX and key telephone systems to the telephone network, under the assumption that a fail-safe plug/jack means would be adopted. While adoption of such means is a possible outcome of this proceeding, in view of our revisitation of installation of such systems herein, adoption of hard-wired ("punch-down") terminal blocks is also a possible result should rules be adopted which assure that the discretionary action involved in performing such connections is properly performed. Hard-wired means could be used either with some form of disconnect mechanism (e.g. removeable metallic links or switches) to allow for immediate disconnection by a subscriber, consistent with the requirements of Section 68.104, or such a disconnect mechanism may prove to be unnecessary if we conclude that any such work will be performed by trained individuals.

C. ENVIRONMENTAL SIMULATION REQUIREMENTS FOR "LARGE" EQUIPMENT

43. In the companion Memorandum Opinion and Order which we are adopting today, we discuss various parties' contentions that the vibration, and temperature/humidity environmental simulation requirements of the present rules may become burdensome as applied to physically large equipment, such as some BPX and key telephone equipment. Physically large vibration test equipment and environmental test chambers would be required to test conformance to the present requirements of § 68.302(a)-(b). Our paramount concern, of course, remains protection of the telephone network, and we believe that the present requirements of the rules are in fact representative of environmental stress which foreseeably might occur to "large" equipment as well as to small equipment. Nevertheless, these parties assert that intallation procedures and acceptance testing which is, of necessity, associated with installation of such large equipment will weed out any units that might have failed as a consequence of stresses occasioned during shipment and installation, and that therefore the requirements of § 68.302(a)-(b) are unnecessary.

44. In an attempt, if at all possible, to avoid unnecessary burden to applicants, we are requesting comments on the following issues to resolve this matter:

(a) At what physical dimensions for "large" equipment (e.g. weight, width/depth, girth, volume, etc.) does it become excessively burdensome to require demonstration of conformance to § 68.302 (a)-(b)?

(b) In view of the packaging, shipment and installation techniques associated with such "large" equipment, will conformance to § 68.302(c) provide the requisite assurance of conformance of the equipment to the standards of Subpart D of Part 68 (other than § 68.302), over time and over subsequent production? What other requirements in addition thereto would be necessary?

(c) How, if at all, shall the Commission assure that such packaging, shipment and installation techniques as are described in response to the previous issue in fact will be employed for all installations of "large" equipment?

(d) In view of the foregoing, what specific rules or rule changes should be adopted in Part 68 of the FCC's rules and regulations, 47 CFR 68.1 et seq.?

45. Accordingly, and for the reasons heretofore stated: It is ordered, That interested parties may file comments on the issues delineated in paras. 41 and 44 herein prior to July 30, 1977, and may file reply comments prior to August 30, 1977.[11] In accordance with the provisions of § 1.419 of the Commission's Rules and regulations, 47 CFR 1.419, an original and 5 copies of all statements, briefs or comments shall be filed with the Federal Communications Commission, Washington, D.C. 20554, and all such comments will be available for public inspection in the Docket Reference Room at the Commission's Washington, D.C. offices.

46. It is further ordered, That pursuant to 47 U.S.C. 153(i), 154(j), 201-05, 215, 218, 220, 313, 403, 309(e)-(h) and 412, and 5 U.S.C. 553, notice is hereby given of proposed rule changes in Part 68 of the Commission's Rules and Regulations, 47 CFR 68.1 et seq., in accordance with the discussion and delineation of issues herein.

47. It is further ordered, That pursuant to 47 U.S.C. 151, 154(i), 154(j), 201-05, 215, 218, 220, 313, 403, 309(e)-(h) and 412, and 5 U.S.C. 553, Docket No. 19528 is hereby reopened, and that this proceeding is subject to further order by the Commission.

DESCRIPTION OF HAZARDOUS VOLTAGE PROTECTIVE CIRCUITRY [1]

(See Figure 1 Attached for Circuit Diagram)

The L relay contains a pair of bifilar windings so that under normal equipment operation (ringing, busy, or hold state), the two magnetic flux fields of the L relay cancel each other and the relay does not operate. When any of the hazardous conditions of 68.306(d) occur, the currents through the two L windings are not balanced and the L relay operates. Consider the fault condition consisting of an ac voltage impressed on CR with CT open. During positive half cycles, current flows to ground through the L contact, CR_1, C_1, T_1 and T_2 windings, CR_2, and the network (R_1, R_2, and C_1). During negative half cycles, current flows from ground through the network (R_1, R_2, and C_1), CR_3, C_1, T_1, and T_2 windings, CR_4 and the L contact to CR. The four diodes referred to above serve as a full wave bridge to derive a dc voltage to operate the T_1 and T_2 windings. The capacitor C_1 serves as a storage element to hold the T relays operated during the zero crossings of the hazardous voltage. The function of the network (R_1, R_2 and C_2) is to hold the T relays operated during the range of 17 to 60 Hz to limit the voltage impressed on the T relay windings. When the voltage on C_1 has risen sufficiently, the T relays operate. This causes the T_1 and T_2 transfer contacts to open the paths from CR and CT through the L windings and instead provide paths for CR and CT to their respective diode bridges. With current through the L relay windings terminated, the L contacts release and the path for the hazardous voltage condition considered above is through the T_1 contact.

APPENDIX C

1. Means of connection agreed upon.—a. Multiple-mounted arrangements of current-6-position "modular" jacks for T/R connections (see §§ 68.500(a) and 68.500(b) of the Commission's Rules).

b. 50-position "ribbon" connectors, male and female (see §§ 68.500(e) and 68.500(f) of the Commission's rules).

2. Discussion.—Under option "a" above, rearrangement and individual line (or trunk) disconnection is possible because each line (or trunk) is terminated on its own plug/jack combination. Under option "b" above, rearrangement and individual line disconnection is not possible unless a pluggable patch-panel adapter is interposed between the terminal equipment and network connectors.

Such an adapter was intended to be accommodated within the confines of the proposal to adopt option "b" above, if registered either as part of the connecting cable/connector combination leading from the telephone network to the terminal equipment, or as an integrated part of the terminal equipment itself.

3. Additional means offered, but not agreed upon.—The North American Telephone Association, a trade association of non-telephone company equipment manufacturers and suppliers, recommended that 25-pair, "punch-down" connecting blocks, be adopted as the interface to the telephone network. In the alternative, NATA recommended:

a. A modified 25-pair "punch-down" connecting block, modified to include a security cover, removeable clips to allow single line (or trunk) disconnection, and a side-mounted "ribbon" connector to implement option "b" above. The telephone company would perform the "punch-down" wiring operations on its connecting block, but it would allow non-telephone company personnel to remove the clips if necessary. Thus, the actual interface would remain a telephone company installed "ribbon" connector as in option "b" above, but without one of its limitations.

b. A conventional, unmodified, 25-pair "punch-down" connecting block, wherever local telephone company policy permits.

c. A conventional, 25-pair "punch-down" connecting block, requiring wire jumpers for continuity between the telephone network connections and terminal equipment connections, to be installed by the installer of the terminal equipment.

4. Adapters. A definition of an adapter which might be interpositioned between otherwise mating "ribbon" connectors, to allow additional flexibility, was offered. The limitations of this definition were:

a. compatibility with the standard connectors;

b. construction so as to minimize the probability of physical damage in its normal working environment;

c. design to preclude the possibility of intentional or accidental transportation of tip and ring within a pair, splitting of pairs, an open conductor within a pair, shorts, or crosses to other conductors or earth ground;

d. exposed working surfaces of the adapter so designed that, with any protective cover removed, and with internal jumpers either installed or removed, probing of the working surface with a conductive sphere of one inch in diameter shall not result in contact with any line conductor; and

e. design to allow multiple-ganging of adapters in such a manner as to facilitate cross-connection between adapters without running any jumpers outside the perimeter of the ganged adapters.

5. Bell Proposal. As revised in its July 2, 1976 Reply to Oppositions to its Petition for Reconsideration of our Second Report and Order in Docket No. 19528, AT&T proposed the following definition of "on-site wiring", which would be the wiring connecting the registered terminal equipment or protective circuitry with the telephone network for a PBX or key telephone system installation:

On-Site Wiring. Any wiring required on the terminal equipment side of the interface for the assembly, installation or rearrangement of equipment on a user's premises, including but not limited to the connection of units of a multiple unit installation and the adaptation of a unit(s) to execute factory options. All such installations or rearrangements of wiring and equipment constitute "on-site wiring" except the following:

(1) Performed by the User:

(a) The connection together of units of equipment by means of factory assembled plug and/or jack-ended cords of no more than 25 feet in length that are provided as part of the registered equipment, or

(b) The performance of routine maintenance in accordance with instructions contained in the Grantee's instruction manual.

(2) Performed by the Grantee or the trained, authorized agent of the Grantee:

(a) The connection of factory assembled connectorized or spade-tipped wiring harnesses or connectorized or spade-tipped cords of no more than 25 feet in length (or any practical length: Provided, That they are jacketed with at least .030 inches of polyvinyl chloride or equivalent) to other connectors or terminal fields for spade-tip leads, provided that:

(i) The wiring harness or cord is provided as part of the registered equipment.

(ii) Only signals used for network control signaling and supervision described in § 68.306(a) or voltages from nonhazardous sources described in § 68.306(b)(4) appear at any time on any of the terminals of the connecting fields or on any of the leads in the wiring harness or cord, and

(iii) The terminal field is so constructed and located as to preclude inadvertent contact of 60 Hertz commercial AC power with any of the terminals.

(b) The insertion or exchange of plug-in circuit modules that are factory assembled and provided as part of the registered equipment.

(c) The installation of "equipment-change" kits which are factory assembled and provided as part of the registered equipment, or

(d) The performance of changes in equipment after compliance with the notice requirements of § 68.214.

Several applicants have requested that certain information submitted in an application not be released by the Federal Railroad Administrator ("Administrator") upon request from a member of the public made under the Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA"). In many cases, it is the same category of information in each application that the applicants have sought confidential treatment for.

The Administrator believes that certain categories of information should be treated as confidential because the release of such information from any title V application would, in every case, cause substantial harm to the competitive position of the applicant, or be a trade secret of the applicant. Forecasted financial data submitted in an application, if released, might also create securities laws complications. The Administrator believes that such categories of information all fall under Exemption 4 of the FOIA, 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(4).

Accordingly, the Administrator proposes to withhold from mandatory disclosure under the FOIA the following categories of information required to be included in title V applications for financial assistance (listed by section of Title 49, Code of Federal Regulations):

258.9(c) and 260.9(c). Any financial statements containing periodic data not previously filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission ("Commission").

258.9(d) and 260.9(d). Any financial statements containing periodic data not previously filed with the Commission, and any financial statements for forecasted months.

258.9(e) and 260.9(e). All information submitted under these sections.

258.9(f) and 260.9(f). Any financial statements containing periodic data not previously filed with the Commission, and any financial statements for forecasted months.

258.9(g) and 260.9(g). All information submitted under these sections.

258.7(a)(10)(i), (ii), (iii), (iv), (v), (vi). Statements concerning current and projected traffic base, operating plans, system-wide plans to maintain equipment and right-of-way, rationalization plan, facilities that could be consolidated, and impact of financial assistance on financial forecasts.

Economic Impact Statement: The Federal Railroad Administration has determined that this document does not contain a major proposal requiring preparation of an Economic Impact Statement under Executive Order 11821, OMB Circular A–107, and DOT Order 2050.4 (1976).

Compliance with Departmental Regulatory Reform. In conformance with the Secretary's regulatory policies, 41 FR 16200 (1976), FRA Notice 1100.1 (1976), the impact of this proposed rule has been analyzed and has been determined to be so minimal that the proposal does not warrant an evaluation.

ADMINISTRATOR, EMERGENCY NATURAL GAS ACT OF 1977

[Docket No. E77-123]

EL PASO NATURAL GAS CO.

Emergency Order Pursuant to Section 6 of Pub. L. 95-2

On June 17, 1977, El Paso Natural Gas Company, (El Paso) filed, pursuant to Section 6 of the Emergency Natural Gas Act of 1977 (Act), Pub. L. 95-2 (91 Stat. 4 (1977)) an application for authorization to make certain emergency purchases of natural gas from Diamond Shamrock Corporation (Diamond). El Paso also requests permission to have this gas transported. For the reasons set forth below, I authorize the purchase and transportation requested.

By agreement dated June 16, 1977, El Paso agreed to purchase 10,000 Mcfd of natural gas from Diamond's McKee Gasoline Plant, Moore County, Texas. Said agreement will begin as soon as practicable as an emergency purchase and will terminate on July 31, 1977.

El Paso will purchase these supplies at a price of $2.25 per MMBtu, inclusive of all state and local taxes and other adjustments. I find the price to be fair and equitable in accordance with Order No. 2.

El Paso advises that arrangements have been made for the transportation of the subject gas. Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America (Natural) will receive the subject gas at the point of interconnection between Natural's facilities and Diamond's McKee Gasoline Plant for El Paso's account. Natural will transport or by displacement deliver thermal equivalent amounts at existing points of interconnection between El Paso's and Natural's respective pipeline facilities located in Reeves and Ward Counties, Texas. Natural will charge El Paso a handling fee of one cent for each Mcf of gas redelivered, plus 0.4 percent of the thermal equivalent for gas required for compression fuel in its pipeline system. Since the parties have agreed upon a transportation charge, I find no basis for prescribing other charges.

El Paso shall submit weekly reports as required by Order No. 4.

Pursuant to Section 6(a) of the Act I hereby authorize Diamond to sell El Paso natural gas from the McKee Gasoline Plant, Moore County, Texas, on the terms and conditions set forth in El Paso's filing in this proceeding. Pursuant to Section 6(c)(1) of the Act, I hereby authorize and order Natural to transport gas for El Paso.

This order is issued pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the President in Executive Order No. 11969 (February 2, 1977), and shall be served upon El Paso, Diamond, and Natural. This order shall also be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

This order and authorization granted herein are subject to the continuing authority of the Administrator under Pub. L. 95-2 and the rules and regulations which may be issued thereunder.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

PEANUTS; 1977 CROP

Incoming and Outgoing Quality Regulations and Indemnification

Pursuant to the provisions of sections 5, 31, 32, 34, and 36 of the marketing agreement regulating the quality of domestically produced peanuts heretofore entered into between the Secretary of Agriculture and various handlers of peanuts (30 FR 9402) and upon recommendation of the Peanut Administrative Committee established pursuant to such agreement and other information it is hereby found that the appended "Incoming Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts," "Outgoing Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts" and the "Terms and Conditions of Indemnification—1977 Crop Peanuts," which modify or are in addition to the provisions of section 5, 31, 32, and 36 of said agreement will tend to effectuate the objectives of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and of such agreement and should be issued.

The Peanut Administrative Committee has recommended that the appended "Incoming Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts," "Outgoing Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts" and the "Terms and Conditions of Indemnification—1977 Crop Peanuts," be issued to implement and effectuate the provisions of the aforementioned sections of the marketing agreement. The 1977 peanut crop year begins July 1 and procedures and regulations for operations under the agreement should be established thereby affording handlers maximum time to plan their operations accordingly. The handlers of peanuts who will be affected hereby have signed the marketing agreement authorizing the issuance hereof, they are represented on the Committee which has prepared and recommended these quality regulations and terms and conditions of indemnification for approval.

Upon consideration of the Committee recommendation and other available information the appended "Incoming Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts," "Outgoing Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts," and the "Terms and Conditions of Indemnification—1977 Crop Peanuts" are hereby approved.

Dated: June 17, 1977.

CHARLES R. BRADER,
Deputy Director,
Fruit and Vegetable Division.

INCOMING QUALITY REGULATION—1977 CROP PEANUTS

The following modify section 5 of the peanut marketing agreement and modify or are in addition to the restrictions of section 31 on handler receipts or acquisitions of 1977 crop peanuts:

(a) Modification of section 5, paragraphs (b), (c), and (d). Paragraphs (b), (c), and (d) of section 5 of the peanut marketing agreement are modified as to 1977 crop farmers stock peanuts to read respectively as follows:

(b) Segregation 1. "Segregation 1 peanuts" means farmers stock peanuts with not more than 2 percent damaged kernels nor more than 1 percent concealed damage caused by rancidity, mold or decay and which are free from visible Aspergillus flavus.

(c) Segregation 2. "Segregation 2 peanuts" means farmers stock peanuts with more than 2 percent damaged kernels or more than 1 percent concealed damage caused by rancidity, mold or decay and which are free from visible Aspergillus flavus.

(b) Moisture. Except as provided under paragraph (e) Seed peanuts, no handler shall receive or acquire peanuts containing more than 10 percent moisture: Provided, That peanuts of a higher moisture content may be received and dried to not more than 10 percent moisture prior to storing or milling. On farmers' stock, such moisture determinations shall be rounded to the nearest whole number; on shelled peanuts, the determinations shall be carried to the hundredths place and shall not be rounded to the nearest whole number.

(c) Damage. For the purpose of determining damage, other than concealed damage, on farmers stock peanuts, all percentage determinations shall be rounded to the nearest whole number.

(d) Loose shelled kernels. Handlers may separate from the loose shelled kernels received with farmers stock peanuts, those sizes of kernels which ride screens with the following slot openings: Runner, 15/64 x 3/4 inch; Spanish and Valencia, 15/64 x 3/4 inch; Virginia, 15/64 x 1 inch. If so separated, those loose shelled kernels which do not ride such screens, shall be removed from the farmers stock peanuts and shall be held separate and apart from other peanuts and disposed of for inedible use as provided in paragraph (g) of the Outgoing Quality Regulation. If the kernels which ride the prescribed screen are not separated, the entire amount of loose shelled kernels shall be removed from farmers stock peanuts and shall be so held and so delivered or disposed of. The loose shelled kernels which ride the screens may be included with shelled peanuts prepared by the handler for inspection and sale for human consumption. For the purpose of this regulation, the term "loose shelled kernels" means peanut kernels or portions of kernels completely free of their hulls and found in deliveries of farmers stock peanuts.

(e) Seed peanuts. A handler may acquire and deliver for seed purposes farmers stock peanuts which meet the requirements of Segregation 1 peanuts. If the seed peanuts are produced under the auspices of a State agency which regulates or controls the production of seed peanuts, they may contain up to 3 percent damaged kernels and have visible Aspergillus flavus, and, in addition, the following moisture content, as applicable:

(1) For seed peanuts produced in the Southeastern and Virginia-Carolina areas, they may contain up to 11 percent moisture except Virginia type peanuts which are not stacked at harvest time may contain up to 12 percent moisture; and (2) for seed peanuts produced in the Southwestern area, they may contain up to 10 percent moisture.

However, any such seed peanuts with visible Aspergellus flavus shall be stored and shelled separate from other peanuts, and any residual not used for seed shall not be used or disposed of for human consumption unless it is determined to be wholesome by chemical assay for aflatoxin. A handler whose operations may include custom seed shelling, may receive, custom shell, and deliver for seed purposes farmers stock peanuts and such peanuts shall be exempt from the Incoming Quality Regulation requirements and therefore shall not be required to be inspected and certified as meeting the Incoming Quality Regulation requirements and the handler shall report to the Committee as requested the weight of each lot of farmers stock peanuts received on such basis on a form furnished by the Committee. However, handlers who acquire seed peanut residuals from their custom shelling of uninspected (farmers stock) seed peanuts, or from another sheller or producer who has or has not signed the marketing agreement shall hold and/or mill such residuals separate and apart from other receipts or acquisitions of the handler and such residuals which meet Outgoing Quality Regulation requirements may be disposed of by sale to human consumption outlets and any portion not meeting such requirements shall be disposed or by sale as peanuts failing to meet human consumption requirements pursuant to paragraph (i) of the Outgoing Quality Regulation.

(f) Oilstock. Handlers may acquire for disposition to domestic crushing or export, to countries other than Canada and Mexico, farmers stock peanuts of a lower quality than Segregation 1 or grades or sizes of shelled peanuts or cleaned inshell peanuts which fail to meet the requirements for human consumption. The provision of section 31 of the marketing agreement restricting acquisitions of such peanuts to handlers who are crushers is hereby modified to authorize all handlers to act as accumulators and acquire, from other handlers or non-handlers, Segregation 2 or 3 farmers stock peanuts. Handlers may also acquire from other handlers shelled or fragmented peanuts originating from Segregation 2 or 3 farmers stock, or the entire mill production of shelled or fragmented peanuts from Segregation 1 farmers stock, or lots of shelled peanuts, originating from Segregation 1 peanuts and which have been positive lot identified as specified in paragraph (d) of the Outgoing Quality Regulation, which failed to meet the requirements for human consumption pursuant to paragraph (a) of the Outgoing Quality Regulation: Provided, That all such acquisitions are held separate from Segregation 1 peanuts acquired for milling or from edible grades of shelled or milled peanuts. Handlers may commingle the Segregation 2 and 3 peanuts or keep them separate and apart as provided in paragraph (j) of the Outgoing Quality Regulation. Further disposition or commingling of such peanuts shall be only as provided in paragraph (1) of the Outgoing Quality Regulation. Handlers who acquire farmers stock peanuts of a lower quality than Segregation 1 or grades or sizes of shelled peanuts or cleaned inshell peanuts which fail to meet the requirements for human consumption shall report such acquisitions as prescribed by the Committee. To be eligible to receive or acquire Segregation 2 or 3 farmers stock peanuts and shelled or "fragmented" peanuts originating therefrom, a handler shall pay to the Area Association a fee for the purpose of covering cost of supervision of the disposition of such peanuts.

(g) Segregation 3 control. To assure the removal from edible outlets of any lot of peanuts determined by Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service to be Segregation 3, each handler shall inform each employee, country buyer, commission buyer or like person through whom he receives peanuts, of the need to receive and withhold all lots of Segregation 3 peanuts from milling for edible use. If any lot of Segregation 3 farmers stock peanuts is not withheld but returned to the producer, the handler shall cause the Inspection Service to forward immediately a copy of the inspection certificate on the lot to the designated office of the handler and a copy to the Committee which shall be used only for information purposes.

(h) Warehouse storage facilities. Handlers shall report to the Committee, on a form furnished by the Committee, all storage facilities or contract storage facilities which they will use to store acquisitions of 1977 crop Segregation 1 farmers stock peanuts and all such storage facilities must be reported prior to storing of any such handler acquisitions. All such storage facilities shall have reasonable and safe access to allow for inspection of the facility and its contents. All such storage facilities must be of sound construction, in good repair, built and equipped so as to provide suitable storage and sufficient safeguards to prevent moisture condensation and provide adequate protection for farmers stock peanuts. All breaks or openings in the walls, floors or roofs of the facilities shall have been repaired so as to keep out moisture. Elevator pits and well must be kept dry and free of moisture at all times. Insect control procedures must be carried out in such a manner as to prevent undesirable moisture in the storage facilities. The Committee may make periodic inspections of storage facilities and farmers stock peanuts stored in such facilities to determine if handlers are adhering to these requirements.

(i) Shelled peanuts. Handlers may acquire from other handlers, for remilling and subsequent disposition to human consumption outlets, shelled peanuts (which originated from "Segregation 1 peanuts") that fail to meet the requirements specified for human consumption in paragraph (a) of the Outgoing Quality Regulation. Any lot of such peanuts must be accompanied by a valid inspection certificate for grade factors, an aflatoxin assay certificate and must be positive lot identified. Transactions made in this manner shall be reported to the Committee by both the buyer and seller on a form provided by the Committee. Peanuts acquired pursuant to this paragraph shall be held and milled seperate and apart from other receipts or acquisitions of the receiving handler and further disposition shall be regulated by paragaph (h)(1) of the Outgoing Quality Regulation.

OUTGOING QUALITY REGULATION—1977 CROP PEANUTS

The following modify or are in addition to the peanut marketing agreement restrictions of section 32 on handler disposition of 1977 crop peanuts:

(a) Shelled peanuts. No handler shall ship or otherwise dispose of shelled peanuts for human consumption unless appropriate samples for pretesting have been drawn in accordance with paragraph (c) of this regulation, or which if of a category not eligible for indemnification are not certified "negative" as to aflatoxin, or which contain more than (1) a total of 1.50 percent unshelled peanuts and damaged kernels; (2) a total of 3.00 percent unshelled peanuts and damaged kernels and minor defects; (3)

9.00 percent moisture in the Southeastern and Southwestern areas, or 10.00 percent moisture in the Virginia-Carolina area; or (4) 0.10 percent foreign material in peanuts "with splits" and peanuts of U.S. grade, other than U.S. splits, or 0.20 percent foreign material in U.S. splits and other edible quality peanuts not of U.S. grade. The lot size of such peanuts in bulk or bags shall not exceed 200,000 pounds. Fall through in such peanuts shall not exceed 4 percent except that in peanuts other than "No. Two Virginia" fall through consisting of either split and broken kernels or whole kernels shall not exceed 3 percent and fall through of whole kernels in Runners or Virginias "with splits" shall not exceed 3 percent or 2 percent on Spanish "with Splits." The term "fall through" as used herein, shall mean sound split and broken kernels and whole kernels which pass through specified screens. Screens used for determining fall through in peanuts covered by this paragraph (a) shall be as follows:

Type	Screen openings
	Split and broken kernels	Whole kernels
Runners	$^{13}/_{64}$ in round..	$^{16}/_{64}$ x $^{3}/_{4}$ in slot.
Spanish and Valencia	$^{16}/_{64}$ in round..	$^{16}/_{64}$ x $^{3}/_{4}$ in slot.
Virginia, except No. 2 Virginia.	$^{17}/_{64}$ in round..	$^{16}/_{64}$ x 1 in slot.
No. 2 Virginia.	$^{17}/_{64}$ in round only for split, broken and whole kernels.

("No. Two Virginia" means Virginia type peanuts that meet requirements of U.S. No. 2 Virginia grade peanuts except for tolerances for: (1) Damage or unshelled peanuts and minor defects; and (2) sound peanuts and portions of peanuts which pass through the prescribed screen. Such tolerances shall be the same as those listed heretofore in this paragraph. Runners, Spanish or Virginia "with splits" means shelled peanuts which do not contain more than (a) 15 percent splits, (b) for Spanish 2.00 percent whole kernels which will pass through $^{15}/_{64}$ x $^{3}/_{4}$ slot screen; for Runners 3.00 percent whole kernels which will pass through $^{16}/_{64}$ x $^{3}/_{4}$ inch slot screen; and for Virginias 3.00 percent whole kernels which will pass through a $^{15}/_{64}$ x 1 inch slot screen, and (c) otherwise meet specification of U.S. No. 1 grade).

(b) Cleaned inshell peanuts. No handler shall ship or otherwise dispose of cleaned inshell peanuts for human consumption: (1) With more than 1.00 percent kernels with mold present unless a sample of such peanuts, drawn by an inspector of the Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service, was analyzed chemically by laboratories approved by the Committee or by a U.S. Department of Agriculture laboratory (hereinafter referred to as "USDA laboratory") and found to be wholesome relative to aflatoxin; (2) with more than 2.00 percent peanuts with damaged kernels; (3) with more than 10.00 percent moisture; or (4) with more than 0.50 percent foreign material. The lot size of such peanuts in bags or bulk shall not exceed 200,000 pounds.

(c) Pretesting shelled peanuts. Each handler shall cause appropriate samples of each lot of edible quality shelled peanuts to be drawn by an inspector of the Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service. The gross amount of peanuts drawn shall be large enough to provide for a grade analysis, for a grading check-sample, and for three 48-pound samples for aflatoxin assay. The three 48-pound samples shall be designated by the Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service as "Sample No. 1", "Sample No. 2", and "Sample No. 3" and each sample shall be placed in a suitable container and "positive lot identified" by means acceptable to the Inspection Service and the Committee. Sample No. 1 may be prepared for immediate testing or Sample No. 1, Sample No. 2, and Sample No. 3 may be returned to the handler for testing at a later date. However, before shipment of the lot to the buyer (receiver), the handler shall cause Sample No. 1 to be ground by the Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service or a USDA or designated laboratory in a "subsampling mill" approved by the Committee. The resultant ground subsample from Sample No. 1 shall be of a size specified by the Committee and be designated as "Subsample 1–AB" and at the handler's or buyer's option, a second subsample may also be extracted from Sample No. 1. It shall be designated as "Subsample 1–CD". Subsample 1–CD may be sent as requested by the handler or buyer, for aflatoxin assay, to a laboratory listed on the most recent Committee list of approved laboratories that can provide analyses results on such samples in 36 hours. Subsample 1–AB shall be analyzed only in USDA or designated laboratories. Both Subsamples 1–AB and 1–CD shall be accompanied by a notice of sampling signed by the inspector containing, at least, identifying information as to the handler (shipper), the buyer (receiver) if known, and the positive lot identification of the shelled peanuts. A copy of such notice covering each lot shall be sent to the Committee office.

The samples designated as Sample No. 2 and Sample No. 3 shall be held as aflatoxin check-samples by the Inspection Service or the handler and shall not be included in the shipment to the buyer until the analyses results from Sample No. 1 are known. Upon call from the USDA or designated laboratory or the Committee, the handler shall cause Sample No. 2 to be ground by the Inspection Service in a "subsampling mill." The resultant ground subsample from Sample No. 2 shall be of the size specified by the Committee and it shall be designated as "Subsample 2–AB." Upon call from the USDA or designated laboratory or the Committee, the handler shall cause Sample No. 3 to be ground by the Inspection Service in a "subsampling mill." The resultant ground subsample from Sample No. 3 shall be of the size specified by the Committee and it shall be designated as "Subsample 3–AB." Subsample 2–AB and Subsample 3–AB shall be analyzed only in USDA or designated laboratories and each shall be accompanied by a notice of sampling. A copy of each such notice shall be sent to the Committee office and the cost of delivery of Subsamples 2–AB and 3–AB to the laboratory and the cost of assay on them shall be at the Committee's expense.

All costs involved in sampling and testing Subsample 1–CD shall be for the account of the buyer of the lot and at his expense. The cost of assay on Subsample 1–AB and a portion of the cost (specified by the Committee) of drawing the three 48-pound samples, grinding of Sample No. 1 and preparation and delivery of Subsample 1–AB to the laboratory shall be for the account of the buyer. However, if the handler elects to pay for these costs, he shall charge the buyer the amount specified by the Committee when he invoices the peanuts and, if more than one buyer, on a pro rata basis. Any remaining costs of drawing the three 48-pound samples, grinding of Sample No. 1 and preparation and delivery of Subsample 1–AB shall be for the account of the handler and shall be shown on the grade analysis certificate covering the lot. When any of the samples have been lost, misplaced, or spoiled and replacement samples are needed, the entire cost of drawing the replacement samples shall be for the account of the handler.

The results of each assay shall be reported to the buyer listed on the notice of sampling and, if the handler desires, to the handler. If a buyer is not listed on the notice of sampling, the results of the assay shall be reported to the handler who shall promptly cause notice to be given to the buyer, of the contents thereof, and such handler shall not be required to furnish additional samples for assay.

(d) Identification. Each lot of shelled or cleaned inshell peanuts shipped or otherwise disposed of for human consumption shall be identified by positive lot identification procedures. For the purpose of this regulation, "positive lot identification" of a lot of shelled or inshell peanuts is a means of relating the inspection certificate to the lot covered so that there can be no doubt that the peanuts delivered are the same ones described on the inspection certificate. Such procedure on bagged peanuts shall consist of attaching a lot numbered tag bearing the official stamp of the Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service to each filled bag in the lot. The tag shall be sewed (machine sewed if shelled peanuts) into the closure of the bag except that in plastic bags the tag shall be inserted prior to sealing so that the official stamp is visible. Any peanuts moved in bulk or bulk bins shall have their lot identity maintained by sealing the conveyance and if in other containers by other means acceptable to the Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service and to the Committee. All lots of shelled or cleaned inshell peanuts shall be handled, stored, and shipped under positive lot identification procedures.

(e) Reinspection. Whenever the Committee has reason to believe that peanuts may have been damaged or deteriorated while in storage the Committee may reject the then effective inspection certificate and may require the owner of the peanuts to have a reinspection to establish whether or not such peanuts may be disposed of for human consumption.

(f) Inter-plant transfer. Any handler may transfer peanuts from one plant owned by him to another of his plants or to commercial storage, without having such peanuts positive lot identified and certified as meeting quality requirements, but such transfer shall be only to points within the same production area and ownership shall have been retained by the handler. Upon any transferred peanuts being disposed of for human consumption, they shall meet all the requirements applicable to such peanuts.

(g) Loose shelled kernels, fall through and pickouts. (1) Loose shelled kernels which do not ride screens with the following slot openings: Runner—$^{16}/_{64}$ x $^{3}/_{4}$ inch; Spanish and Valencia —$^{16}/_{64}$ x $^{3}/_{4}$ inch, Virginia—$^{16}/_{64}$ x 1 inch, and fall through and pickouts; shall be disposed of only by sale as domestic oil stock, by crushing or as specified in paragraph (g)(3) hereinafter. For the purpose of this regulation: the term "non-edible quality peanuts" described in this paragraph means loose shelled kernels, fall through, and pickouts; the term "loose shelled kernels" means peanuts kernels or portions of kernels completely free of their hulls, either as found in deliveries of farmers stock peanuts or those which fail to ride the screens (U.S. No. 1 screens) in removing whole kernels; the term "fall through" has the same meaning as in paragraph (a) of this regulation; and the term "pickouts" means those peanuts removed at the picking table, by electronic equipment, or otherwise during the milling process.

(2) All loose shelled kernels, fall through, and pickouts shall be kept separate and apart from other milled peanuts that are to be shipped into edible channels. Each such category of non-edible quality peanuts shall be bagged separately in suitable new or clean, sound, used bags or placed in bulk containers acceptable to the Committee, except that loose shelled kernels and fall through may be commingled in the same lot. Such peanuts shall be identified by positive lot identification procedures set forth in paragraph (d) but using a red tag, and such peanuts shall be inspected by the Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service and a certification made on each lot as to moisture and foreign material content. Such lot size, whether in bags or bulk, shall not exceed 200,000 pounds.

(3) In addition to disposition outlets specified in paragraph (g)(1), fall through that has been sampled and determined negative as to aflatoxin content may be disposed of for use as wildlife feed or bait for rodents in labeled containers approved by the Committee. Each category of non-edible quality peanuts described in paragraph (g)(1) and identified as prescribed in paragraph (g)(2) may be exported in bulk or bags to countries other than Mexico or Canada pursuant to the provisions prescribed for such disposition in paragraph (l)(1) or (l)(2) of this regulation or they may be moved to another handler for such disposition. Such peanuts may be disposed of to domestic crushing as "unrestricted" if they are certified negative as to aflatoxin content and may be commingled at the crusher with any other category of peanuts detemined by paragraph (l)(1) of this regulation to be eligible for such "unrestricted" crushing. Non-edible quality peanuts described in paragraph (g)(1) which have not been certified negative as to aflatoxin are not eligible for "unrestricted" crushing but may be disposed of to domestic crushing as "restricted" and may be commingled at the crusher with any other category of peanuts described in paragraph (l)(2). Such non-edible quality peanuts may be disposed of to domestic crushing or export without supervision by the Area Association if they are held separate and apart from peanuts on which supervision is required. However, if non-edible quality peanuts described in paragraph (g)(1) are exported or crushed in commingle with peanuts on which supervision is required, the handler shall cause the Area Association to supervise the commingling and fragmenting for disposition to export and the commingling and domestic crushing on all categories of peanuts included in such commingling. All movement and disposition of such inedible quality peanuts shall be reported by the handler as prescribed by the committee.

Meal produced from peanuts which were disposed of to crushing as "restricted" shall be used or disposed of as fertilizer or other non-feed use. To prevent use of restricted meal for feed, handlers shall either denature it or restrict its sale to licensed or registered U.S. fertilizer manufacturers or firms engaged in exporting who will export such meal for non-feed use or sell it to the aforesaid fertilizer manufacturers. However, loose shelled kernels, fall through and pickouts and meal from such peanuts, in specifically identified lots not exceeding 200,000 pounds may be sampled by Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service or by the Area Association if authorized by the Committee, and tested for aflatoxin by laboratories approved by the Committee or by a USDA laboratory, at handler's or crusher's expense, and if such meet Committee standards, the meal may be disposed of for feed use.

(4) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this regulation or of the Incoming Quality Regulation applicable to 1977 crop peanuts, a handler may transfer non-edible quality peanuts described in paragraph (g)(1) to another plant within his own organization or transfer or sell such peanuts to a crusher for crushing. Sales or tranafer of restricted peanuts to domestic crushers who are not handlers under the agreement shall be made only on the condition that they agree to comply with the terms of this paragraph (g) and all other applicable requirements of this regulation, including the reporting requirements.

(h) Peanuts failing quality requirements. (1) Handlers may sell to other handlers, for further handling, shelled peanuts (which originated from Segregation 1 peanuts) that fail to meet the requirements for disposition to human consumption outlets heretofore specified in paragraph (a). Lots of peanuts disposed of in this manner must be accompanied by a valid grade inspection certificate, an aflatoxin assay certificate and must be positive lot identified. Transactions made in this manner shall be reported to the Committee by both the seller and buyer on a form provided by the Committee. Any such peanuts acquired by handlers pursuant to paragraph (i) of the Incoming Quality Regulation shall be held and milled separate and apart from other receipts or acquisitions of the receiving handler and further disposition shall be regulated by the requirements specified heretofore or pursuant to paragraph (h)(3) hereinafter.

(2) Handlers may blanch or cause to have blanched positive identified shelled peanuts (which originated from Segregation 1 peanuts) that fail to meet the requirements of paragraph (a) of this regulation because of excessive damage, minor defects, moisture, or foreign material or are positive as to aflatoxin. Handlers who move such peanuts to a blancher shall report, to the Committee on a form furnished by the Committee, movement of each such lot and the title shall be retained by the handler until the peanuts are blanched and certified by an inspector of the Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service as meeting the requirements for disposal into human consumption outlets. To be eligible for disposal into human consumption outlets, such peanuts after blanching, must meet specifications for unshelled peanuts, damaged kernels, minor defects, moisture, and foreign material as listed in paragraph (a) of this regulation and be accompanied by an aflatoxin certificate determined to be negative by the Committee. Blanching under the provisions of this paragraph shall be performed only by those firms who agree to procedures acceptable to the Committee and who are approved by the Committee to do such blanching.

(3) Handlers may dispose of positive identified shelled peanuts (which originated from "Segregation 1 peanuts") which fail to meet the requirements of paragraph (a) of the Outgoing Quality Regulation: (a) to domestic crushing, (b) to export to countries other than Canada and Mexico, provided they meet fragmented requirements, (c) to crushers who are not handlers but are approved by the Committee, or (d) to other handlers for crushing or fragmenting exportation. Each lot of such peanuts shall have been positive lot identified as prescribed in paragraph (d). Handlers may dispose of such peanuts as "unrestricted": Provided, That each lot has been sampled and assayed for aflatoxin as specified in paragraph (c) and determined to be negative as to aflatoxin by the Committee. Handlers who have acquired any such unrestricted peanuts from another handler or from their own operations may commingle such peanuts with those from their own operations at the crusher, or during the fragmenting operation or after fragmenting for further disposition as "unrestricted" pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (l)(1) of this regulation. Lots of peanuts covered by the provisions of this paragraph (h)(3), which have not been assayed for aflatoxin content or which have been assayed and determined to be unwholesome as to aflatoxin by the Committee, are not eligible for disposition as "unrestricted." Therefore, the disposition of such peanuts to export or domestic crushing shall be as "restricted." However, handlers who have acquired such restricted peanuts from another handler may commingle such peanuts with those from his own operations at the crusher, or during the fragmenting operation, or after fragmenting for further disposition as restricted pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (l)(2). Peanuts regulated by this paragraph (h)(3) may be disposed of to domestic crushing or export without supervision by the Area Association if they are held separate and apart from peanuts on which supervision is required. However, if any such peanuts are commingled with peanuts on which supervision is required, the handler shall cause the Area Association to supervise the commingling and fragmenting for disposition to export and the commingling and domestic crushing on all categories of peanuts included in such commingling. All movement and disposition of peanuts covered by the provisions of this paragraph shall be reported by the handler as prescribed by the Committee.

(i) Residuals from seed peanuts. Handlers who receive and custom shell for seed purposes farmers stock peanuts (which have not been inspected and certified as meeting the Incoming Quality Regulation) shall hold and mill peanuts acquired as residuals from such operations separate and apart from peanuts acquired as Segregation 1 farmers stock. Likewise, any such residuals received or acquired from a handler or nonhandler, shall be held and milled separate and apart in the same manner. Residuals that meet requirements of the Outgoing Quality Regulation may be disposed of by sale to human consumption outlets or to another handler and any portion in positive identified lots not meeting such requirements: (1) May be handled and disposed of pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (h) of this regulation, or; (2) shall be disposed of to domestic crushing or export pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (g).

(j) Segregation 2 and 3 farmers stock disposition. (1) Handlers who have acquired Segregation 2 and 3 farmers stock peanuts pursuant to paragraph (f) of the Incoming Quality Regulation may commingle such peanuts or keep them separate and apart. The Segregation 3 farmers stock peanuts or commingled Segregation 2 and 3 farmers stock peanuts may be moved or disposed of in bags or bulk: (a) to other handlers for shelling, fragmenting, or crushing, or (b) to crushers who are not handlers but are approved by the Committee. Handlers may shell such peanuts and move or dispose of the shelled peanuts in bulk or bags: (a) To other handlers for fragmenting or crushing, or (b) to crushers who are not handlers but are approved by the Committee and further disposition shall be as provided hereinafter in paragraph (l)(2) for "restricted" export to countries other than Canada and Mexico, or for "restricted" domestic crushing. Prior to exportation, the shelled peanuts shall be certified by a Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service as meeting the requirements specified for "fragmented" peanuts in paragraph (l)(1) and shall be assayed for aflatoxin by a USDA laboratory or a laboratory approved by the Committee. The aflotoxin results shall be shown on the handler's "in-land" bill of lading and the invoice covering the shipment. Shelling, fragmenting, and crushing of Segregation 3 peanuts or commingled Segregation 2 and 3 peanuts shall be done only under the supervision of the Area Associations and any such peanuts may be commingled with other categories of shelled peanuts for disposition to export or domestic crushing. However, if such further commingling occurs, the handler shall cause the Area Association to supervise the further commingling and fragmenting for disposition to export or the further commingling and domestic crushing. All movement and disposition of Segregation 3 peanuts or commingled Segregation 2 and 3 peanuts and shelled or fragmented peanuts originating therefrom shall be reported by the handler as prescribed by the Committee.

(2) Handlers who have acquired Segregation 2 farmers stock peanuts pursuant to paragraph (f) of the Incoming Quality Regulation and held them separate and apart from Segregation 3 peanuts may commingle the Segregation 2 farmers stock with Segregation 1 farmers stock for disposition to domestic crushing or export as inedibles. The Segregation 2 farmers stock peanuts or commingled Segregation 1 and 2 farmers stock peanuts may be moved or disposed of in bulk or bags: (a) To other handlers for shelling, fragmenting, or crushing, or (b) to crushers who are not handlers but are approved by the Committee. Handlers may shell the Segregation 2 or commingled Segregation 1 and 2 peanuts and move or dispose of the shelled peanuts: (a) To another handler for fragmenting or crushing; or (b) to crushers who are not handlers but are approved by the Committee and further disposition shall be as provided in paragraph (l)(1) of this regulation. Prior to exportation the shelled peanuts shall be certified by a Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service as meeting the requirements specified for fragmented peanuts also in paragraph (l)(1). If the shelled peanuts from Segregation 2 peanuts or comminged Segregation 1 and 2 peanuts are held separate and apart from Segregation 3 peanuts and any restricted categories of shelled peanuts, no aflatoxin assay shall be required. Shelling, fragmenting, and crushing of Segregation 2 peanuts or commingled Segregation 1 and 2 peanuts shall be done only under the supervision of the Area Association. The shelled peanuts from Segregation 2 peanuts or commingled Segregation 1 and 2 peanuts may be further commingled with other categories of shelled peanuts for disposition to export or domestic crushing. However, if such further commingling occurs, the handler shall cause the Area Association to supervise the further commingling and fragmenting. All movement and disposition of Segregation 2 peanuts or commingled Segregation 1 and 2 peanuts and shelled or fragmented peanuts originating therefrom shall be reported by the handler as prescribed by the Committee.

(k) Segregation 1 farmers stock disposition. (1) In addition to milling (shelling, cleaning, etc.) Segregation 1 farmers stock peanuts for disposition to human consumption or seed outlets, handlers may dispose of Segregation 1 farmers stock peanuts to export or to other handlers for such disposition. All such dispositions to export shall be reported by the handler as requested by the Committee.

(2) In addition to the disposition outlets specified in paragraph (k)(1), handlers may dispose of Segregation 1 farmers stock peanuts in bags or bulk to other handlers for shelling, fragmenting, or crushing. Such peanuts may also be disposed of to crushers who are not handlers but are approved by the Committee. Handlers may commingle Segregation 1 farmers stock peanuts with Segregation 2 farmers stock peanuts or keep them separate and apart, and may shell such peanuts and move or dispose of the shelled peanuts in bulk or bags to other handlers for fragmenting or crushing. Such peanuts may also be disposed of to crushers who are not handlers but are approved by the Committee. However, the shelling, fragmenting and disposition of such Segregation 1 farmers stock peanuts shall be done only under the supervision of the Committee and the Area Association and all peanuts handled under the provisions of this paragraph (k)(2), for disposition to export or domestic crushing, shall be milled and disposed of pursuant to paragraph (j)(2) in lieu of the provisions specified in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), (g), (h), and (i) of this regulation. The movement and disposition of all peanuts handled under the provisions of this paragraph (k)(2), shall be reported by the handler as prescribed by the Committee.

(l) Handling, commingling, and disposition of shelled peanuts not meeting quality requirements for human consumption. (1) The following categories of shelled peanuts may be disposed of to domestic crushing or to export as "unrestricted":

(a) The entire mill production of shelled peanuts from Segregation 1 farmers stock; pursuant to paragraph (k)(2).

(b) The entire mill production of shelled peanuts from Segregation 2; or commingled Segregation 1 and 2 farmers stock pursuant to paragraph (j)(2).

(c) Positive Lot Identified lots of shelled "peanuts failing quality requirements" determined negative as to aflatoxin pursuant to paragraph (h)(3).

(d) Positive Lot Identified lots of loose shelled kernels, fall through, or pickouts determined negative as to aflatoxin pursuant to paragraphs (g) (1), (2), and (3).

(e) Positive Lot Identified lots of loose shelled kernels and fall through, commingled and determined negative as to aflatoxin pursuant to paragraphs (g) (2) and (3).

(f) Positive Lot Identified lots of seed peanut residuals determined negative as to aflatoxin pursuant to paragraph (i). Handlers who acquire from other handlers or from their own operations any of the categories of shelled peanuts described heretofore in this paragraph may commingle such peanuts whole fragmenting them or after they have been fragmented: (1) With any other category of peanuts described in this paragraph, and (2) with any category of "unrestricted" shelled peanuts acquired from CCC and determined by CCC to be eligible for such commingling for disposition to export to countries other than Canada and Mexico. However, such peanuts, prior to exportation, shall be certified as meeting fragmented requirements. For the purpose of this regulation, the term "fragmented" means that not more than 20 percent of the peanuts shall be whole kernels that ride the following screens, by type: Spanish $^{16}/_{64}$ x $^{3}/_{4}$ inch slot; Runner $^{16}/_{64}$ x $^{3}/_{4}$ inch slot; and Virginia $^{16}/_{64}$ x 1 inch slot. Handlers who acquire from other handlers or from their own operations any of the categories of shelled peanuts described heretofore in this paragraph may commingle such peanuts at the crusher: (1) With any other category of peanuts described in this paragraph, and (2) with any category of unrestricted shelled peanuts acquired from CCC and determined by CCC to be eligible for such commingling and the resultant meal may be disposed of without restriction. To be eligible for such unrestricted dispositions (crushing or export), such peanuts, before commingling and after commingling, shall be kept separate and apart from all "restricted" peanuts. Shelling, fragmenting, and crushing of Segregation 2 peanuts or commingled Segregation 1 and 2 peanuts shall be done only under the supervision of the Area Association and if any shelled peanuts originating therefrom are commingled with any of the other categories of shelled peanuts described heretofore in this paragraph, the handler shall cause the Area Association to supervise the commingling and fragmenting and the commingling and crushing on all categories of peanuts included in such commingling. All movement and disposition of the categories of peanuts described heretofore in this paragraph shall be reported by the handler as prescribed by the Committee.

(2) The following categories of shelled peanuts may be disposed of to domestic crushing or to export as "restricted":

(a) The entire mill production of shelled peanuts from Segregation 1 farmers stock pursuant to paragraph (k)(2) of the Outgoing Quality Regulation.

(b) The entire mill production of shelled peanuts from Segregation 2 or commingled Segregation 1 and 2 farmers stock pursuant to paragraph (j)(2).

(c) The entire mill production of shelled peanuts from Segregation 3 or commingled Segregation 2 and 3 farmers stock pursuant to paragraph (j)(1).

(d) Positive Lot Identified lots of shelled "peanuts failing quality requirements" pursuant to paragraph h(3).

(e) Positive Lot Identified lots of loose shelled kernels, fall through, or pickouts pursuant to paragraphs (g) (1), (2), and (3).

(f) Positive Lot Identified lots of loose shelled kernels and fall through commingled pursuant to paragraphs (g) (2) and (3).

(g) Positive Lot Identified lots of seed peanut residuals pursuant to paragraph (i).

(h) PAC indemnified peanuts.

Handlers who acquire, from other handlers or from their own operations, any of the categories of shelled peanuts described heretofore in this paragraph (l)(2) may commingle such peanuts while fragmenting them or after they have been fragmented with any other category of peanuts described in this paragraph and with any category of shelled peanuts acquired from CCC and determined by CCC to be eligible for such commingling with disposition to export to countries other than Canada and Mexico as "restricted". Prior to such exportation, the peanuts shall be certified as meeting the fragmented requirements and shall be assayed for aflatoxin by a USDA laboratory or a laboratory approved by the Committee. The aflatoxin results shall be shown on the handler's "in-land" bill of lading and on his invoice covering the shipment. Handlers who acquire, from other handlers or from their own operations, any of the categories of shelled peanuts described heretofore in this paragraph may commingle such peanuts at the crusher with any other category of peanuts described in this paragraph (l)(2) and with any category of shelled peanuts acquired from CCC and determined by CCC to be eligible for such commingling for "restricted" domestic crushing. Meal produced from peanuts disposed of to crushing as "restricted" shall be used or disposed of as fertilized or other nonfeed use, pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (g)(3). Shelling, fragmenting, and crushing of Segregation 2 peanuts, Sereation 3 peanuts and the entire mill production of Segregation 1 peanuts handled pursuant to paragraph (k), and PAC indemnified peanuts shall be done only under supervision of the Area Association and if any of such categories of peanuts are commingled with any of the other categories of shelled peanuts described heretofore in this paragraph, the handler shall cause the Area Association to supervise the commingling and fragmenting on all categories of peanuts included in such commingling. All movement and disposition of the categories of peanuts described heretofore in this paragraph shall be reported by the handler as prescribed by the Committee.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF INDEMNIFICATION—1977 CROP PEANUTS

For the purpose of paying indemnities on a uniform basis pursuant to section 36 of the peanut marketing agreement effective July 12, 1965, each handler shall promptly notify or arrange for the buyer to notify the Manager, Peanut Administrative Committee, of any lot of cleaned inshell or shelled peanuts, milled to the outgoing quality requirements and into one of the categories listed in the final paragraph of these terms and conditions, on which the handler has withheld shipment or storage or the buyer, including the user division of an handler, has withheld usage due to a finding as to aflatoxin content as shown by the results of chemical assay. To be eligible for indemnification, such a lot of peanuts shall have been inspected and certified as meeting the quality requirements of the agreement, shall have met all other applicable regulations issued pursuant thereto, including the pretesting requirements in (a) and (c) of the "Outgoing Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts", and the lot identification shall have been maintained. If the Committee concludes, based on assays to date or further assays, that the lot is so high in aflatoxin that it should be handled pursuant to these Terms and Conditions and such is concurred in by the Agricultural Marketing Service, the lot shall be accepted for indemnification. If the lot is covered by a sales contract, the lot may be rejected to the handler.

In an effort to make such eligible peanuts suitable for human consumption, and to minimize indemnification costs, the Committee and the Agricultural Marketing Service shall, prior to disposition for crushing cause all suitable lots to be remilled or custom blanched or both.

"Custom blanching" means the process which involves blanching peanuts, and the subsequent removal of damaged peanuts for the purpose of eliminating aflatoxin from the lot. The process may be applied to either an original lot or the new lot which results from remilling. Custom blanching shall be performed only by those firms determined by the Committee to have the capability to remove the aflatoxin and who agree to such terms, conditions and rates of payment as the Committee may find to be acceptable.

If the Committee and the Agricultural Marketing Service concludes that such lot is not suitable for remilling or custom blanching, the lot shall be declared to crushing and shall be disposed of by delivery to the Committee at such point as it may designate. The indemnification payment for peanuts in such a lot shall be the indemnification value of the peanuts, as hereinafter provided, plus actual costs of any necessary storage. Transportation expenses (excluding demurrage) from the handler's plant or storage to the point within the Continental United States or Canada where the rejection occurred and from such point to a delivery point specified by the Committee shall be included in the indemnification payment if the lot is found by the Committee to be unwholesome as to aflatoxin after such lot has been certified negative as to aflatoxin prior to being shipped or otherwise disposed of for human consumption by the handler pursuant to requirements of the "Outgoing Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts". Payment shall be made to the handler as soon as practicable after delivery of the peanuts to the Committee. The salvage value for peanuts declared for crushing shall be paid to, and retained by, the Committee to offset indemnification expenses.

If it is concluded that the lot should be remilled or custom blanched, expenses shall be paid by the Committee on those lots which, on the basis of the inspection ocurring prior to shipment, contained not more than 1 percent damaged kernels other than minor defects. Lots with damage in excess of 1 percent on such inspection shall be remilled without reimbursement from the Committee for milling, freight, or temporary storage and handling but otherwise shall be indemnifiable the same as lots with not more than 1 percent damage.

The indemnification value of peanuts delivered to the Committee for indemnification shall be as listed in the final paragraph of these terms and conditions.

The indemnification payment on peanuts declared for remilling, and which contain not more than 1 percent damaged kernels other than minor defects, shall be the indemnification value referable to the weights of peanuts lost in the remilling process and not cleared for human consumption, plus temporary storage, except as hereinafter restricted, plus an allowance for remilling of one cent per pound on the original weight, less 1½ percent of the indemnification value multiplied by the original weight. However, the 1½ percent deduction shall not apply to peanuts whose appropriate samples for pretesting, drawn and assayed in accordance with paragraph (c) of the "Outgoing Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts", were determined to be not indemnifiable as to aflatoxin. Transportation expenses (excluding demurrage) from the handler's plant or storage to the point within the Continental United States or Canada where the rejection occurred and from such point to a delivery point specified by the Committee shall be included in the indemnification payment if the lot is found by the Committee to be unwholesome as to aflatoxin after such lot had been certified negative as to aflatoxin prior to being shipped or otherwise disposed of for human consumption by the handler pursuant to requirement of the "Outgoing Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts". On lots on which the remilling is not successful in making the lot wholesome as to aflatoxin and such lots of peanuts are declared for custom blanching after remilling, the indemnification payment shall be the blanching cost, plus any temporary storage, the transportation costs from origin (whether handler or buyer premises) to point of blanching and on unsold lots from point of blanching to handler's premises and the indemnification value of the weight of reject peanuts removed from the lot. On lots which are custom blanched without remilling, the indemnification payment shall be determined in the same manner but it shall be reduced by 1½ percent of the indemnification value multiplied by the original weight. However, the 1½ percent deduction shall not apply to peanuts whose appropriate samples for pretesting, drawn and assayed in accordance with paragraph (c) of the "Outgoing Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts", were determined to be not indemnifiable as to aflatoxin. Moreover, no indemnication payments shall be paid on any lot of peanuts where the Committee determines that the custom blanched peanuts from such a lot which has been sold at a price lower than the indemnification value on the original red skin lot at the time the indemnification claim was field wtih the Committee.

Claims for indemnification on 1977 crop peanuts may be filed by any handler sustaining a loss as result of a buyer withholding from human consumption a portion or all the product made from a lot of peanuts which has been determined to be unwholesome due to aflatoxin. The Committee shall pay, to the extent of the raw peanut equivalent value of the peanuts used in the product so withheld, such claims as it determines to be valid.

Payment shall be made to the handler claiming indemnification or receiving the rejected lot as soon as practicable after receipt by the Committee of such evidence of remilling or custom blanching and clearance of the lot for human consumption as the Committee may require and the delivery of the peanuts not cleared for human consumption to the delivery point designated by the Committee. If a suitable reduction in the aflatoxin content is not achieved on any lot which is remilled or custom blanched or both, the Committee shall declare the entire lot for indemnification. However, the Committee shall refuse to pay indemnification on any lot(s) where it has reason to believe that the rejection of the peanuts arises from failure of the handler to use reasonable measures to receive and withhold from milling for edible use those Segregation 3 peanuts tendered to him either directly by a producer or by a country buyer, commission buyer or other like person. Furthermore, any misrepresentation by a handler in reporting acquisition, composition or disposition of any lot or lots of peanuts by such handler shall cause indemnification payments with respect to any such claim filed with the Committee by the handler on 1977 crop peanuts to be withheld unless the Committee finds that such action was inadvertent.

Remilling may occur on the premises of any handler signatory to the marketing agreement or at such other plant as the Committee may determine. However, if the Committee orders remilling of a lot which has been found to contain aflatoxin prior to shipment from the locality of original milling, the Committee shall not pay freight costs should the handler move said lot to another locality for remilling.

Notice of claims for indemnification on peanuts of the 1977 crop shall be filed with the Committee no later than November 1, 1978.

Each handler shall include, directly or by reference, in his sales contract the following provisions:

Should buyer find peanuts subject to indemnification under this contract to be so high in aflatoxin as to provide possible cause for rejection, he shall promptly notify the seller and the Manager, Peanut Administrative Committee, Atlanta, Georgia. Upon a determination of the Peanut Administrative Committee, confirmed by the Agricultural Marketing Service, authorizing rejection, such peanuts, and title thereto, if passed to the buyer, shall be returned to the seller. Seller shall not be precluded from replacing such peanuts if he so elects.

Seller shall, prior to shipment of a lot of shelled peanuts covered by this sales contract, cause appropriate samples to be drawn by the Federal or Federal-State Inspection Service from such lot, shall cause the sample(s) to be sent to a USDA laboratory or if designated by the buyer, a laboratory listed on the most recent Committee list of approved laboratories to conduct such assay, for an aflatoxin assay and cause the laboratory, if other than the buyer's, to send one copy of the results of the assay to the buyer. The laboratory costs shall be for the account of the buyer and buyer agrees to pay them when invoiced by the laboratory or, in the event the seller has paid them, by the seller.

Any handler who fails to include such provisions in his sales contract shall be ineligible for indemnification payments with respect to any claim filed with the Committee on 1977 crop peanuts covered by the sales contract.

In addition, should any handler enter into any oral or written sales contract which fixes the level of aflatoxin at which rejection may be made and hence conflicts with these terms and conditions, the handler doing so will not be eligible for indemnification payments with respect to any claim filed with the Committee on 1977 crop peanuts on or after the filing date of a claim under such contract, except upon the Committee's finding that acceptance of such contract was inadvertent; and for purposes of this provision a claim shall be deemed to be filed when notice of possible rejection is first given to the Committee.

Any handler who fails to conform to the requirements of paragraph (h) of the "Incoming Quality Regulation—1977 Crop Peanuts" shall be ineligible for any indemnification payments until such condition or conditions are corrected to the satisfaction of the Committee.

Categories eligible for indemnification are as follows:

CLEANED INSHELL PEANUTS

(1) U.S. Jumbos
(2) U.S. Fancy Handpicks
(3) Valencia—Roasting Stock[1]

U.S. GRADE SHELLED PEANUTS

(1) U.S. No. 1
(2) U.S. Splits
(3) U.S. Virginia Extra-Large
(4) U.S. Virginia Medium

(1) Runners with splits which do not contain more than 15 percent splits or 3 percent whole kernels which will pass through 16/64 x ¾ slot screen.

(2) Spanish with splits which do not contain more than 15 percent splits or 2 percent whole kernels which will pass through a 15 64 x ¾ slot screen.

(3) Virginias with splits which do not contain more than 15 percent splits or 3 percent whole kernels which will pass through a 15 64 x 1 slot screen.

However, peanuts in any of the above categories shall not be eligible for indemnification if such peanuts: (1) Were milled from seed peanut residuals as referred to in the last sentence of paragraph (e) of the Incoming Quality Regulation and paragraph (i) of the Outgoing Quality Regulation for 1977 Crop Peanuts; (2) failed the Outgoing Quality Regulation for 1977 Crop Peanuts due to excessive damage and minor defects and such peanuts were subsequently blanched to remove such excess damage and minor defects pursuant to paragraph (h) of such regulation; (3) when shipped for human consumption outlets contained more than a total of 1.25 percent unshelled peanuts and damaged kernels or a total of 2 percent unshelled peanuts, damaged kernels and minor defects; (4) were received or acquired from another handler pursuant to paragraph (i) of the Incoming Quality Regulation and were milled to meet requirements of the Outgoing Quality Regulation pursuant to paragraph (h) of such regulation.

The indemnification value for all categories of peanuts eligible for indemnification, except U.S. Virginia Extra Large and all types of peanuts grading U.S. Splits as noted hereinafter, shall be a base price equal to the indemnification value, by type, on 1976 crop peanuts, plus an increase of 7½ points for each $1 increase in the final support price, by type, of the 1977 price support on farmers stock peanuts over the 1976 national average support price by type. The indemnification value for U.S. Virginia Extra Large shall be two cents per pound more than the indemnification value for other indemnifiable categories of 1977 Crop Virginia type peanuts. The indemnification value for U.S. Splits of all types shall be three cents per pound less than the indemnification value for other indemnifiable categories of 1977 Crop peanuts by type. All indemnification values shall be rounded to the nearest tenth of a cent per pound.

[1] Inshell peanuts with not more than 25 percent having shells damaged by discoloration, which are cracked or broken, or both.

Final

Oakland-Pontiac Airport, Runway 9R–27L, Oakland County, Mich., June 13: Proposed is the extension of Runway 9R–27L of the Oakland-Pontiac Airport, Pontiac, Michigan. Project plans involve the acquisition of land for approach protection, construction and lighting of an easterly extension to Runway 9R–27L, the resurfacing of the runway and parallel taxiway and apron, and construction and lighting of a connecting taxiway including holding apron. Adverse effects of project implementation include the relocation of three households. The runway extension will cause air pollution and noise to increase. Comments made by: EPA, DOI, DOT, COE, AHP, USDA, and State and local agencies, interested persons. (ELR Order No. 70736.)

FEDERAL HIGHWAY ADMINISTRATION

Draft

I–279 and East Street, Allegheny County, Pa., June 15: The proposed action is construction of 2.1 miles of I–279, including the East Street Interchange and reconstruction of a portion of Traffic Route 28 in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The new highway section would be a 4, 6 and 8-lane facility with fully controlled access. The project will result in construction-related impacts and the demolishment of a youth recreation center. Other adverse effects include displacement of 255 families and 214 local businesses, and abandonment of numerous streets. (Region 3.) (ELR Order No. 70740.)

S.R. 842 (Broward Blvd.), Ft. Lauderdale, Broward County, Fla., June 15: Proposed is the widening of a 2.0 mile section of S.R. 842 in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. The project will widen a section from S.R. 9 (I–95) to East 8th Avenue to U.S. 1, already six lane divided. The present undivided, four laned arterial will be upgraded to six lanes with a median. Adverse impacts will result from the possible relocation of 8 families and 39 businesses, be less than those resulting if the facility is not improved. A 4(f) statement is included concerning Stranahan Park. Comments made by: USCG, COE, DOC, HEW, DOI, EPA, and State and local agencies, concerned citizens. (ELR Order No. 70742.)

The statement includes alternatives of replacing the bridge on its present site or relocating it on one of three new alignments, and the involvement of Cleveland Metropolitan Park District's Rock River Reservation which borders on the right-of-way. The selected alternative represents a skew bridge alignment extending southerly from the existing eastern bridge approach to approximately 200 feet south of the existing western bridge terminus. (Region 5.) Comments made by: DOT, DOI, EPA, AHP, USCG, and State and local government, concerned citizens. (ELR Order No. 70737.)

Supplement

S.R. 45 (U.S. 41) (S–1), June 14: This statement supplements a final EIS filed with CEQ in November 1973. Proposed is the construction of a 4.7 mile segment of four lane divided S.R. 45 (U.S. 41) beginning at mile post 5.6 in Lee County and terminating at the existing four-lane section north of Estero. Because of the adverse effects of the recommended alternate in the FEIS on the Koreshan Unity Settlement Historic District, the approved corridor through Estero was rejected by the State Historic Preservation office. ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY

[FRL 751-6; OPP-180129]

ARKANSAS DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

Issuance of a Specific Exemption To Use Avitrol To Control Bird Damage to Rice Crop

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has granted a specific exemption to the Arkansas Department of Commerce (hereafter referred to as the "Applicant") to use not more than 80,000 pounds of an Avitrol product to control damage by depredating birds which are threatening the rice crop in Arkansas. This exemption was granted in accordance with, and is subject to, the provisions of 40 CFR Part 166, which prescribes requirements for exemption of Federal and State agencies for use of pesticides under emergency conditions.

This notice contains a summary of certain information required by regulation to be included in the notice. For more detailed information, interested parties are referred to the application on file with the Registration Division (WH-567), Office of Pesticide Programs, EPA, 401 M St. SW., Room E-315, Washington, D.C. 20460.

According to the Applicant, rice producers in Arkansas regularly sustain considerable damage to their crops as a result of blackbird damage to sprouting seed. Lack of an approved blackbird control in rice would have a serious impact on farmers in all rice producing counties. The acreage damaged so severely that it must be replanted would result in increased production costs and decreased crop yields. For many years, Aldrin was used as a seed treatment for rice, primarily against rice water weevil. According to the Applicant, secondary benefit derived from seed treatment with Aldrin was that the treated rice also served as a bird repellent; Aldrin was used on an estimated 80 percent of the rice seeded in Arkansas. The Applicant stated that since Aldrin is no longer available, no satisfactory bird repellent is available.

Rice is a very important crop financially to Arkansas, with the highest acreage planted to rice of any State. The Applicant requested permission to treat a maximum of 80,000 acres of the total 800,000 acres of rice fields in the State; it was estimated that damage to these 80,000 acres could result in an economic loss of $3,000,000.

Currently, there are no avicides or avian repellents registered for use in rice fields. The Applicant proposed to aerially apply one pound of Avitrol Corn Chops-99 (EPA Reg. No. 11649-12), which is equal to 0.03 percent active 4-aminopyridine per acre in sixty foot swaths with a 120 foot swath between treated areas. The actual application rate would be three (3) pounds of product per acre of treated swaths. According to the Applicant, two to three applications may be necessary in some areas should reinfestation occur.

Avitrol Corn Chops-99 is registered for bird damage control in twelve (12) states. It is formulated such that only one particle in one-hundred particles of corn actually contains the active ingredient. To date, most of the field studies with this product have been concerned with its use to control bird damage of corn and sunflowers. Obviously, hazards associated with these uses are significantly different from those associated with rice agriculture.

EPA has determined that the greatest hazard associated with the use of Avitrol is to non-target avian species (migratory and native waterfowl, upland game birds, and songbirds). The greatest hazard generally exists to the smaller avian species. The U.S. Department of the Interior (USDI) reviewed the proposed use of Avitrol and agreed that there are potential hazards to non-target avian species in treated areas; however, the USDI stated that an adequate monitoring program would reduce damage of such species. There are no grain feeding endangered avian species in Arkansas which are likely to be exposed to this use of Avitrol.

A tolerance of 0.1 ppm has been established for negligible residues of the bird repellent 4-aminopyridine in or on the raw agricultural commodities corn grain, forage and fodder, and sunflower seeds. EPA has reviewed the data submitted for this use of Avitrol and has determined that residues in or on rice grain or straw would not be expected to exceed 0.1 ppm under this use.

After reviewing the application and other available information, EPA has determined that (a) bird depredation of seeded rice in Arkansas is likely to occur; (b) there is no pesticide presently registered and available for use to control bird damage to rice crops; (c) there are no alternative means of control, taking into account the efficacy and hazard; (d) significant economic problems may result if the birds are not controlled; and (e) the time available for action to mitigate the problems posed is insufficient for a pesticide to be registered for this use. Accordingly, the Applicant has been granted a specific exemption to use the pesticide noted above until June 30, 1977, to the extent and in the manner set forth in the application. The specific exemption is also subject to the following conditions;

1. The EPA registered product, Avitrol Corn Chops-99 (EPA Reg. No. 11649-12), must be used and applied at a maximum rate of three (3) pounds of product per acre of treated swaths. Avitrol will be applied in sixty foot swaths with a 120 foot swath between treated areas;

2. A maximum of three (3) applications will be made. The second and third applications, if necessary, will be made to untreated swaths to prevent double treatment of the same land;

3. The total quantity of Avitrol product used will not exceed 80,000 pounds;

4. This product is extremely toxic to wildlife. Keep out of lakes, streams or ponds. Do not contaminate water by cleaning of equipment or disposal of waste;

5. All appropriate label directions and precautionary statements will be observed;

6. A residue level not to exceed 0.1 ppm 4-aminopyridine in or on rice grain or straw has been deemed adequate to protect the public health. The Food and Drug Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, has been advised of this action;

7. A full report of this program will be submitted to EPA upon the completion of the program. In addition, a plan must be developed with and approved by the EPA Regional office prior to the application of the pesticide which will ensure that the following requirements and restrictions are observed;

8. Applicators must report the time and place of application to the EPA Regional office at least 24 hours prior to such application;

9. On-site surveillance must be conducted by State or county personnel or personnel of the USDI or the EPA Regional office;

10. Post-treatment monitoring for effects on non-target species must be conducted by one of the above agencies; and

11. This use of Avitrol Corn Chops-99 will be terminated immediately in those areas where high mortality to non-target species occurs. Particular care must be exercised regarding migratory waterfowl.

CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

Issuance of a Specific Exemption To Use DDT To Suppress Flea Vectors of Plague

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has granted a specific exemption to the California Department of Health (hereafter referred to as the "Applicant") to use no more than fifty (50) pounds of DDT for the suppression of flea populations in areas in the foothills and mountains of California, where flea populations vectoring plague on wild rodents may endanger the public health. This exemption was granted in accordance with, and is subject to, the provisions of 40 CFR Part 166, which prescribes requirements for exemption of Federal and State agencies for use of pesticides under emergency conditions.

This notice contains a summary of certain information required by regulation to be included in the notice. For more detailed information, interested parties are referred to the application on file with the Registration Division (WH-567), Office of Pesticide Programs, EPA, 401 M Street SW., Room E-315, Washington, D.C. 20460. The situation described in this exemption has been a continuing problem in California since 1975, and has occurred in other States as well. In view of the significance of the problem of plague and the potential exposure of man to plague vectors, EPA is requesting comments/views from interested parties on this control program and any other similar programs. Comments may be submitted to the Federal Register Section, Technical Services Division (WH-569), Office of Pesticide Programs, Room E-401, at the Headquarters address shown above. Three copies of the comments should be submitted to facilitate the work of the Agency and of others interested in inspecting them. The comments must be received on or before July 25, 1977, and should bear the identifying notation OPP-180124. All written comments filed pursuant to this notice will be available for public inspection in the office of the Federal Register Section from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

According to the Applicant, DDT will be needed again in 1977 to control flea vectors of plague in California. The Applicant applied carbaryl in an effort to suppress flea populations vectoring plague in Plumas County, California, in 1975 and in April 1976; because of the apparent low level of control exercised by carbaryl, the Applicant promulgated a crisis exemption under existing regulations. Forty-seven (47) pounds of a ten percent DDT dust was applied to rodent burrows on 80 acres of two affected campgrounds. Plague-vectoring flea populations were reduced to a level which was adequate to protect the public health. In May 1976, the Applicant requested a specific exemption to apply ten percent DDT dust directly into the burrows of wild rodents to reduce flea populations; this exemption was granted and subsequently amended to include the use of bait dust stations and to increase the amount of DDT to be used. A total of 61.1 pounds active ingredient DDT dust was used under that exemption.

Two human cases of plague resulted from widespread and intensive plague epizootics among rodents in the mountain and foothills regions of California in 1975. According to the Applicant, carbaryl, the only pesticide registered for plague vector control, has a record of doubtful efficacy in some California situations. Evidence indicates carbaryl dust to be reasonably efficacious in controlling fleas of the Ground Squirrel (Spermophilus beecheyi) but to be undependable in controlling fleas of chipmunks and other rodents of similar habits. The Applicant also stated that DDT is available and is of demonstrated efficacy against fleas of wild rodents.

The program conducted under this exemption will be essentially the same as the 1976 treatment. The material (DDT dust) will be applied by hand-operated dusters directly into rodent burrows, or applied through the use of bait dust stations at a maximum rate of 0.06 pound per acre of actual DDT. The areas treated will have to meet the following criteria: (1) Without flea control, the public health would be endangered, and (2) the situation would be such as to give rise to a reasonable doubt about the anticipated efficacy of carbaryl. All applications will be made by the Applicant's Vector and Waste Management Section public health biologists. In some cases, other people might be called upon to assist personnel of this Section; in this situation, these people will work under the direct supervision of a public health biologist.

This application was endorsed by Dr. Allen M. Barnes, Chief, Plague Branch, Center for Disease Control (CDC), Fort Collins, Colorado, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. According to Dr. Barnes, the plague potential for 1977 is unknown and unpredictable at this time. An extensive plague surveillance program is being conducted by the Applicant and a number of collaborating agencies, including CDC, in order to gain insight in the plague situation as early in the season as possible. Dr. Barnes stated that the issuance of this exemption was advisable so that the Applicant might be prepared for an epizootic outbreak of the plague bacillus among wild rodents.

The Fish and Wildlife Service, U.S. Department of the Interior, informally supports this use of DDT with certain reservations regarding application in the presence of endangered species.

After reviewing the application and other available information, EPA has determined that (a) a pest outbreak of fleas vectoring plague is likely to occur; (b) there are no alternative means of control available, taking into account the efficacy and hazard; (c) significant health problems may result if the fleas vectoring plague are not controlled; and (d) the time available for action to mitigate the problems posed is insufficient for a pesticide to be registered for this use. Accordingly, the Applicant has been granted a specific exemption to use the pesticide noted above until November 30, 1977, to the extent and in the manner set forth in the application. The specific exemption is also subject to the following conditions:

1. The total amount of DDT used may not exceed fifty (50) pounds actual insecticide;

2. The DDT will be applied directly to wild rodent burrows with hand-powered dusting equipment or applied through the use of bait dust stations;

3. Areas in the foothills and mountains of California to be treated are limited to those meeting the two criteria specified above in this notice;

4. All applications will be made by, or under the supervision of, the Applicant's Vector and Waste Management Section;

5. Dr. Allen M. Barnes, Chief, Plague Branch, CDC (Fort Collins), will be kept advised of all flea population suppression activities;

6. Areas treated with DDT should be surveyed to ensure that no endangered species that could be adversely affected are present;

7. Every precaution will be taken to avoid adverse effects on the American Peregrine falcon; and

8. Liaison will be established with the California Fish and Game Department prior to applying DDT in any area.

(Sec. 18 of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), as amended (86 Stat. 973; 89 Stat. 751; 7 U.S.C. 136(a) et seq.).)

APPENDIX II

DEFINITIONS OF CODES FOR THE GENERAL NATURE OF EPA COMMENTS

Environmental Impact of the Action

LO—Lack of objection.—EPA has no objections to the proposed action as described in the draft impact statement; or suggests only minor changes in the proposed action.

ER—Environmental reservations. EPA has reservations concerning the environmental effects of certain aspects of the proposed action. EPA believes that further study of suggested alternatives or modifications is required and has asked the originating Federal agency to reassess these impacts.

EU—Environmentally unsatisfactory. EPA believes that the proposed action is unsatisfactory because of its potentially harmful effect on the environment. Furthermore, the Agency believes that the potential safeguards which might be utilized may not adequately protect the environment from hazards arising from this action. The Agency recommends that alternatives to the action be analyzed further (including the possibility of no action at all).

Adequacy of the Impact Statement

Category 1—Adequate. The draft impact statement adequately sets forth the environmental impact of the proposed project or action as well as alternatives reasonably available to the project or action.

Category 2—Insufficient information. EPA believes that the draft impact statement does not contain sufficient information to assess fully the environmental impact of the proposed project or action. However, from the information submitted, the Agency is able to make a preliminary determination of the impact on the environment. EPA has requested that the originator provide the information that was not included in the draft statement.

Category 3—Inadequate. EPA believes that the draft impact statement does not adequately assess the environmental impact of the proposed project or action, or that the statement inadequately analyzes reasonable available alternatives. The Agency has requested more information and analysis concerning the potential environmental hazards and has asked that substantial revision be made to the impact statement.

	CORPS OF ENGINEERS
FS-COE-A30128-00	Pumped storage, Richard B. Russell Dam and Lake, Georgia and South Carolina	EPA's review of the supplement to the final EIS indicated that there is insufficient information on pumped storage for the Richard B. Russell Dam and Lake to fully evaluate the biological impacts of the proposed operation. Of specific concern to EPA is the lack of specific design details such as what will be the water velocity at the intake, the anticipated area of flow reversal, and the velocities within the area of flow reversal during the pump-back operation? Additional data are needed regarding the effects of the operation on the white bass population in Clark Hill Reservoir and entrainment impacts.	E
FS-COE-A30350-MO	Stockton Lake, Sac River, Downstream Flooding, Cedar County, Mo.	EPA expressed severe environmental reservations with the proposed project. Specific concerns include adverse water quality impacts due to increased velocity and discharge of the Sac River; the degradation of wetlands due to bypassing a portion of the Sac River at Horseshoe Bend; loss of riparian habitat due to bank erosion; and the probable loss of the Sac River fishery.	H
FS-COE-D35002-PA	Diked Disposal Site No. 2, Erie Harbor, Erie County, Pa.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the supplement to the final EIS.	D
F-COE-E85008-SC	Wando and Cooper Rivers, Permit Dredge, Fill and Construction of a Marine Terminal, Charleston County, S.C.	EPA has determined that the project as proposed is environmental unsatisfactory. Major concerns expressed by EPA are the cumulative adverse impacts from runoff, oil spills and industrial development upon the water quality of the Wando River; the destruction and contamination of Marshlands; damage to marine life; secondary development induced by the terminal; and early exhaustion of dredged material disposed sites. In addition, possible alternative sites have not been analyzed sufficiently. Therefore, pursuant to sec. 309(B) of the Clean Air Act, EPA has referred this proposed project to the council on environmental quality as unsatisfactory to public health, welfare and environmental quality. F-COE-E35026-FL	Cross Florida Barge Canal, Restudy Report, from St. Johns River at Palatka to the Gulf of Mexico at Yankeetown, Fla.	EPA recognizes that the chief of the US Army Corps of Engineers has recommended the termination of all activities leading toward completion of the Cross Florida Barge Canal. However, EPA's comments were forwarded for the record. Of great concern to EPA is the potential introduction of contaminated water into the Floridian aquifer which is used as a potable water supply and is a potential major water source for the future. Also EPA is concerned about the impacts on water quality form herbidices and pesticide use and nutrient and sulfide enrichment. Further, EPA is concerned with loss and degradation of the unique Oklawaha River system, degraded surface water quality in both the Oklawaha and Withlacoochee Rivers, and loss of bottomlands valuable for timber, wildlife and agriculture production. EPA concurs with the decision of the chief of engineers to terminate the proposed project.	E
F-COE-E36086-00	Operation and Maintenance, Navigation Project, Savannah River Below Augusta, New Savannah Bluff Lock and Dam, Georgia and South Carolina.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the EIS. However, EPA does not agree to the blocking of the old river bends with spoil at the cutoffs. This spoil disposal should be coordinated with the conservation agencies as previously suggested by EPA.	E
F-COE-F06001-MI	Presque Isle Generating Station, Units 7, 8, and 9, Marquette County Mich.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS.	F
F-COE-F36018-WI	Green Bay Harbor Maintenance, Dredging, and Contained disposal of Dredge Materials, Wisconsin.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS. EPA recommended the supernatant monitoring limits which would cause closure of the CDF should be provided. EPA also recommended future bottom sediment analysis should include pesticides and PCB's.	F
F-COE-H34006-KS	Operation and Maintenance of John Redmond, Marion, and Council Grove Lakes, Kans.	EPA's review of the final EIS indicated the corps was unresponsive to EPA's comments prepared on the draft EIS, therefore EPA has requested that the Corps of Engineers prepare a supplemental EIS. Specifically, EPA requested that data on the water quality of the reservoirs, allocation of water supply storage, and operation of the system reservoirs in the Neosho River Basin be included in the final EIS. The responses to these comments were inadequate thereby leading to EPA's rating of the final EIS as unresponsive.	H
F-COE-K80003-CA	Redwood Shores Regional Shopping Center, Permit, Redwood City, San Mateo County, Calif.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS.	J
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
F-AFS-J65042-SD	Timber Management Plan, Black Hills National Forest, S. Dak. (USDA-FS-R2-FES-ADM-76-08).	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS.	I
FS-REA-A06012-00	Underwood Generation Station, Units 1 and 2, Related Transmission Lines, North Dakota and Minnesota.	....do	I
F-SCS-F36004-IL	Little Cache Creek Watershed, Johnson County, Ill.	....do	F
DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
F-NOA-L64001-OR	State of Oregon Coastal Management program.	Generally, EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS. However, EPA's primary concern was that neither the EIS or the draft coastal management program described the mechanisms by which the coastal management program would be coordinated with EPA sponsored environmental protection programs or the mechanisms which would be used to implement the Federal consistency requirements of the Coastal Zone Management Act. EPA found that the final coastal management program dealt adequately with the ist of these information gaps. However, EPA also found that Federal consistency procedures are not yet developed and therefore recommended OCZM provide for formal Federal agency concurrence in Oregon's procedures prior to their implementation.	K

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE
F-UAF-F11004-MI	Closure, Kinchaloe Air Force Base, Mich.	EPA's review of the final EIS indicated the USAF was unresponsive to EPA's comments on the draft EIS. EPA has requested the USAF provides adequate information on water quality and noise for the proposed project.	F
DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR
F-BLM-J07004-UT	Emery Power Plant, Utah	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS. However, EPA suggested that future power plant impact statements contain independent market demand studies and give further consideration to the project alternatives of conservation and the use of nondepletable sources of energy.	I
F-IBR-J34006-CO	Fruitland Mesa Project, Delta, Montrose and Gunnison Counties, Colo.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS.	I
DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION
F-DOT-A41600-CO	U.S. 287 to CO-14, Fort Collins expressway, larimer County, Colo.	EPA expressed concern that planning for the proposed project was being done in the absence of a comprehensive land use plan for the highway corridor area and a regional transportation plan.	I
F-DOT-A41655-MN	MN-23, Junction MN-24 and MN-212, Lyon, Yellow Medicine, Renville, Chippewa Counties, Minn.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS.	F
NF-FAA-D51005-VA	Mecklenburg-Brunswick Regional Airport, South Hill, Va.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the negative declaration.	D
F-FHW-D54023-MD	Relodated U.S. 140, Northwest Expressway, Phase I, Rapid Transit, Baltimore Md.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS. EPA requested a continuing liaison through ongoing development to insure proper phasing of highway and transit elements of the facility.	D
F-FHW-E40031-KY	I-471, Cincinnati I-275 Connector, Campbell County, Ky (FHWA-KY-EIS-75-05-F).	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS. However, EPA requested the FHWA reevaluate their position on abatement if the impact and public raection warrant it.	E
F-FHW-E40071-NC	Independence Blvd. Corridor, Inner Loop From I-77 to Northwest Freeway, Charlotte, N.C. (FHWA-NC-EIS-76-02-F).	EPA continues to have environmental reservations on the proposed project. Specifically the, findings of the EIS are not consistent with the objectives of attainment and maintenance of the NAAQS for photochemical oxidants. To be environmentally acceptable for air quality, the project sholud not increase the total burden on hydrocarbon emissions in the metropolitan area.	E
F-FHW-F40040-IL	I-255, Jefferson Barracks Bridge, Monroe County, Ill.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS.	F
F-FHW-F40068-MN	I-94, I-494, and I-694 interchange, Washington County, Minn.	EPA concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS. EPA has recommended the proposed route be used. However, the noise impacts upon 2 sites were great enough to warrant EPA's recommendation for removal.	F
F-FWH-F40070-MN	U.S. 2 Bypass of Bemidji, Beltrami County, Minn.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS.	F
F-FHW-J40016-MT	Elmo-Rollins and Flathead County Line South, U.S. 93 West Side of Flathead Lake between Polson and Kalispell, Mont.	....do	I

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT
F-HUD-C85013-PR	Monte Brisas Development, Fajardo, Puerto Rico.	EPA continues to have environmental reservations concerning the proposed project. Specifically, the potential impacts on water supplies and the failure of the final EIS to discuss water conservation measures previously recommended.	C
FS-HUD-K60006-CA	West End II, Redevelopment Project, Property Acquisition Demolition, Residential Relocation and Project Improvements, Stockton, Calif.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the supplement to the final EIS.	J
F-ICC-F53002-WI	Chicago and North Western Transportation Co. Abandonment, Sawyer, Ashland and Bayfield Counties, Wis.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS. However, EPA indicated the abandonment would have an adverse impact upon the Nation's energy resources.	F
F-ICC-F53004-00	Chicago, South Shore, South Bend, RR. Discontinuance of All Passenger Train Service Indiana and Illinois.	EPA's concerns were adequately addressed in the final EIS. The ICC has denied the request for immediate abandonment of service by requiring operations to continue for a period of 10 mo. EPA opposes abandonment because public transportation in Chicago and Northern Indiana is an essential to achieve compliance with air quality standards. EPA hopes that Indiana will utilize this 10-mo. period to make arrangement to match available Federal grants which would permit commuter operations to continue.	F
DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

MONSANTO AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS CO. ET AL.

Issuance of Experimental Use Permits

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has issued experimental use permits to the following applicants. Such permits are in accordance with, and subject to, the provisions of 40 CFR Part 172, which defines EPA procedures with respect to the use of pesticides for experimental purposes.

No. 524-EUP-28. Monsanto Agricultural Products Company, St. Louis, Missouri 63166. This experimental use permit allows the use of 3,225 pounds of the herbicide glyphosate N-(Phosphonomethyl) glycine on sugarcane to evaluate control of annual and perennial grasses and broadleaf weeds. A total of 865 acres is involved; the program is authorized only in the States of Florida, Hawaii, Louisiana, Puerto Rico, and Texas. The experimental use permit is effective from May 3, 1977, to May 3, 1978. Temporary tolerances for residues of the active ingredient in or on sugarcane and in the liver and kidney of cattle, goats, hogs, horses, poultry, and sheep have been established.

No. 239-EUP-82. Chevron Chemical Company, Richmond, California 94804. This experimental use permit allows the use of 3,000 pounds of the insecticide acephate on pecans to evaluate control of pecan aphid. A total of 600 acres is involved; the program is authorized only in the States of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Mississippi, and Texas. The experimental use permit is effective from April 28, 1977, to April 28, 1978. A temporary tolerance for residues of the active ingredient in or on pecans has been established. This permit is issued with the restriction that there will be no grazing of livestock in treated areas.

No. 11312-EUP-22. U.S. Department of Agriculture, Hyattsville, Maryland 20782. This experimental use permit allows the use of 30 pounds of the inspecticide N-[[(4-chlorophenyl)amino]carbonyl] - 2,6 - difluorobenzamine on forest areas to evaluate control of Gypsy moths. A total of 600 acres is involved; the program is authorized only in the State of Pennsylvania. The experimental use permit is effective from May 6, 1977, to May 6, 1978.

Interested parties wishing to review the experimental use permits are referred to Room E-315, Registration Division (WH-567), Office of Pesticide Programs, EPA, 401 M St., S.W., Washington, D.C. 20460. It is suggested that such interested persons call 202/755-4851 before visiting the EPA Headquarters Office, so that the appropriate permits may be made conveniently available for review purposes. REBUTTABLE PRESUMPTION AGAINST REGISTRATION AND CONTINUED REGISTRATION OF CERTAIN PESTICIDE PRODUCTS CONTAINING PRONAMIDE

Notice of Extension of Period for Submission of Rebuttal Evidence and Comments

On May 9, 1977, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) issued a notice of presumption against registration and continued registration of pesticide products containing the ingredient Pronamide. This notice was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on May 20, 1977 (42 FR 25906). The regulations governing rebuttable presumptions provide that the applicant or registrant of such pesticide products shall have forty-five (45) days from the date such notice is sent to submit evidence in rebuttal of the presumption. However, for good cause shown, an additional sixty (60) days may be granted in which such evidence may be submitted [40 CFR 162.11(a)(1)(i)].

A request for an additional 60 days in which to present evidence to the Agency has been received from Rohm and Haas Co. who currently has six applications for registration pending before the Agency and two registered products which contain pronamide. Rohm and Haas is the sole producer of the technical grade and the 50 percent wettable powder marketed under the name "Kerb 50–W". The notice of rebuttable presumption contained some points which have not been previously considered by Rohm and Haas and which will, therefore, require considerable time to conduct a detailed examination and evaluation of pertinent information. A 60-day extension would permit an effective in-depth data collection/evaluation effort.

The Agency agrees that additional time would be beneficial to ensure the submission of complete and accurate responses to this notice of presumption. Therefore, because good cause has been shown for an extension of time by an affected party wishing to respond to the notice of presumption, all registrants, applicants for registration, and other interested persons shall have until August 29, 1977, to submit rebuttal evidence and other comments or information. Such evidence, comments, or other information relevant to the presumption against registration and continued registration should be submitted to the Federal Register Section, Technical Services Division (WH–569), Office of Pesticide Programs, Environmental Protection Agency, Rm. 401, East Tower, 401 M St. SW., Washington, D.C. 20460. Three copies of the comments should be submitted to facilitate the efforts of the Agency and of others interested in inspecting them. All comments should bear the identifying notation "OPP–30000/14A". Comments and information received on or before August 29, 1977, shall be considered before it is determined whether a notice shall be issued in accordance with 40 CFR 162.11(a)(5)(ii) and 7 U.S.C. 136(a)(c)(6) or 7 U.S.C. 136(d)(b)(1). Comments received after August 29, 1977, shall be considered only to the extent feasible consistent with the time limits imposed by 40 CFR 162.11(a)(5)(ii). All written comments filed pursuant to this notice will be available for public inspection in the office of the Federal Register Section at the above business address from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on normal business days. The file supporting the Agency's presumption against this pesticide is available for public inspection in the Office of Special Pesticide Review, Rm. 447, East Tower, during the same time period.

SHELL CHEMICAL CO.; CYANO (3-PHENOXYPHENYL)METHYL - 4 - CHLORO - α-(METHYLETHYL)BENZENEACETATE

Notice of Extension of Temporary Tolerances

On July 16, 1976, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) gave notice (41 FR 29470) that in response to a pesticide petition (PP 661755) submitted to the Agency by Shell Chemical Co., 1025 Connecticut Ave. NW., Washington, D.C. 20036, temporary tolerances were established for residues of the insecticide cyano (3 - phenoxyphenyl) methyl 4-chloro-α-(1-methylethyl) benzeneacetate in or on the raw agricultural commodities cottonseed at 0.2 part per million (ppm) and in the fat of milk at 0.02 ppm. These temporary tolerances are scheduled to expire July 9, 1977.

Shell Chemical Co. requested a one-year extension of these temporary tolerances both to permit continued testing to obtain additional data and to permit the marketing of the above raw agricultural commodities when treated in accordance with the provisions of an experimental use permit that has been extended under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), as amended (86 Stat. 973; 89 Stat. 751; 7 U.S.C. 136(a) et seq.).

The scientific data reported and all other relevant material were evaluated and it was determined that an extension of the temporary tolerances would protect the public health. Therefore, the temporary tolerances have been extended on condition that the pesticide is used in accordance with the experimental use permit with the following provisions:

1. The total amount of the pesticide to be used must not exceed the quantity authorized by the experimental use permit.

2. Shell Chemical Co. must immediately notify the EPA of any findings from the experimental use that that a bearing on safety. The firm must also keep records of production, distribution, and performance and on request make the records available to any authorized officer or employee of the EPA or the Food and Drug Administration.

These temporary tolerances expire May 16, 1978. Residues not in excess of 0.2 ppm and 0.02 ppm remaining in or on cottonseed and in the fat of milk, respectively, after this expiration date will not be considered actionable if the pesticide is legally applied during the term of and in accordance with the provisions of the experimental use permit and temporary tolerances. These temporary tolerances may be revoked if the experimental use permit is revoked or if any scientific data or experience with this pesticide indicate such revocation is necessary to protect the public health. Inquiries concerning this notice may be directed to Special Registrations Section, Registration Division (WH–567), Office of Pesticide Programs, Room 315, East Tower, 401 M St. SW., Washington, D.C. 20460 (202/755–4851).

STATE OF LOUISIANA

Issuance of a Specific Exemption To Use Avitrol To Control Bird Damage to Rice Crop

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has granted a specific exemption to the State of Louisiana (hereafter referred to as the "Applicant") to use not more than 150,000 pounds of an Avitrol product to control damage by depredating birds which are threatening the rice crop in southwestern Louisiana. This exemption was granted in accordance with, and is subject to, the provisions of 40 CFR Part 166, which prescribes requirements for exemption of Federal and State agencies for use of pesticides under emergency conditions.

This notice contains a summary of certain information required by regulation to be included in the notice. For more detailed information, interested parties are referred to the application on file with the Registration Division (WH–567), Office of Pesticide Programs, EPA, 401 M St., S.W., Room E–315, Washington, D.C. 20460.

According to the Applicant, a common rice seeding practice in southwestern Louisiana is to flood the rice fields and sow the seeds into the water by aircraft. The water is then drawn off exposing the seeds. The Applicant stated that large flocks of brown-headed cowbirds, boat-tailed grackles, common grackles, and rusty blackbirds inhabiting this area of Louisiana can quickly consume newly planted rice seed.

Bird damage is not so severe when rice is planted by drill seeding, but weather and soil conditions may prevent drilling. Alternatively, if after water planting, the water is not drawn off, there can be no bird damage; however, the Applicant stated that this is not compatible with rice farm management practices. For many years, Aldrin was used as a seed treatment for rice, primarily against rice water weevil.

A secondary benefit derived from seed treatment with Aldrin was that the treated rice also served as a bird repellent. The Applicant stated that since Aldrin is no longer available, no satisfactory bird repellent is available.

Rice is the second most important crop in Louisiana, according to the Applicant; it was estimated that one out of every ten acres of rice fields would suffer bird damage if control measures were not taken. This could represent 150,000 acres of the approximate total of 600,000 acres of rice to be planted in Louisiana this year.

Currently, there are no avicides or avian repellents registered for use in rice fields. The Applicant proposed to aerially apply one pound of Avitrol Corn Chops–99 (EPA Reg. No. 11649–12), which is equal to 0.03 percent active 4-aminopyridine per acre in sixty foot swaths with a 120 foot swath between treated areas. The actual application rate would be three (3) pounds of product per acre of treated swaths. According to the Applicant, two to three applications may be necessary in some areas should reinfestation occur.

Avitrol Corn Chops–99 is registered for bird damage control in twelve (12) States. It is formulated such that only one particle in one-hundred particles of corn actually contains the active ingredient. To date, most of the field studies with this product have been concerned with its use to control bird damage of corn and sunflowers. Obviously, hazards associated with these uses are significantly different from those associated with rice agriculture.

EPA has determined that the greatest hazard associated with the use of Avitrol is to non-target avian species (migratory and native waterfowl, upland game birds, and songbirds). Numerous waterfowl species utilize rice fields, as well as adjacent areas, extensively during early spring; some of these species are mallards, shovellers, teals, wood ducks, and canvasbacks. Although many of these and other birds are beginning to migrate north by mid-March, birds that wintered farther south are continually using rice fields as stopover sites on their journey northward. The greatest hazard generally exists to the smaller avian species.

The U.S. Department of the Interior (USDI) reviewed the proposed use of Avitrol and agreed that there are potential hazards to non-target avian species in treated areas; however, the USDI stated that an adequate monitoring program would reduce damage of such species.

A tolerance of 0.1 ppm has been established for negligible residues of the bird repellent 4-aminopyridine in or on the raw agricultural commodities corn grain, forage and fodder, and sunflower seeds. EPA has reviewed the data submitted for this use of Avitrol and has determined that residues in or on rice grain or straw would not be expected to exceed 0.1 ppm under this use.

After reviewing the application and other available information, EPA has determined that (a) bird depredation of seeded rice in Louisiana is likely to occur; (b) there is no pesticide presently registered and available for use to control bird damage to rice crops; (c) there are no alternative means of control, taking into account the efficacy and hazard; (d) significant economic problems may result if birds are not controlled; and (e) the time available for action to mitigate the problems posed is insufficient for a pesticide to be registered for this use. Accordingly, the Applicant has been granted a specific exemption to use the pesticide noted above until June 30, 1977, to the extent and in the manner set forth in the application. The specific exemption is also subject to the following conditions:

1. The EPA registered product, Avitrol Corn Chops–99 (EPA Reg. No. 11649–12), must be used and applied at a maximum rate of three (3) pounds of product per acre of treated swaths. Avitrol will be applied in sixty foot swaths with a 120 foot swath between treated areas;

2. A maximum of three (3) applications will be made. The second and third application, if necessary, will be made to untreated swaths to prevent double treatment of the same land;

3. The total quantity of Avitrol product used will not exceed 150,000 pounds;

4. This product is extremely toxic to wildlife. Keep out of lakes, streams or ponds. Do not contaminate water by cleaning of equipment or disposal of waste;

5. All appropriate label directions and precautionary statements will be observed;

6. A residue level not to exceed 0.1 ppm 4-aminopyridine in or on rice grain or straw has been deemed adequate to protect the public health. The Food and Drug Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, has been advised of this action;

7. A full report of this program will be submitted to EPA upon the completion of the program. In addition, a plan must be developed with and approved by the EPA Regional office prior to the application of the pesticide which will ensure that the following requirements and restrictions are observed;

8. Applicators must report the time and place of application to the EPA Regional office at least 24 hours prior to such application;

9. On-site surveillance must be conducted by State or county personnel or personnel of the USDI or the EPA Regional office;

10. Post-treatment monitoring for effects on nontarget species must be conducted by one of the above agencies; and

11. This use of Avitrol Corn Chops–99 will be terminated immediately in those areas where high mortality to non-target species occurs. Particular care will be exercised regarding migratory waterfowl.

(Sec. 18 of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), as amended (86 Stat. 973; 89 Stat. 751; 7 U.S.C. 136(a) et seq.))

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Issuance of a Specific Exemption To Use Avitrol To Control Bird Damage to Rice Crop

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has granted a specific exemption to the Texas Department of Agriculture (hereafter referred to as the "Applicant") to use not more than 60,000 pounds of an Avitrol product to control damage by depredating birds which are threatening the rice crop in nineteen (19) counties in Texas. This exemption was granted in accordance with, and is subject to, the provisions of 40 CFR Part 166, which prescribes requirements for exemption of Federal and State agencies for use of pesticides under emergency conditions.

This notice contains a summary of certain information required by regulation to be included in the notice. For more detailed information, interested parties are referred to the application on file with the Registration Division (WH–567), Office of Pesticide Programs, EPA, 401 M Street SW., Room E–315, Washington, D.C. 20460.

According to the Applicant, rice fields in the affected areas are irrigated to add soil moisture and then drained before being seeded. Rice is then aerially seeded. It is at this time, immediately after seeding, that the birds (blackbirds, cowbirds, grackles, starlings, wrens, doves, and treeducks) cause damage by eating the seed and seedlings. Depredation of rice seed may greatly reduce yields at harvest.

The Applicant estimated that one out of every ten acres of rice fields would be unfit for harvesting if control measures are not taken. This could represent 50,000 acres of the total 500,000 acres planted in rice each year in Texas. The potential yield loss to bird depredation has been estimated by the Applicant at $16,026,000. Reseeding 50,000 acres of depredated rice fields would cost approximately $3,000,000.

Currently, there are no avicides or avian repellents registered for use in rice fields. The applicant proposed to aerially apply one pound of Avitrol Corn Chops–99 (EPA Reg. No. 11649–12), which is equal to 0.03 percent active 4-aminopyridine per acre in sixty foot swaths with a 120 foot swath between treated areas. The actual application rate would be three (3) pounds of product per acre of treated swaths. According to the Applicant, two to three applications may be necessary in some areas should reinfestation occur. However, if additional treatments are necessary, they would be applied to untreated swaths to prevent double treatment of the same land. The following coastal counties of Texas are involved: Austin, Brazoria, Calhoun, Chambers, Colorado, Fort Bend, Galveston, Hardin, Harris, Jackson, Jefferson, Lavaca, Liberty, Matagorda, Newton, Orange, Victoria, Waller, and Wharton.

Avitrol Corn Chops–99 is registered for bird damage control in twelve (12) states; Avitrol is not registered for bird damage control in Texas. To date, most of the field studies with this product have been concerned with its use to control bird damage of corn and sunflowers. Obviously, hazards associated with these uses are significantly different from those associated with rice agriculture.

EPA has determined that the greatest hazard associated with the use of Avitrol is to non-target avian species (migratory and native waterfowl, Attwater's Prairie Chicken, etc.). Numerous waterfowl species utilize rice fields, as well as adjacent areas, extensively during early spring; some of these species are mallards, shovellers, teals, wood ducks, and canvasbacks. Although many of these and other birds are beginning to migrate north by mid-March, birds that wintered farther south are continually using rice fields as stopover sites on their journey northward. Certain species of waterfowl may be found in these areas by late May. Other avian species which utilize the rice fields include upland game birds, such as quail, pheasant, dove, and turkeys as well as numerous species of shore birds and songbirds. The greatest hazard generally exists to the smaller avian species.

The Attwater's Prairie Chicken, an endangered species, is a native to this area of Texas. Although EPA does not have toxicity data for the Attwater's Prairie Chicken, toxicity data for other avian species indicate that one (1) treated kernel may be sufficient to incapacitate an adult chicken. One potential hazard to Attwater's Prairie Chicken from ingestion of Avitrol is potential reproduction impairment. A study with coturnix quail found that egg production was reduced when females were given a single oral subacute dose of 5.62 mg/kg of Avitrol. Although these results do not conclusively prove that egg production in the Attwater's Prairie Chicken would suffer similar effects, it does point to a potential hazard. The ecological disruption of the chicken's habitat is yet another possible hazard posed by this use of Avitrol. It is possible that heavy mortality to target and/or non-target species could attract large numbers of predators, many of which could be nest predators. However, the program to be used includes monitoring (pre- and post-treatment) for effects on non-target species by State and Federal personnel, the termination of all applications of Avitrol in those areas where high mortality to nontarget species occurs, and prohibiting the use of Avitrol in any area utilized by Attwater's Prairie Chicken. These procedures have been adopted to prevent violation of the Endangered Species Act. In the past, several emergency exemptions which posed potential hazards to endangered species have been issued by EPA; however, appropriate restrictions have always been imposed to avoid or reduce exposure to a minimum, when it was deemed necessary to use pesticides under emergency conditions. The restrictions have usually involved monitoring by state and Federal officials to ensure that endangered species are not in the areas to be treated. As of this date, no reported serious consequences to the existence or habitat of endangered species have resulted from a pesticide program authorized under an emergency exemption.

The U.S. Department of the Interior (USDI) reviewed the proposed use of Avitrol and agreed that there are potential hazards to non-target avian species in treated areas; however, the USDI stated that an adequate monitoring program would reduce damage of such species.

A tolerance of 0.1 ppm has been established for negligible residues of the bird repellent 4-aminopyridine in or on the raw agricultural commodities corn grain, forage and fodder, and sunflower seeds. EPA has reviewed the data submitted for this use of Avitrol and has determined that residues in or on rice grain or straw would not be expected to exceed 0.1 ppm under this use.

After reviewing the application and other available information, EPA has determined that (a) bird depredation of seeded rice in Texas has occurred; (b) there is no pesticide presently registered and available for use to control bird damage to rice crops; (c) there are no alternative means of control, taking into account the efficacy and hazard; (d) significant economic problems may result if the birds are not controlled; and (e) the time available for action to mitigate the problems posed is insufficient for a pesticide to be registered for this use. Accordingly, the Applicant has been granted a specific exemption to use the pesticide noted above until June 30, 1977, to the extent and in the manner set forth in the application. The specific exemption is also subject to the following conditions:

1. The EPA registered product, Avitrol Corn Chops–99 (EPA Reg. No. 11649–12), must be used and applied at a maximum rate of three (3) pounds of product per acre of treated swaths. Avitrol will be applied in sixty foot swaths with a 120 foot swath between treated areas;

2. A maximum of three (3) applications will be made. The second and third applications, if necessary, will be made to untreated swaths to prevent double treatment of the same land;

3. The total quantity of Avitrol product used will not exceed 60,000 pounds;

4. The use of Avitrol is limited to the nineteen (19) counties listed elsewhere in this notice;

5. A residue level not to exceed 0.1 ppm 4-aminopyridine in or on rice grain or straw has been deemed adequate to protect the public health. The Food and Drug Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, has been advised of this action;

6. This product is extremely toxic to wildlife. Keep out of lakes, streams or ponds. Do not contaminate water by cleaning of equipment or disposal of waste;

7. All appropriate label directions and precautionary statements will be observed;

8. A full report of this program will be submitted to EPA upon the completion of the program. In addition, a plan must be developed with and approved by the EPA Regional office prior to the application of the pesticide which will ensure that the following requirements and restriction are observed;

9. Applicators must report the time and place of application to the EPA Regional office at least 24 hours prior to such application;

10. On-site surveillance must be conducted by State or county personnel or personnel of the USDI or the EPA Regional office;

11. Post-treatment monitoring for effects on non-target species must be conducted by one of the above agencies;

12. Avitrol must not be applied to areas utilized by Attwater's Prairie Chicken or in any area where sightings have been reported. An appropriate buffer zone agreed to among the Texas Fish and Wildlife Department, the Texas Department of Agriculture and the EPA Regional office will be maintained to ensure the safety of the Attwater's Prairie Chicken;

13. Avitrol will not be applied to any off-target sites (roads, roadside ditches, fence rows, tree lines, irrigation ditches, etc.); and

14. This use of Avitrol Corn Chops–99 will be terminated immediately in those areas where high mortality to non-target species occurs. Particular care will be exercised regarding migratory waterfowl.

U.S. BORAX RESEARCH CORP.

Issuance of Experimental Use Permit To Use USB 3153

On March 21, 1977, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) announced in the FEDERAL REGISTER (42 FR 15361) the receipt of an application from the U.S. Borax Research Corporation for an experimental use permit to allow the use of 5,953 pounds of active ingredient of the herbicide USB 3153 on cotton, soybeans, apricots, peaches, plums, grapes, almonds, and walnuts to evaluate control of various broadleaf weeds and grasses and crop tolerance. Since the Administrator, EPA, determined that issuance of the permit might be of regional or national significance, interested parties were invited to submit written comments regarding the application. No comments were received during the thirty-day comment period.

Based on available information, an experimental use permit has been issued to the U.S. Borax Research Corporation, Anaheim, California 92801. [Docket No. 21266; File No. BRCT–629; FCC 77–373]

NORTHLAND TELEVISION, INC.

Order and Notice of Apparent Liability Designating Application for Hearing on Stated Issues

Adopted: May 26, 1977.

Released: June 15, 1977.

In regard application of: Northland Television, Inc., Television Station WAEO, Rhinelander, Wisconsin, For renewal of license, Docket No. 21266, File No. BRCT–629.

1. The Commission has before it for consideration the above-captioned application and its inquiries into the operation of Television Station WAEO, Rhinelander, Wisconsin.

2. Information before the Commission raises serious questions as to whether the applicant possesses the qualifications to be or remain a licensee of the captioned station. In view of these questions, the Commission is unable to find that a grant of the renewal application would serve the public interest, convenience and necessity, and must, therefore, designate the application for hearing.

3. Accordingly, it is ordered, That the captioned application is designated for hearing pursuant to section 309(e) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, at a time and place to be specified in a subsequent order, upon the following issues:

(a) To determine all the facts and circumstances surrounding station WAEO–TV's and/or Northland Television, Inc.'s preparation and issuance of network station reports.

(b) To determine whether, and, if so, the extent to which the licensee has violated § 73.1205 of the Commission's rules regarding fraudulent billing practices.

(c) To determine whether the management, officials or employees of the licensee have made misrepresentations to or were lacking in candor with the Commission regarding the operation of Station WAEO–TV and with regard to the matters explored under issue (a), above.

(d) To determine whether, and, if so, the extent to which the licensee of Station WAEO–TV has violated § 73.670 (b)(1)(iii) and (2)(i) and (ii) and § 73.673 of the Commission's rules regarding the maintenance and retention of accurate and complete program logs.

(e) To determine, in light of the evidence adduced under the preceding issues, whether the licensee of WAEO–TV possesses the requisite qualifications to be or remain a licensee of the Commission, and whether a grant of the captioned application would serve the public interest, convenience and necessity.

4. It is ordered, That the Chief of the Broadcast Bureau is directed to serve upon the captioned applicant within thirty (30) days of the release of this order, a Bill of Particulars with respect to issues (a) through (d), inclusive.

5. It is further ordered, That the Broadcast Bureau proceed with the initial presentation of evidence with respect to issues (a) through (d), inclusive, and the applicant then proceed with its evidence and have the burden of establishing it possesses the requisite qualifications to be and remain a licensee of the Commission and that a grant of the application would serve the public interest, convenience and necessity.

6. It is further ordered, That to avail itself of the opportunity to be heard, the applicant, pursuant to § 1.221 (c) of the Commission's Rules, in person or by attorney, shall, within twenty (20) days of the mailing of this order, file with the Commission, in triplicate, a written appearance stating an intention to appear on the date fixed for hearing and present evidence on the issues specified in this order.

7. It is further ordered, That the applicant herein, pursuant to section 311 (a)(2) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, and § 1.594 of the Commission's rules, shall give notice of the hearing within the time and in the manner prescribed in such rule and shall advise the Commission thereof as required by § 1.594(g) of the rules.

8. It is further ordered, That if it is determined that the hearing record does not warrant an order denying the captioned application for renewal of license of Station WAEO–TV, it shall also be determined whether the applicant has repeatedly or willfully violated the following sections of the Commission's rules and regulations: Sections 73.1205, 73.670 and 73.673. If so, it shall also be determined whether an Order of Forfeiture pursuant to section 503(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, in the amount of $10,000 or less should be issued for violations which occurred within one year preceding the issuance of the Bill of Particulars in this matter.

9. It is further ordered, That this document constitutes a Notice of Apparent Liability to Northland Television Inc., for forfeiture for violations of the Commission's rules set out in paragraph eight above. The Commission has determined that, in every case designated for hearing involving revocation or denial of renewal of license for alleged violations which also come within the purview of section 503(b) of the Act, it shall, as a matter of course, include this forfeiture notice so as to maintain the fullest possible flexibility of action. Since this procedure is thus a routine or standard one, we stress that inclusion of this notice is not to be taken as in any way indicating what the initial or final disposition of the case should be; that judgment is, of course, to be made on the facts of each case.

10. It is further ordered, That pursuant to Public Notice, "Questions Concerning Basic Qualifications of Broadcast Applicants," FCC 73–1024, 28 RR 2d 705, released October 5, 1973, action on the application (BTC–8178) for transfer of control of Station WAEO–TV, Rhinelander, Wisconsin, to Northwoods Television, Inc., shall be deferred pending resolution of the issues in the instant proceeding.

11. It is further ordered, That the Secretary of the Commission send a copy of this order by Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested to Northland Television, Inc., licensee of television Station WAEO, Rhinelander, Wisconsin.

FEDERAL ENERGY ADMINISTRATION

ISSUANCE OF DECISIONS AND ORDERS; WEEK OF MAY 16 THROUGH MAY 20, 1977

Exceptions and Appeals

Notice is hereby given that during the week of May 16 through May 20, 1977, the Decisions and Orders summarized below were issued with respect to Appeals and Applications for Exception or other relief filed with the Office of Exceptions and Appeals of the Federal Energy Administration. The following summary also contains a list of submissions which were dismissed by the Office of Exceptions and Appeals and the basis for the dismissal.

APPENDIX

B. F. Goodrich Chemical Co.; Cleveland, Ohio; FXA–1161; Propane

The B. F. Goodrich Chemical Company (Goodrich) appealed from a Decision and Order in which the FEA denied an Application for Exception which the firm had previously submitted. B. F. Goodrich Chemical Co., 4 FEA Par. 83,234 (December 16, 1976). The Appeal, if granted, would have resulted in the issuance of an order by the FEA increasing the firm's base period use of propane. In considering the Appeal the FEA rejected Goodrich's contention that Section 4(b)(1) of the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973 (EPAA) entitles the firm to the increased allocation which it requested. The FEA observed that its allocation regulations are designed to achieve an appropriate balance of the various policy objectives contained in Section 4(b)(1) of the EPAA and that Goodrich had failed to show that the FEA regulatory program had been implemented in an arbitrary or capricious manner with respect to Goodrich. In addition, the FEA concluded that, contrary to the firm's claims, Section 4(c)(5) of the EPAA does not entitle Goodrich to the additional quantities of propane which it requested because that statutory provision does not guarantee an industrial user access to an unlimited quantity of propane. The FEA also determined that the difference between Goodrich's current requirements and its base period volume of propane did not constitute a gross disparity. The FEA found that Goodrich presently has access to sufficient supplies of surplus propane to satisfy its needs and that the firm had failed to provide any basis for the FEA to depart from its well-established precedent of declining to approve exception relief of the type requested where a firm is able to obtain surplus product to meet its current requirements. Finally, the FEA concluded that the fact that Goodrich must rely upon surplus propane for a portion of its current needs would not adversely affect the firm to such an inordinate degree as compared to its competitors so as to constitute a gross inequity. The Goodrich Appeal was therefore denied.

[1] Commissioner Lee absent; Commissioners Hooks and Washburn concurring in the result.

BP Oil, Inc.; Cleveland, Ohio; FXA–1166; Motor gasoline

BP Oil, Inc. (BP), a wholly owned subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio (Sohio), filed an Appeal from a Decision and Order which the FEA issued to it on December 10, 1976. BP Oil, Inc., 4 FEA Par. 83,222 (December 10, 1976). In the December 10 Order, the FEA denied a request for exception which the firm had submitted from the provisions of Sections 212.82 and 212.112 of the FEA Price Regulations. The BP Appeal, if granted, would have resulted in the issuance of an Order rescinding the December 10 Order and permitting BP to calculate the selling prices which it may charge for unleaded motor gasoline on a separate basis from Sohio. In its Appeal, BP contended that it is uniquely and inequitably affected by the requirement that it sell unleaded motor gasoline at a price which is based on Sohio's May 15, 1973 selling price for that product. The FEA found, however, that, contrary to the firm's contentions, BP is not a separate firm but instead is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sohio and is therefore considered under the FEA regulations to be part of a "firm" which marketed unleaded motor gasoline during May 1973. The FEA therefore concluded that BP had failed to demonstrate that the manner in which the FEA Regulations apply to the situation which it is encountering is significantly different from the application of the Regulations to other firms which did not produce unleaded motor gasoline in May 1973 in all of the refineries which they owned. The FEA also found that the denial of exception relief would not seriously affect Sohio's financial posture or impair any aspect of its operations. Furthermore, the FEA determined that BP had failed to present any evidence which would properly lead to the conclusion that the objectives of the FEA Price Regulations or the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973 would be seriously frustrated unless exception relief were granted to BP. Finally, contrary to BP's claim, the FEA found that the relationship between BP and Sohio was clearly distinguishable from the relationship which had existed between the Getty Oil Company and its subsidiary, the Skelly Oil Company, prior to a merger of those firms. See Getty Oil Company (Eastern Operations), Inc.; Skelly Oil Company, 2 FEA Par. 83,041 (February 11, 1975); and Getty Oil Company, 5 FEA Par. 87,009 (January 25, 1977). Since BP had failed to demonstrate that the December 10 Order was erroneous in any respect, its Appeal was denied.

Boyd Oil, Corp.; Contoocook, N.H.; FRA–1195; Middle distillates

Boyd Oil Corporation filed an Appeal from a Remedial Order which the Director of Regulatory Programs of FEA Region I issued to the firm on February 4, 1977. The Remedial Order found that during the period November 1, 1973 through December 31, 1975, Boyd sold No. 2 heating oil and diesel fuel at prices which were in excess of the maximum permissible prices specified in 10 CFR 212.93. In order to remedy the violation cited, the Remedial Order directed Boyd to refund $36,896.52 in overcharges plus interest to its customers. In considering the Boyd Appeal, the FEA rejected the firm's contention that no violation could be found to exist since the sales transactions in question were made under the terms of a contract which had been awarded by the Defense Fuel Supply Center (DFSC). Contrary to the position advanced by Boyd, the FEA found that the DFSC's classification as a priority fuel customer for purposes of the Mandatory Petroleum Allocation Regulations has no bearing on the maximum allowable price which Boyd was permitted to charge in its sales to the DFSC. The FEA also observed that it has been firmly established that the FEA regulations may preempt the terms of any contract in order to effectuate the objectives of the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973. With respect to Boyd's claim that the firm's refund liability should have been reduced by the amount of revenues which it failed to obtain during certain periods as a result of charging prices which were below its maximum allowable prices, the FEA determined that Boyd did not even allege that it had implemented those price reductions in order to refund to its customers the previous overcharges. The Boyd Appeal was therefore denied.

Omega Oil Co.; Dayton Ohio; FXA–1144; Motor gasoline

Omega Oil Company filed an Appeal from a Decision and Order which had been issued to it by the FEA on November 9, 1976. Omega Oil Co., 4 FEA Par. 83,189 (November 9, 1976). In the previous determination, the FEA denied Omega's request for increased allocations of motor gasoline for certain full-service retail outlets which the firm had purchased from Sohio and converted to high-volume outlets. The present Appeal, if granted, would have approved the increased allocations. In considering the Appeal, the FEA determined that, contrary to Omega's assertions, the previous denial of exception relief had not impeded the implementation of an antitrust consent decree which required Sohio to divest certain retail gasoline stations. In this regard, the FEA found that the denial of the Omega exception application had not deterred other marketers from purchasing Sohio stations since three firms had acquired Sohio outlets following the issuance of the November 9 Decision. Moreover, any firm which might be precluded from purchasing a Sohio outlet could apply for an increased allocation prior to its acquisition of the station. In contrast, the FEA found that Omega had purchased the stations as a discretionary business matter prior to seeking exception relief and did so with full knowledge of the existing allocation levels of those stations. The FEA also found that the Department of Justice, which has primary responsibility for overseeing the consent decree, had adopted a neutral stance regarding the Omega request. With respect to Omega's claim that the base period volumes of motor gasoline for its stations should be equivalent to the base period volumes for new retail sales outlets, the FEA found that a firm was not entitled to an increased allocation merely because it had changed its method of operations. Finally, the FEA determined that the previous decision had properly applied the criteria for serious hardship by considering the profitability of the petroleum related activities of Omega's parent corporation. Accordingly, the Omega Appeal was denied.

Warrior Asphalt Co. of Alabama, Inc.; Tuscaloosa, Ala.; FXA–1159; Crude oil

Warrior Asphalt Company of Alabama, Inc. appealed from a Decision and Order which the FEA issued to it on December 15, 1976. Warrior Asphalt Company of Alabama, Inc., 4 FEA Par. 83,263 (December 15, 1976). In the December 15 determination the FEA denied an Application for Exception which Warrior had filed from the provisions of 10 CFR 211.67 (the Old Oil Entitlements Program). On December 23, 1976, the FEA issued a Supplemental Order to Warrior in which it determined that the December 15 Decision and Order was erroneous and, accordingly, reduced by $102,844 per month the value of entitlements which Warrior would otherwise be required to purchase during the period December 1976 through May 1977. Warrior Asphalt Company of Alabama, Inc., Supplemental Order, 4 FEA Par. 83,263 (December 23, 1976). Warrior's Appeal, if granted, would have resulted in certain adjustments to the FEA's calculation of the firm's historical and current profitability, thereby increasing the level of exception relief granted to in firm in the December 23 Order. In considering the Warrior Appeal, the FEA noted that the arguments which the firm raised were identical to the arguments which it had presented in a prior Appeal submission. The FEA found that those arguments had been fully considered and rejected by the FEA in a Decision and Order which was issued to the firm on April 12, 1977. Warrior Asphalt Company of Alabama, Inc., 5 FEA Par. ____ (April 12, 1977). Consequently, the FEA concluded that the present Warrior Appeal should be denied on the grounds set forth in the April 12, 1977 Decision and Order.

REQUESTS FOR EXCEPTION

Hocker Oil Co., Salem, Mo.; FEE–4027; Motor gasoline

Hocker Oil Company filed an Application for Exception from the provisions of 10 CFR 211.12 which, if granted, would have resulted in the issuance of FEA Orders increasing the firm's base period use of motor gasoline from 4,276,042 gallons to 10,080,000 gallons per year and assigning suppliers to furnish Hocker with the increased volume. In its exception application Hocker contended that it was experiencing a gross inequity since a significant increase had occurred in the demand for motor gasoline at its 15 retail outlets. The firm further contended that it was currently experiencing a serious hardship which resulted from the high prices that it had been paying for the substantial quantities of surplus gasoline which it purchased to meet this increased demand. In considering Hocker's exception request, the FEA found that, even though a gross disparity exists between the quantity of motor gasoline which the 15 outlets are currently selling and their aggregate adjusted base period volume, Hocker had failed to satisfy the remaining criteria necessary for the approval of exception relief on gross inequity grounds. See Climax Molybdenum Company, 2 FEA Par. 83,157 (May 20, 1975). In addition, the FEA found that any financial difficulties Hocker was experiencing were primarily due to the firm's business decision to sell substantial quantities of petroleum products at minimum levels of markup and were not caused by the requirements of the FEA Mandatory Petroleum Allocation Regulations. The FEA therefore concluded that Hocker had also failed to satisfy the criteria which were set forth in prior Decisions as the basis for adjusting a firm's base period use of a petroleum product on serious hardship grounds. The Hocker Application was therefore denied.

Maralo, Inc.; Houston, Tex.; FEE–3509; Crude oil

Maralo, Inc. filed an Application for Exception from the provisions of Subpart D of the FEA Price Regulations. In its Application, Maralo sought retroactive and prospective authorization from the FEA to treat six of its crude oil reservoirs as separate properties even though the wells which have been producing crude oil from those reservoirs are not subject to separate rights to produce. See 10 CFR 212.72. In considering Maralo's request for retroactive exception relief, the FEA rejected the firm's contention that the regulatory definition of "property" had been so vague prior to the issuance of Ruling 1975-15 on September 4, 1975, as to permit a crude oil producer to treat reservoirs which it had developed separately as separate properties under FEA crude oil price regulations. With respect to Maralo's allegation that it had relied on advice from FEA officials regarding the proper application of the definition of "property," the FEA found that if Maralo had received advice it was oral and unrecorded and does not constitute a formal interpretation of FEA Regulations upon which a firm may rely. The FEA observed that it was neither reasonable nor consistent with FEA regulations and precedents for the FEA to accept a firm's reliance upon unrecorded, oral advice as ratifying violations of the FEA Price Regulations. See 10 CFR 205.80(a) and Flying Diamond Oil Corp., 4 FEA Par. 83,159 (October 22, 1976) at p. 83,687 and cases cited therein. The FEA therefore concluded that Maralo's request for retroactive relief should be denied. With respect to Maralo's request for prospective exception relief, the FEA found that the amended regulatory definition of "property" which became effective on September 1, 1976 and the provision of FEA Ruling 1977-2 provide the firm with an alternative administrative remedy through which it can obtain the relief which it requests. See 10 CFR 212.73 and 42 Fed. Reg. 4409 (January 25, 1977). Maralo's request for prospective exception relief was therefore dismissed without prejudice to a refiling at a later date.

Pierce & Dehlinger; Midland, Tex.; FEE–4057; Crude oil

Pierce & Dehlinger (P&D) filed an Application for Exception from the provisions of 10 CFR, Part 212, Subpart D, which, if granted, would have permitted the firm to sell at exempt prices the crude oil that it will produce from the Carter No. 1 well (the Carter well) subsequent to the repair of the well casing which is intended to restore the well to production. In considering P&D's application for exception, the FEA determined that the revenues which P&D would receive during the remaining eleven and one-half year life of the project would provide P&D with sufficient economic incentive to undertake the necessary capital investment to repair the Carter well. In fact, the FEA found that even in the absence of exception relief, P&D would realize an internal rate of return of 60 percent if the repairs are made. On the basis of these findings, the FEA concluded that the P&D Application should be denied.

REQUESTS FOR STAY

Bucks Butane and Propane Service, Inc.; San Jose, Calif.; FRS–1315; Propane

Bucks Butane and Propane Service, Inc. (Bucks) filed an Application for Stay of a Remedial Order which the Director of Compliance of the FEA Region IX issued to the firm on April 21, 1977. The Remedial Order determined that during the period November 1, 1973 through February 29, 1976, Bucks improperly sold propane at prices which were in excess of the maximum allowable prices computed pursuant to the provisions of 6 CFR 150.359 and 10 CFR 212.93. The Remedial Order found that Bucks had received $95,488.65 in overcharges from its sales of propane and $62,909.82 as a result of the prices it charged for propane tank rentals. On the basis of these findings, the Remedial Order directed Bucks to make refunds to its propane customers through a combination of prospective price reductions and lump-sum payments. Bucks' stay request, if approved, would relieve the firm of its obligation to make those refunds pending a final determination on its Appeal of the Remedial Order. In considering the request for stay, the FEA concluded that Bucks had raised substantial issues concerning the propriety of the Remedial Order and had made a strong showing that it would incur an irreparable injury if it were required to immediately comply with the refund provisions of the Remedial Order. In view of the large number of customers involved, the FEA found that Bucks could experience a great deal of difficulty in recovering any refunded revenues in the event that the firm ultimately succeeds on the merits of its Appeal. The FEA therefore held that Bucks had satisfied the criteria set forth in General Crude Oil Co., 3 FEA Par. 85,040 (June 25, 9176), for the approval of a stay of the refund requirement of a Remedial Order. The FEA further concluded, however, that the stay should be conditioned upon the establishment of an escrow account into which Bucks is required to place a portion of the disputed funds.

Exxon Co., U.S.A.; Houston, Tex.; FRS–1287; Refined Petroleum Products

The Exxon Company, U.S.A., filed an Application for Stay of the requirements of a Remedial Order which was issued to the firm by the Deputy Regional Administrator of FEA Region VI on April 26, 1977. The Remedial Order directed Exxon to make refunds to Exxon retailers and to either reinstate certain bank credit card contracts or reduce its selling prices by an amount which reflects the savings to Exxon which resulted from the discontinuance of those credit card arrangements. The Order did not specify the amount of refunds to be made, but Exxon was directed to secure data from its retailers and to develop further data which would permit the calculation of this amount. In considering the Exxon request that a stay be granted pending final judicial settlements of Marathon v. Federal Energy Administration, the FEA noted that the only issues remaining to be decided in that case concern a type of credit practice which is different from the practice which is involved in the Exxon Remedial Order. Moreover, it did not appear that the decision which would be rendered in the Marathon case would be dispositive of the issues involved in the remedial action which is pending against Exxon. Accordingly, this portion of the Exxon Application was denied. In considering Exxon's request that a stay be granted pending consideration of an Appeal of the Remedial Order which Exxon has filed, the FEA noted that Exxon had raised substantial issues concerning the propriety of the Remedial Order. In addition, the FEA determined that if a stay were not granted, Exxon might incur an irreparable injury in the event that it were successful on the merits of its Appeal since, if Exxon were to reinstate the bank credit card contracts, it might not be able to extricate itself from the obligations which it had assumed. The FEA further determined that, if Exxon reduced its selling prices for refined petroleum products or made refunds to its retailers, it might experience substantial difficulty in recovering the funds involved. Accordingly, the FEA determined that a stay of the Remedial Order during the pendency of the Appeal proceedings was warranted. Exxon was not required to establish an escrow account since it would have been very difficult to determine the amount to be set aside, and Exxon's ability to reduce its selling prices and to remit the revenues involved to its retailers in a timely manner would not be impaired by the approval of a stay.

Guam Oil & Refining Co., Inc.; Dallas, Tex.; FES–4105; Crude Oil

Guam Oil & Refining Company, Inc. (Gorco), filed an Application for Stay in which it requested that the FEA refrain from making any adjustment to future Entitlement Lists which would have the effect of requiring it to make restitution for entitlements benefits it may have improperly obtained during the period January 1975 through February 1977. Gorco requested that the stay be made effective until a final FEA determination is made on an Application for Exception which Gorco has filed. In the determination which it issued, the FEA noted that it was not clear that the Office of Regulatory Programs could make the adjustments to Gorco's entitlement obligations in the manner which Gorco anticipated. Nevertheless, the FEA found that the seriousness of the issues which Gorco raised in its submission warranted immediate consideration in the context of its Application for Stay. In considering Gorco's Application, the FEA found that Gorco is the only domestic refiner in the Territory of Guam, and that the residents of Guam are therefore particularly vulnerable to any price increase which Gorco might institute. Furthermore, per capita energy costs on Guam already are considerably higher, relative to per capita income, than on the United States mainland. The FEA also found that the somewhat depressed economic conditions currently existing on Guam might make it difficult for its economy to absorb further substantial energy cost increases at this time, thus threatening Guam's economic recovery effort. The FEA therefore concluded that the residents of Guam could incur a particularly serious and immediate hardship if the adjustments which Gorco anticipated were made at the present time, since they would be likely to produce price increases for petroleum products sold on Guam. In addition, the possibility of a disruption in the supply of fuel to the Defense Fuel Supply Center which would occur if these adjustments were made immediately was found to constitute a potential danger to national defense interests in the Western Pacific. Finally, the FEA affirmed that restitution of any entitlement benefits which Gorco had improperly received would effect only a very small percentage change in future Entitlement Lists, and therefore no other firm could incur an immediate and serious hardship if stay relief were approved. In view of these considerations, the FEA concluded that, even though Gorco had not yet fully demonstrated the precise impact that the restitution of entitlements benefits and the resultant price increases would have the potential for very serious adverse consequences for the residents of Guam and for national defense interests clearly existed. Gorco's Application for Stay was therefore approved.

New England Power Co.; Westborough, Mass.; FES–4146; Coal Conversion

The New England Power Company (NEP) filed an Application for Stay which, if granted, would have extended the final date on which it could submit comments with respect to certain Notices of Intent (NOI's) which were issued to six of the firm's power-plants. In the NOI's, the FEA announced its intention to issue Prohibition Orders to those powerplants pursuant to the provisions of the Energy Supply and Environmental Coordination Act of 1974 (ESECA). The Prohibition Orders would prohibit the six NEP powerplants from burning natural gas or petroleum as their primary energy source. The deadline for submission of written comments on the FEA's proposals to issue the Prohibition Orders is May 30, 1977. In its Application for Stay, NEP contended that it would be unable prior to the May 30 deadline to complete its analysis of the FEA's proposed findings and certain related material which was recently released to the firm. In considering these contentions the FEA found that the firm had not indicated the nature or significance of the data which it planned to submit to the agency if the May 30 deadline were extended. Moreover, the FEA found that NEP had not identified which of the proposed findings set forth in the NOI's it intended to challenge, nor had it described the nature of any irreparable injury the firm would suffer in the event the stay request were denied. The FEA further determined that NEP had been aware of the possibility that the NOI's might be issued to the six powerplants for a considerable period of time prior to their issuance, and that NEP was familiar with the statutory findings which the FEA was required to make under ESECA prior to the issuance of a Prohibition Order. The FEA therefore found that NEP had received adequate notice of the type of material which should be submitted on the record in order to dispute the FEA's proposed findings. Under these circumstances, the FEA held that the 35-day period allotted to NEP in the NOI's for the submission of written comments on the proposals to issue Prohibition Orders was reasonable and NEP's Application for Stay was therefore denied.

Stephens and Cass; Dallas, Tex.; FRS–4095; Crude Oil

Stephens and Cass (S&C) filed an Application for Stay of a Remedial Order which FEA Region VI issued to the firm on April 12, 1977. In the Remedial Order, the FEA found that during the period between September 1, 1973 and October 31, 1975, S&C had sold crude oil which it produced from 14 properties at prices which exceeded the applicable ceiling price levels. On the basis of this finding, the Remedial Order required S&C to reduce its prices for crude oil which is currently produced and sold from the properties by $10.00 per barrel until the overcharges are refunded. If the stay were granted, S&C would be relieved of its obligation to make the refunds pending the FEA's determination on a request for exception which the firm had submitted. In considering S&C's Application for Stay, the FEA applied the principles established in General Crude Oil Co., 3 FEA Par. 85,040 (June 25, 1976), modified, 3 FEA Par. 85,040 (July 8, 1976). On the basis of these principles, the FEA concluded that a stay should be granted since S&C had raised substantial issues in its Application for Exception and the firm might encounter inordinate difficulty in recovering the refunds. S&C might thereby suffer an irreparable injury if it were to ultimately prevail on the merits of its exception request. The FEA further concluded, however, that in accordance with the considerations discussed in General Crude, the stay should be conditioned upon the establishment of an escrow account by S&C. In view of the requirement that the refunds be made through price reductions, the FEA directed that S&C charge the purchasers of the crude oil produced and sold from the properties a price which is equal to the prevailing market price minus $10 per barrel and in turn directed that each purchaser deposit into the escrow account an amount that is equal to $10 for each barrel of crude oil which it purchases from S&C.

Twin-Tech Oil Co., Washington, D.C.; FES–1318, Natural Gas Liquid Products

Twin-Tech Oil Co. filed a request that the provisions of 10 CFR, Part 212, Subpart K be stayed during the pendency of its Appeal from a Decision and Order which the FEA issued to the firm on March 28, 1977. Twin-Tech Oil Co., 5 FEA Par. 83, 126 (March 28, 1977). The Request for Stay, if granted, would have resulted in the issuance of an Order permitting Twin-Tech to charge prices for natural gas liquid products and natural gas liquids (NGL's) which are in excess of the maximum selling prices which the firm was permitted to charge pursuant to the March 28 Order. In considering the Twin-Tech request, the FEA concluded that, although the firm had shown that it would raise significant substantive issues concerning the findings in the March 28 Decision, the material presented by the firm did not make a prima facie showing that the March 28 Decision and Order was erroneous in fact or in law. In addition, the FEA determined that Twin-Tech had failed to demonstrate that its financial viability was in jeopardy as a result of the FEA regulatory requirements or that the firm would incur an irreparable injury in the absence of a stay. In this regard, the FEA found that the record in this matter contained no evidence that Twin-Tech would be unable to continue its essential business operations during the period of time in which its Appeal from the March 28 Decision and Order was pending before the FEA. Moreover, the FEA concluded that no justification existed for the particular type of relief which Twin-Tech requested, viz., the issuance of an order which would permit the firm to continue to charge what are apparently improper prices for the NGL's which it produces and sells. Accordingly, the Twin-Tech stay request was denied.

SUPPLEMENTAL ORDER

Sabre Refining, Inc.; Bakersfield, Calif.; FEX–0120; Crude Oil

On July 16, 1976 the Federal Energy Administration issued a Decision and Order to Sabre Refining, Inc. in which exception relief from the provisions of 10 CFR 211.67 was approved. The July 16 Order relieved the firm of its obligation to purchase entitlements equal in value to $1,017,664 per month during that portion of its 1976 fiscal year following the rescission of Special Rule No. 6. Sabre Refining, Inc., 4 FEA Par. 83,010 (July 16, 1976). In the July 16 Order, the FEA stated that a review of Sabre's actual financial results would be conducted at the end of the firm's fiscal year to determine whether it had received excessive benefits as a result of the exception relief which had been approved. The Order further stated that, if Sabre did receive excessive entitlements exception relief during its 1976 fiscal year, and adjustment would be made and Sabre would be required to purchase additional entitlements to account for the excessive benefits. In performing this review of the entitlements exception relief provided to Sabre, the FEA determined that Sabre had exceeded its historical profit margin during its 1976 fiscal year. In accordance with the criteria established in prior decisions, Sabre was required to purchase entitlements that are equal in value to $182,904 in order to offset the excessive exception relief which it received during 1976.

SUMMARY DECISION

The Office of Exceptions and Appeals of the Federal Energy Administration amended a Decision and Order which it previously issued to the following firm in order to require the Regional Administrator of FEA Region VI to assign to the firm a new base period supplier for 71.03 percent of its actual base period use of motor gasoline during the period from May through July 1977:

Jamar Oil Co.; Tulsa, Okla.; FEX–0158

REQUEST FOR EXCEPTION RECEIVED FROM A NATURAL GAS PROCESSOR

The Office of Exceptions and Appeals of the Federal Energy Administration has issued a Decision and Order granting exception relief from the provisions of 10 CFR 212.165 to the natural gas processor listed below. The exception granted permits the firm involved to increase the prices of the production of the gas plant listed below to reflect certain non-product cost increases:

Company	Case No.	Plant	Amount of price increase dollars per gallon

DISMISSALS

The following submission was dismissed for failure to correct deficiencies in the firm's filing as required by the FEA Procedural Regulations:

Bob Lawrence Volkswagon, Inc.; Salisbury, Md.; FRS–1263

The following submission was dismissed on the grounds that alternative regulatory procedures existed under which relief had already been obtained:

Boston Gas Co.; Washington, D.C.; FXE–4061

STATE ENERGY CONSERVATION PLANS

Negative Determination of Environmental Impact Re The Arkansas Energy Conservation Plan

Pursuant to 10 CFR 208.4, the Federal Energy Administration hereby gives notice that it has performed an analysis and review of the environmental impacts associated with the provision of Federal financial assistance for the implementation, by the State of Arkansas, of its State Energy Conservation Plan. Federal funding is authorized by Part C of Title III of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act, 42 U.S.C. 6321 et seq.

Based upon assessment of environmental impacts that are expected to result from implementation of this plan, the FEA has determined that Federal financial assistance will not be a "major Federal action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment" within the meaning of section 102(2)(C) of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, 42 U.S.C. 4332(2)(C). Therefore, pursuant to 10 CFR 208.4(c), the Federal Energy Administration has determined that an environmental impact statement is not required for this plan.

Single copies of the environmental assessment of the State Plan for Arkansas are available upon request from the FEA National Energy Information Center, Room 1416, 12th and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20461.

Copies of the environmental assessment will also be available for public review in the Federal Energy Administration Information Access Reading Room, Room 2107, 12th and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20461.

Copies of the State Plan are available for public review in the Office of State Energy Conservation Programs, Room 6437, 12th and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20461.

Interested persons are invited to submit data, views or arguments with respect to the environmental assessment to Executive Communications, Box NN, Room 3317, Federal Energy Administration, Washington, D.C. 20461.

Comments should be identified on the outside of the envelope and on documents submitted to FEA Executive Communications with the designation, "Environmental Assessment, Arkansas Energy Conservation Plan." Fifteen copies should be submitted. All comments should be received by FEA by 4:30 p.m., e.d.s.t., July 6, 1977, in order to receive full consideration.

Any information or data considered by the person submitting it to be confidential must be so identified and submitted in one copy only. The FEA reserves the right to determine the confidential status of the information or data and to treat it according to that determination.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

COLUMBIA GAS TRANSMISSION CORP., ET AL.

Practice and Procedure Hearing; Order Setting Proceeding for Hearing, Adding Party Respondent, and Granting Intervention

JUNE 20, 1977.

Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation (Columbia Gas) and Columbia Gulf Transmission Company (Columbia Gulf) filed a joint application on July 20, 1976,[1] requesting certificate authorization to transport up to 1,000 Mcf of gas per day for Cabot Corporation (Cabot) in two stages from Eugene Island Block 285, Gulf of Mexico, Offshore Louisiana, to an existing point of delivery at Cabot's distribution system in Kanawha County, West Virginia, pursuant to an agreement dated June 8, 1976. The gas proposed to be transported is a 25 percent portion of Cabot's interest in production from the Eugene Island Block 273 Field that was expressly reserved by Cabot in its contract dated October 1, 1970,[2] covering a sale to Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Company (Michigan Wisconsin). The application states that Cabot intends to use these volumes mainly for Priorities 1 and 2 needs on its distribution system, which is undergoing a diminution of supply from other sources. Michigan Wisconsin is currently receiving 100 percent of Cabot's interest.

It is proposed that Columbia Gulf will transport the gas from Block 285 to a point in Boyd County, Kentucky, at a charge of 31.21 cents per Mcf; and that Columbia Gas will transport the gas from Boyd County, Kentucky to the delivery point to Cabot in Kanawha County, West Virginia, at a charge of 21.99 cents per Mcf.

After due notice of the application in this proceeding (issued August 5, 1976) in the Federal Register, the Public Service Commission of West Virginia (West Virginia) and the Public Service Commission of the State of New York (PSCNY) filed notices of intervention, with PSCNY requesting that a formal hearing be held. Cabot filed a petition to intervene. Pursuant to Section 1.8(a) of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, West Virginia and PSCNY are parties hereto without necessity of specific action on the part of the Commission.

The application herein raises a question as to whether and to what extent Cabot should be permitted to exercise its option to withdraw 25% of its gas from its sale to Michigan Wisconsin in Docket No. CL71–346, including questions as to (1) what use would the gas be put to if released for Cabot's distribution system, both directly and as a matter of displacement, (2) what rate would be charged ultimate consumers of this gas by Cabot, and (3) what uses would be affected by loss of this gas by the Michigan Wisconsin system. (This identification of questions involved is not intended to prohibit the raising of other questions during the hearing of this matter, including the reasonableness of transportation charges.)

As a further matter, the Commission regards Michigan Wisconsin as an essential party to this proceeding, even though it did not petition to intervene. Therefore, we will make Michigan Wisconsin a respondent herein.

In view of the foregoing, we deem it necessary that a hearing be held in this matter.

The Commission finds: It is necessary and in the public interest that this proceeding be set for hearing; that Michigan Wisconsin be made a respondent herein; and that Cabot be permitted to intervene.

The Commission orders: (A) This proceeding in Docket No. CP76–450 is hereby set for hearing and disposition.

(B) Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Company is hereby made a respondent herein.

(C) Pursuant to the authority of the Natural Gas Act, particularly Sections 4, 5, 7, 14, and 16 thereof, the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, and the Regulations under the Natural Gas Act (18 CFR Chapter I), a public hearing in this proceeding, Docket No. CP76–450, shall be held in a hearing room of the Federal Power Commission, 825 North Capitol Street, NE., Washington, D.C. 20426, for the purpose of hearing and disposition of the issues herein.

(D) A Presiding Administrative Law Judge to be designated by the Chief Administrative Law Judge for that purpose (see Delegation of Authority, 18 CFR 3.5 (d)), shall preside at the hearing in this proceeding, with authority to establish and change all procedural dates, and to rule on all motions (with the sole exception of petitions to intervene, motions to consolidate and sever, and motions to dismiss as provided for in the Rules of Practice and Procedure).

(E) Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation, Columbia Gulf Transmission Company, Cabot Corporation, and Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Company shall file their direct testimony and evidence responsive to the issues identified in the body of this order, and all parties in support of the application shall file their direct testimony and evidence on or before July 14, 1977. All testimony and evidence shall be served upon the Presiding Administrative Law Judge, the Commission Staff, and all parties to this proceeding.

(F) The Presiding Administrative Law Judge shall preside at a prehearing conference to be held in this proceeding on July 28, 1977, at 10 a.m. EDT in a hearing room at the address noted in Ordering Paragraph (C).

(G) Cabot Corporation is permitted to intervene, subject to the Rules and Regulations of the Commission, provided that the participation of Cabot shall be limited to matters affecting asserted rights and interests as specifically set forth in its petition to intervene and provided further that the admission of Cabot shall not be construed as recognition by the Commission that it might be aggrieved because of any order issued by the Commission in this proceeding.

[1] A supplement thereto was filed September 1, 1976.

[2] On file as Cabot's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 102, sale authorized in Docket No. CI71–346.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

DISTRIGAS CORP., ET AL.

Hearing; Order Providing for Joint Limited Evidentiary Hearings

JUNE 17, 1977.

On February 11, 1977, Distrigas Corporation (Distrigas) filed in Docket No. CP77-218 an application pursuant to Section 3 of the Natural Gas Act for authorization to import liquefied natural gas (LNG) from Algeria into the United States for a 20-year period. A companion appplication was filed in Docket No. CP 77-217 by Distrigas seeking authorization to sell imported LNG to its affiliate, Distrigas of Massachusetts (DOMAC). DOMAC in Docket No. CP77-216 seeks authorization to resell the gas to certain distribution customers and to make certain modifications to its existing LNG terminal facilities at Everett, Massachusetts. By notice issued February 24, 1977, these applications were consolidated. No hearing schedule has as yet been fixed for these Distrigas proceedings.

On May 27, 1977, Distrigas and DOMAC filed with the Commission a motion for a limited evidentiary hearing on the limited supply aspects in order to take testimony and permit cross-examination of witnesses from La Societe Nationale Sonatrach), the Algeria national oil company which will sell the imported LNG to Distrigas. Distrigas and DOMAC in support of their motion state that Sonatrach personnel will be in this country during the week of June 20, 1977, in connection with hearings to be held in Canada and that the scheduling of a limited hearing for evidence and cross-examination of these witnesses immediately following a scheduled prehearing conference in Tenneco Atlantic Pipeline Company, et al., Docket Nos. CP77-100, et al. would eliminate a requirement that Algerian witnesses make successive trips to this country. Distrigas and DOMAC also request that the testimony and cross-examination on Algerian natural gas reserves be held on July 15, 1977, when the same Sonatrach consultant will be in Washington for hearings on the Tenneco Atlantic Pipeline Company, et al. proceeding currently scheduled to commence July 11, 1977. Brooklyn Union Gas Company filed on June 3, 1977, a joinder in support of Distrigas' motion.

Staff by a filing of June 8, 1977, supports the motion and further moves that such evidentiary hearing be held jointly with the Tenneco Atlantic Pipeline Company, et al. proceeding, and that the joint hearings should commence on June 23, 1977. The Commission Staff believes early joint hearings could be in the best interests of both the parties to this proceeding and to the Algerian witnesses.[1] This would allow parties adequate time to evaluate the Algerian natural gas situation before possible further hearings and would prevent successive trips by the Sonatrach witnesses to Washington, D.C. for hearings. Moreover, the Sonatrach witnesses will be in Washington, D.C. in the same time frame as the Tenneco Atlantic proceeding. Staff states it would ask the Sonatrach witnesses in the Distrigas hearing many of the same questions as it would ask in the Tenneco Atlantic hearing. Furthermore, most of the parties to the Distrigas proceeding are also intervenors in the Tenneco Atlantic proceeding.[2] The joint record may be used, as appropriate, by parties in the two seperate proceedings in arguments and seperate briefs and will be used by the Commission in making its ultimate decision in both cases.

On June 9, 1977, Distrigas filed a response in support of Staff's motion together with testimony of Sonatrach witnesses Mazouni and Watson.

Upon consideration in the interests of expedition we shall grant Distrigas' and Staff's motion for early joint hearings as hereafter ordered.

The Commission finds: The motions of Distrigas and Staff should be granted.

The Commission orders: (A) Joint limited evidentiary hearings for the Sonatrach witnesses Tayeb Mazouni and Abelmadjid Mazi Tani shall commence June 23, 1977, in Docket No. CP77-100, et al., and Docket No. CP77-216, et al. following the prehearing conference scheduled in Docket Nos. CP77-100, et al., to commence on the same date.

(B) Joint limited evidentiary hearings on Algerian natural gas reserves with respect to Sonatrach's witness James W. Watson shall commence on July 15, 1977, in Docket No. CP77-100, et al., and Docket No. CP77-216, et al.

MONTANA POWER CO.

[Docket No. ER77-378]

Electric Rates: Acceptance for Filing; Order Accepting Agreement and Supplement for Filing, and Requiring Additional Information

JUNE 17, 1977.

On May 18, 1977, Montana Power Company (Montana) submitted for filing a power purchase agreement with Big Horn County Electric Cooperative, Inc. (Big Horn), as well as Supplement No. 1 to that agreement. The new agreement supersedes the present power purchase agreement dated May 9, 1956, between Montana and Big Horn[1] and provides for improved service to Big Horn at the same rates as the prior agreement.[2] Supplement No. 1, dated February 15, 1974, contains Montana's Rate Schedule REC-74, which would result in a rate increase of $44,613 to Big Horn for the year ending June 30, 1978.[3] Big Horn has signed both the agreement and the supplement.

Montana has requested a retroactive effective date of April 14, 1971, for its superseding agreement[4] and a prospective date of July 1, 1977, for Supplement No. 1.

Notice of the filing was issued on June 1, 1977, with comments and petitions due on or before June 8, 1977. No response was received.

Although the April 1971 power purchase agreement[5] contains rates identical to the demand and energy charges provided in the filed 1956 agreement, it also contains a tax adjustment clause not included in the prior agreement. We will not allow the operation of the tax adjustment clause because we do not know if Montana collected revenues under the clause in the agreement which apparently took effect in 1971. Any tax adjustment clause would require full cost of service data since the clause, if implemented, might constitute a rate increase. The Commission cannot approve a rate increase retroactively. In light of the fact that the proposed purchase agreement results in improved service to Big Horn, we will grant Montana's requested effective date of April 14, 1971, provided that the tax clause is of no effect.[6] Montana will be directed to advise the Commission if the Company has collected any revenues under the tax clause.

Supplement No. 1,[7] with a requested effective date of July 1, 1977, does not contain a tax adjustment clause. The rate level provided in the Supplement has been found to be reasonable on the ground that the proposed rates have previously been supported by Montana's cost-of-service study filed in Docket No. E-9004 for service to Cooperative customers. Since the Supplement is dated February 15, 1974, Montana may have been collecting revenues under the supplement's rate level since that time.[8] The supplement and the proposed effective date will be accepted and Montana will be directed to advise the Commission if the Company has already collected any revenues under it.

The Commission finds: (1) Good cause exists to accept Montana Power Company's proposed agreement for filing to become effective on April 14, 1971, for all amounts collected under it except for those collected under the tax adjustment provision.

(2) Good cause exists to accept Montana's proposed Supplement No. 1 for filing to become effective on July 1, 1977.

(3) Good cause exists to require Montana to advise the Commission within 15 days of the issuance of the order if the Company has collected any revenues under (a) the tax clause of its proposed power purchase agreement or (b) its proposed Supplement No. 1, and, if so, the amount of such revenues.

The Commission orders: (A) Montana's proposed agreement is hereby accepted for filing to become effective retroactively on April 14, 1971, for all amounts collected under it except for those collected under the tax adjustment provision.

(B) Montana's proposed Supplement No. 1 is hereby accepted for filing to become effective on July 1, 1977.

(C) Montana shall advise the Commission within 15 days of the issuance of the order if the Company has collected any revenues under (1) the tax clause of its proposed power purchase agreement or (2) its proposed Supplement No. 1, and, if so, the amount of such revenues.

(D) The acceptance of the agreement and Supplement No. 1 for filing does not constitute approval of any service, rate, charge, classification, or any rule, regulation, contract, or practice affecting such rate or service provided for in the above-designated rate schedule; nor shall such acceptance be deemed as recognition of any claimed contractual right or obligation affecting or relating to such service or rate; and such acceptance is without prejudice to any findings or orders which have been or may hereafter be made by the Commission in any proceeding now pending or hereafter instituted by or against Montana.

(E) The Secretary shall cause prompt publication of this order to be made in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

ROYAL TRUST CO. AND ROYAL TRUST BANK CORP.

Order Approving Acquisition of Bank

The Royal Trust Company, Montreal, Quebec, Canada ("Applicant"), and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Royal Trust Bank Corp., Miami, Florida ("Bank Corp."), both of which are bank holding companies within the meaning of the Bank Holding Company Act, have applied for the Board's approval under § 3(a)(3) of the Act (12 U.S.C. § 1842(a)(3)) to acquire all of the voting shares of Royal Trust Bank of South Dade, N.A., Dade County, Florida, a proposed new bank ("Bank").

Notice of the applications, affording opportunity for interested persons to submit comments and views, has been given in accordance with § 3(b) of the Act. The time for filing comments and views has expired, and the Board has considered the applications and all comments received in light of the factors set forth in § 3(c) of the Act (12 U.S.C. § 1842(c)).

Applicant, with total assets of approximately $4.3 billion,[1] is the largest trust company and the eighth largest financial institution in Canada, and operates, through its subsidiaries and other interests, in both Europe and the Caribbean Islands. In the United States, Applicant controls six Florida banks ($184.7 million in deposits)[2] and one nonbank subsidiary.[3] Consummation of the subject proposal would not have an immediate effect upon the concentration of banking resources in Florida.

Bank will be located in the southern part of Dade County approximately four miles from the University of Miami's south campus. With two subsidiary banks in the relevant market,[4] applicant controls $107 million in deposits, or approximately 1.7 percent of the market deposits,[5] and is the 18th largest of 46 banking organizations (with 110 banks) operating in the market. Florida's six largest bank holding companies are also represented in the market. Although Applicant is already competing in the market, its lead bank and its closest subsidiary bank, Royal Trust Bank of Miami, N.A., is located 12.3 miles north of Bank's proposed location.[6] Due to the relative size of Applicant, the distances separating Bank from Applicant's other subsidiary banks, and the fact that Bank is a proposed new bank, consummation of Applicant's proposal would not appear to eliminate any potential competition, nor would it significantly increase the concentration of banking resources, in the relevant market. Accordingly, the Board concludes that competitive considerations are consistent with approval of the applications.

The financial and managerial resources and future prospects of Applicant, Bank Corp. and their subsidiaries are regarded as satisfactory. As a proposed new bank, Bank has no financial or operating history; however, its prospects as a subsidiary of Applicant appear favorable. Considerations relating to banking factors, therefore, are consistent with approval of the application.

Bank will serve as an additional full service banking alternative in the relevant market, and affiliation with Applicant will enable Bank to offer international banking services, accounts receivable financing, factoring, investment management, and investment portfolio analysis. Thus, these considerations relating to the convenience and needs of the community to be served lend some weight toward approval of the application. It is the Board's judgment that the proposed acquisition would be in the public interest and that the applications should be approved.

On the basis of the record, the applications are approved for the reasons

[1] All banking data are as of December 31, 1976, unless otherwise indicated and reflect bank holding company formations and acquisitions approved by the Board through April 30, 1977.

[2] Applicant currently controls five of these banks through Bank Corp. which was formed in 1976 as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Applicant in order to hold directly Applicant's banking interests in the United States.

[3] Information Systems Design of Florida, Inc., Miami, Florida ("ISD-Florida") was formed as a subsidiary of Information Systems Design, Inc., Santa Clara, California ("ISD-California") in 1971. While ISD-Florida is fully engaged in data processing activities permissible for bank holding companies within the scope of Regulation Y, 12 CFR § 225.4(a)(8), ISD-California is not. ISD-California is, in turn, owned by Computel Systems, Ltd. ("Computel"), a Canadian data processing company. By Order of December 6, 1973, the Board denied Applicant's retention of ISD-California after Applicant's acquisition of Computel pursuant to § 4(c)(9) of the Act (60 Fed. Res. Bull. 58 (1974)). On January 31, 1977, the Board approved in principle a plan of divestiture of ISD-California that had been submitted by Applicant. Immediately prior to consummation of the divestiture proposal, Applicant will retain ISD-Florida through a corporate reorganization by which ISD-Florida will be transferred to Applicant or to another subsidiary of Applicant.

[4] The Greater Miami banking market, the relevant market, includes Dade County and that portion of Broward County lying south of the Dania Canal. The northern boundary of the market area is delineated by the Dania Canal, the Miami International Airport, and a tract of undeveloped land extending across Broward County.

[5] All market data are as of June 30, 1976.

[6] In addition, Applicant's lead bank, has received approval from the Regional Administrator of National Banks to open two branches, one 17 miles and the other 7.7 miles from Bank.

summarized above. The transaction shall not be made (a) before the thirtieth calendar day following the effective date of this Order or (b) later than three months after that date, and (c) Royal Trust Bank of South Dade, N.A., Dade County, Florida, shall be opened for business not later than six months after the effective date of this Order. Each of the periods described in (b) and (c) may be extended for good cause by the Board, or by the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta pursuant to delegated authority.

By order of the Board of Governors,[7] effective June 20, 1977.

GRIFFITH L. GARWOOD,
Deputy Secretary of the Board.

TRADE DEVELOPMENT HOLLAND HOLDING B.V. TRADE DEVELOPMENT FINANCE (NETHERLANDS ANTILLES) N.V.

Order Approving Formation of Bank Holding Companies

Trade Development Holland Holding B.V. ("TDHH"), Amsterdam, The Netherlands, and its parent corporation, Trade Development Finance (Netherlands Antilles) N.V. ("TDFNA"), Curocao, The Netherlands, Antilles, have applied for the Board's approval under section 3(a)(1) of the Bank Holding Company Act (12 U.S.C. 1842(a)(1)) to become bank holding companies through direct acquisition by TDHH of approximately 40 to 47 percent of the voting shares of Republic New York Corporation ("Republic"), New York, New York, increasing thereby TDHH's direct ownership and TDFNA's indirect ownership of Republic's voting shares from approximately 22 percent to between 62 and 69 percent. Republic is a bank holding company that owns all the voting shares, except directors' qualifying shares, of Republic National Bank of New York ("Bank"), New York, New York.

Notice of the applications, affording opportunity for interested persons to submit comments and views, has been given in accordance with section 3(b) of the Act. The time for filing comments and views has expired, and the Board has considered the applications and all comments received in light of the factors set forth in section 3(c) of the Act (12 U.S.C. 1842(c)).

These applications are essentially for a reorganization of existing ownership interests in Republic. TDFNA is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Trade Development Bank Holding S.A. ("TDBH"), Luxembourg, Luxembourg, a foreign bank holding company registered under the Act by virtue of its indirect ownership of 62 percent of Bank.[1] Upon approval of these applications, TDHH will acquire approximately 40 percent of the shares of Republic from two wholly-owned subsidiaries of TDBH. It will purchase approximately 27 percent of Republic's shares from Trade Development Bank, Geneva, Switzerland, and approximately 13 percent from Trade Development Europe Holding B.V., Amsterdam, The Netherlands. These transactions will result in direct ownership by TDHH and indirect ownership by TDFNA of approximately 62 percent of Republic's shares. The indirect interest of TDBH and its parent corporation, Saban S.A., Panama, Panama, which is also a registered bank holding company, will be unaffected. An additional seven percent of Republic's shares, however, may be purchased by TDBH from unaffiliated persons and transferred to TDHH under Applicants' proposal. Since Applicants' proposal represents essentially a reorganization of existing intermediate interests among TDBH's subsidiaries, and does not affect ultimate control or beneficial ownership of Bank, consummation of the proposal would not eliminate banking competition or increase the concentration of banking resources. Thus, competitive considerations are consistent with approval of the applications.

The financial and managerial resources and future prospects of Applicants and Bank are regarded as generally satisfactory and consistent with approval of the applications. Although there will be no immediate change in the services offered by Bank as a result of consummation of the proposal, convenience and needs considerations are also consistent with approval of the applications. Therefore, it is the Board's judgment that the proposed transactions should be approved.

As part of their applications, Applicants have contended that they should be considered foreign bank holding companies. Under sections 2(h) and 4(c)(9) of the Act and § 225.4(g) of Regulation Y, foreign bank holding companies are entitled to greater regulatory freedom than domestic bank holding companies with regard to their foreign investments and foreign activities. Applicants are in the process of submitting to the Board information required to clarify their claim of foreign bank holding company status under § 225.4(g)(1) of the Board's Regulation Y, but have asked the Board not to delay action on the present applications pending a determination of their status.[2] The significance of foreign bank holding company status under the Act and Regulation Y relates principally to exemptions from the nonbanking prohibitions of section 4 of the Act.[3] For bank acquisitions under section 3 of the Act, the factors that the Board must consider under section 3(c) of the Act apply equally to both domestic and foreign companies. Since, as discussed below, it appears that only one existing foreign investment of Applicants may be affected by the ultimate determination of Applicants' status as foreign or domestic bank holding companies and since it further appears that this investment does not bear significantly on the factors that the Board must consider under § 3(c) of the Act, the Board does not view the current inquiry regarding Applicants' status as an impediment to approval of these applications.[4] Accordingly, Applicants shall be deemed to be domestic bank holding companies unless they later establish by satisfactory evidence their entitlement under § 225.4(g) of Regulation Y to a different status.

Upon consummation of the proposed acquisitions, Applicants must conform their investments and activities to those provisions of the Act applicable to domestic bank holding companies. Specifically, Applicants will be required by law to divest their voting shares of Trade Development Bank (France) S.A., Paris, France, in excess of five percent, within two years after the date on which they become bank holding companies, unless within that time the Board determines Applicants to be foreign bank holding companies or approves their retention of those shares under section 4(c)(13) of the Act.

[1] Voting for this action: Chairman Burns and Governors Gardner, Wallich, Jackson, Partee and Lilly. Absent and not voting: Governor Coldwell.

[2] Bank is the fourteenth largest commercial bank in the Metropolitan New York Market, and holds $1.6 billion in consolidated deposits, or 0.7 percent of the deposits in commercial banks in the market. All banking data are as of December 31, 1976. Market data are as of June 30, 1975. The Metropolitan New York banking market is approximated by the five boroughs of New York City, plus Nassau, Putnam, Rockland, and Westchester Counties, and western Suffolk County, all in New York State, as well as the northern two-thirds of Bergen County and eastern Hudson County in New Jersey and southwestern Fairfield County in Connecticut.

[3] Incident to Applicants' request for expedited processing of these applications, Applicants' counsel has advised them to undertake no activities and make no investments except in accordance with rules applicable to domestic bank holding companies.

[4] Bank holding companies that do not qualify as foreign bank holding companies under section 225.4(g) of Regulation Y must apply to retain or acquire shares of foreign companies under section 225.4(f) of Regulation Y which implements section 4(c)(13) of the Act. In general, under section 225.4(f) of Regulation Y domestic bank holding companies are limited to owning and controlling shares of foreign companies that are engaged in international or foreign banking and other foreign or international financial operations. In contrast, under section 4(c)(9) a foreign bank holding company can own and control shares of any foreign company, regardless of the activities the company is engaged in, so long as it is only engaged in incidental activities in the United States.

[5] For some companies, domestic bank holding company status could entail a significant divestiture of interests in foreign companies, and this requirement could materially affect the financial resources and future prospects of the companies under section 3 of the Act. In connection with the present applications, however, domestic bank holding company status will not necessarily involve any significant divestiture by either Applicant.

On the basis of the record, the applications are approved for the reasons summarized above. The transactions shall not be made before the thirtieth calendar day following the effective date of this Order, or later than three months after the effective date of this Order, unless such period is extended for good cause by the Board or by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, pursuant to delegated authority.

By order of the Board of Governors,[5] effective June 20, 1977.

RUTH A. REISTER,
Assistant Secretary of the Board.

[Docket No. TCR 76-105]

WACHOVIA CORP.

Prior Certification Pursuant to the Bank Holding Company Tax Act of 1976

The Wachovia Corporation, Winston-Salem, North Carolina ("Wachovia"), has requested a prior certification pursuant to § 6158(a) of the Internal Revenue Code (the "Code"), as amended by § 3(a) of the Bank Holding Company Tax Act of 1976 (the "Tax Act"), that the sale on August 31, 1976, of all the 10 issued and outstanding shares of common stock of North Carolina Title Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina ("Title Company"), held by Wachovia Mortgage Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina ("Mortgage"), a wholly owned subsidiary of Wachovia, to Chicago Title Insurance Company, Chicago, Illinois ("Chicago Title"), for $600,000 cash, was necessary or appropriate to effectuate § 4 of the Bank Holding Company Act (12 U.S.C. § 1843) ("BHC Act").[1]

In connection with this request, the following information is deemed relevant for purposes of issuing the requested certification: [2]

1. Wachovia is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of North Carolina on September 19, 1968, to acquire and hold all the shares of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, N.A. ("Bank").

2. On December 31, 1968, Wachovia acquired ownership and control of all the outstanding voting shares (less directors' qualifying shares) of Bank.

3. Wachovia became a bank holding company on December 31, 1970, as a result of the 1970 Amendments to the BHC Act, by virtue of its ownership and control at that time of more than 25 percent of the outstanding voting shares of Bank, and it registered as such with the Board on January 20, 1972. Wachovia would have been a bank holding company on July 7, 1970, if the BHC Act Amendments of 1970 had been in effect on such date, by virtue of its ownership and control on that date of more than 25 percent of the voting shares of Bank. Wachovia presently owns and controls 100 percent (less directors' qualifying shares) of the outstanding voting shares of Bank.

4. Title Company is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of North Carolina on January 1, 1969, as a wholly owned subsidiary of Mortgage. Title Company engaged in the business of acting as agent for the sale of title insurance policies insuring the title to real property, which policies were underwritten by Chicago Title. Mortgage is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of North Carolina on January 1, 1969, as a wholly owned subsidiary of Wachovia. On August 31, 1976, Mortgage owned and controlled 10 shares of common stock, representing 100 percent of the issued and outstanding voting shares, of Title Company, all of which were acquired by it before July 7, 1970.

5. Wachovia did not file an application with the Board, or otherwise obtain the Board's approval, pursuant to § 4(c)(8) of the BHC Act to retain the shares of Title Company or engage in the activities carried on by Title Company,[3] and the disposition of the shares of Title Company was necessary or appropriate to effectuate § 4 of the BHC Act if Wachovia were to be a bank holding company beyond December 31, 1980.

6. On August 31, 1976, Wachovia and Mortgage sold the shares of Title Company to Chicago Title for cash.

On the basis of the foregoing information it is hereby certified that:

REGULATORY REPORTS REVIEW

Receipt of Report Proposal

The following request for clearance of a report intended for use in collecting information from the public was received by the Regulatory Reports Review Staff, GAO, on June 20, 1977. See 44 U.S.C. 3512 (c) and (d). The purpose of publishing this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER is to inform the public of such receipt.

The notice includes the title of the request received; the name of the agency sponsoring the proposed collection of information; the agency form number, if applicable; and the frequency with which the information is proposed to be collected.

Written comments on the proposed FEA request are invited from all interested persons, organizations, public interest groups, and affected businesses. Because of the limited amount of time GAO has to review the proposed request, comments (in triplicate) must be received on or before July 12, 1977, and should be addressed to Mr. John M. Lovelady, Acting Assistant Director, Regulatory Reports Review, United States General Accounting Office, Room 5033, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D.C. 20548.

Further information may be obtained from Patsy J. Stuart of the Regulatory Reports Review Staff, 202-275-3532.

FEDERAL ENERGY ADMINISTRATION

The FEA requests clearance of a new single-time form, Historical Survey of No. 2 Heating Oil, FEA-P137-S-0. This mandatory form contains the same data elements as the form FEA-P131-S-1, Survey of Sellers of No. 2 Heating Oil. However, this proposed form covers a different time period. FEA has determined that it is necessary to hold hearings in each of its 10 regions and nationally, beginning July 11 and ending July 18, 1977, to determine why heating oil prices exceeded the FEA monitoring system index prices and what actions may be appropriate for the next heating season. In preparation for these hearings, the FEA needed the additional information required on the form FEA-P131-S-1 which collects data for June 1976 and January 1977. The proposed form FEA-P137-S-0 will require the 546 companies included in the reporting sample for the form FEA-P112-M-1 (excluding the 54 refiners) plus 200 companies selected from outside that sample to file data elements for June 1975 and January 1976. In addition, the large sellers of No. 2 heating oil (FEA-P112-M-1 Stratum 1 firms with annual sales of 10,000,000 gallons or more, excluding the 54 refiners) would be required to file data elements for June 1974 and January 1975. The data collected on the form FEA-P137-S-0 will be used in conjunction with the information filed on the various versions of the form P131 and the testimony to be made during the upcoming hearings in the decisionmaking process as to what actions may be required for the upcoming 1977/78 heating season. Due to the familiarity of all firms with the FEA regulations in effect during the time periods requested, the data required on form FEA-P137-S-0 should be readily available. The FEA estimates that an average of 6 hours will be required per response.

NORMAN F. HEYL,
Regulatory Reports Review Officer.

Advisory Committee Meeting

AGENCY: Food and Drug Administration.

ACTION: Notice.

SUMMARY: This notice announces a forthcoming meeting of a public advisory committee of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). This notice also sets forth a summary of the procedures governing committee meetings and methods by which interested persons may participate in open public hearings conducted by the committees and is issued under section 10(a)(1) and (2) of the Federal Advisory Committee Act

[3] It does not appear that Title Company's activities would qualify for approval by the Board had an application been filed. Although § 225.4(a)(9) of Regulation Y, 12 CFR § 225.4(a)(9) permitted certain insurance agency activities by bank holding companies, the scope of that provision was narrowed substantially by a decision of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. Alabama Association of Insurance Agents v. Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, 522 F. 2d 224 (1976), vacated in part and modified in part, 544 F. 2d 572 (1977).

[5] Voting for this action: Vice Chairman Gardner and Governors Wallich, Coldwell, Jackson, Partee and Lilly. Absent and not voting: Chairman Burns.

[1] Pursuant to § 3(e)(2) of the Tax Act, in the case of any sale that takes place on or before December 31, 1976 (the 90th day after the date of the enactment of the Tax Act), the certification described in § 6158(a) shall be treated as made before the sale, if application for such certification was made before the close of December 31, 1976. Wachovia's application for such certification was received by the Board on November 19, 1976.

[2] This information derives from Wachovia's correspondence with the Board concerning its request for this certification, Wachovia's Registration Statement filed with the Board pursuant to the BHC Act and other records of the Board.

Agenda.—Open public hearing. Any interested persons may present data, information, or views, orally or in writing, on issues pending before the committee.

Open committee discussion. The panel will review data submitted pursuant to the over-the-counter (OTC) review's call for data for this panel (see also 21 CFR 330.10(a)(2)).

The panel will be reviewing, voting upon, and modifying the content of summary minutes and categorization of ingredients and claims.

The panel will be reviewing, voting upon, and modifying its draft report in preparation for submission to the Commissioner.

FDA public advisory committee meetings may have as many as four separable portions: (1) An open public hearing, (2) an open committee discussion, (3) a closed presentation of data, and (4) a closed committee deliberation. Every advisory committee meeting shall have an open public hearing portion. Whether or not it also includes any of the other three portions will depend upon the specific meeting involved. There are no closed portions for the meetings announced in this notice. The dates and times reserved for the open portions of each committee meeting are listed above.

The open public hearing portion of each meeting shall be at least 1 hour long unless public participation does not last that long. It is emphasized, however, that the 1 hour time limit for an open public hearing represents a minimum rather than a maximum time for public participation, and an open public hearing may last for whatever longer period the committee chairman determines will facilitate the committee's work.

Meetings of advisory committees shall be conducted, insofar as is practical, in accordance with the agenda published in this FEDERAL REGISTER notice. Changes in the agenda will be announced at the beginning of the open portion of a meeting.

Any interested person who wishes to be assured of the right to make an oral presentation at the open public hearing portion of a meeting shall inform the contact person listed above, either orally or in writing, prior to the meeting. Any person attending the hearing who does not in advance of the meeting request an opportunity to speak will be allowed to make an oral presentation at the hearing's conclusion, if time permits, at the chairman's discretion.

Persons interested in specific agenda items to be discussed in open session may ascertain from the contact person the approximate time of discussion.

A list of committee members and summary minutes of meetings may be obtained from the Public Records and Documents Center (HFC-18), 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md. 20857, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. The applicant agency desires that the lands be withdrawn and reserved for the continued use of the Paxson Lake maintenance annex, a vehicle maintenance facility.

All persons who wish to submit comments, suggestions, or objections in connection with the proposed withdrawal may present their views in writing to the undersigned authorized officer of the Bureau of Land Management on or before July 30, 1977.

Pursuant to section 204(h) of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976, notice is hereby given that an opportunity for a public hearing is afforded in connection with the proposed withdrawal. The Department of the Interior's regulations provide that the authorized officer of the BLM will undertake such investigations as are necessary to determine the existing and potential demands for the lands and their resources. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

Employment and Training Administration

EMPLOYMENT TRANSFER AND BUSINESS COMPETITION DETERMINATIONS UNDER RURAL DEVELOPMENT ACT

Applications

The organizations listed in the attachment have applied to the Secretary of Agriculture for financial assistance in the form of grants, loans, or loan guarantees in order to establish or improve facilities at the locations listed for the purposes given in the attached list. The financial assistance would be authorized by the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act, as amended, 7 U.S.C. 1924(b), 1932, or 1942(b).

The Act requires the Secretary of Labor to determine whether such Federal assistance is calculated to or is likely to result in the transfer from one area to another of any employment or business activity provided by operations of the applicant. It is permissible to assist the establishment of a new branch, affiliate or subsidiary, only if this will not result in increased unemployment in the place of present operations and there is no reason to believe the new facility is being established with the intention of closing down an operating facility.

The Act also prohibits such assistance if the Secretary of Labor determines that it is calculated to or is likely to result in an increase in the production of goods, materials, or commodities, or the availability of services or facilities in the area, when there is not sufficient demand for such goods, materials, commodities, services, or facilities to employ the efficient capacity of existing competitive commercial or industrial enterprises, unless such financial or other assistance will not have an adverse effect upon existing competitive enterprises in the area.

The Secretary of Labor's review and certification procedures are set forth at 29 CFR Part 75. In determining whether the applications should be approved or denied, the Secretary will take into consideration the following factors:

1. The overall employment and unemployment situation in the local area in which the proposed facility will be located.
2. Employment trends in the same industry in the local area.
3. The potential effect of the new facility upon the local labor market, with particular emphasis upon its potential impact upon competitive enterprises in the same area.
4. The competitive effect upon other facilities in the same industry located in other areas (where such competition is a factor).
5. In the case of applications involving the establishment of branch plants or facilities, the potential effect of such new facilities on other existing plants or facilities operated by the applicant.

All persons wishing to bring to the attention of the Secretary of Labor any information pertinent to the determinations which must be made regarding these applications are invited to submit such information in writing within two weeks of publication of this notice to:

Deputy Assistant Secretary for Employment and Training, 601 D Street NW., Washington, D.C. 20213.

FEDERAL SUPPLEMENTAL BENEFITS (EMERGENCY UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION)

Notice of Ending of Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in Arkansas

This notice announces the ending of the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in the State of Arkansas, effective June 18, 1977.

BACKGROUND

The Emergency Unemployment Compensation Act of 1974 (Pub. L. 93-572, enacted December 31, 1974) (the Act) created a temporary program of supplementary unemployment benefits (referred to as Federal Supplemental Benefits) for unemployed individuals who have exhausted their rights to regular and extended benefits under State and Federal unemployment compensation laws. Federal Supplemental Benefits are payable during a Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in a State which has entered into an Agreement under the Act with the United States Secretary of Labor. A Federal Supplemental Benefit Period is triggered on in a State when unemployment in the State or in the State and the nation reaches the high levels set in the Act. During a Federal Supplemental Benefit Period the maximum amount of Federal Supplemental Benefits which are payable to eligible individuals is up to 13 weeks. A Federal Supplemental Benefit Period commenced in the State of Arkansas on December 26, 1976.

The Act also provides that a Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in a State will trigger off when the rate of insured unemployment in the State averages less than 5 percent over a period of thirteen consecutive calendar weeks. The benefit period actually terminates at the end of the third week after the week for which there is an "off" indicator, if the benefit period will have been in effect for a minimum duration of 13 weeks.

DETERMINATION OF "OFF" INDICATOR

The employment security agency of the State of Arkansas has determined under the Act and 20 CFR 618.19(b) (published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on March 23, 1976, at 41 FR 12151, 12157) that the average rate of insured unemployment in the State for the period consisting of the week ending on May 28, 1977, and the immediately preceding twelve weeks, was less than 5 percent.

Therefore, I have determined in accordance with the Act and 20 CFR 618.19(b), and as authorized by the Secretary of Labor's Order 4-75, dated April 16, 1975 (published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on April 28, 1975, at 40 FR 18515), that there was a Federal Supplemental Benefit "off" indicator in the State of Arkansas for the week ending May 28, 1977, and that the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in that State terminated on June 18, 1977.

INFORMATION FOR CLAIMANTS

Any individual to whom Federal Supplemental Benefits for Federal-State Extended Benefits were payable in the State (whether or not any payment actually was made), for any portion of the last week of the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period, will have an additional eligibility period beginning immediately following the end of the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period. During the additional eligibility period the individual will be entitled to Federal Supplemental Benefits to the same extent as if the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period continued to be in effect. The additional eligibility period will have a duration of 13 weeks, unless it is terminated sooner by reason of the beginning of a new Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in the State.

Individuals currently filing claims for Federal Supplemental Benefits will receive written notices from the Arkansas Department of Labor of the end of the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in that State and its effect on their entitlement to Federal Supplemental Benefits. The notice to any individual who will have an additional eligibility period following the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period will include information concerning potential entitlement to Federal Supplemental Benefits during the additional eligibility period.

Although the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period has terminated, an Extended Benefit Period will continue in effect in the State due to the National "on" indicator for the Federal-State Extended Benefit Program, as announced in a notice published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on February 21, 1975, at 40 FR 4722. Therefore, Federal-State Extended Benefits will continue to be payable to eligible individuals in the State unless that program subsequently triggers off in the State.

Persons who wish information about their rights to Federal Supplemental Benefits or Federal-State Extended Benefits in the State of Arkansas should contact the nearest State Employment Office of the Arkansas Department of Labor in their locality.

Signed at Washington, D.C., on June 20, 1977.

ERNEST G. GREEN,
Assistant Secretary for Employment and Training.

Notice of Ending of Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in North Dakota

This notice announces the ending of the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in the State of North Dakota, effective June 25, 1977.

BACKGROUND

The Emergency Unemployment Compensation Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-572, enacted December 31, 1974) (the Act) created a temporary program of supplementary unemployment benefits (referred to as Federal Supplemental Benefits) for unemployed individuals who have exhausted their rights to regular and extended benefits under State and Federal unemployment compensation laws. Federal Supplemental Benefits are payable during a Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in a State which has entered into an Agreement under the Act with the United States Secretary of Labor. A Federal Supplemental Benefit Period is triggered on in a State when unemployment in the State or in the State and the nation reaches the high levels set in the Act. During a Federal Supplemental Benefit Period the maximum amount of Federal Supplemental Benefits which are payable to eligible individuals is up to 13 weeks. A Federal Supplemental Benefit Period commenced in the State of North Dakota on February 27, 1977.

The Act also provides that a Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in a State will trigger off when the rate of insured unemployment in the State averages less than 5.0 percent over a period of thirteen consecutive calendar weeks. The benefit period actually terminates at the end of the third week after the week for which there is an "off" indicator, if the benefit period will have been in effect for a minimum duration of 13 weeks.

DETERMINATION OF "OFF" INDICATOR

The employment security agency of the State of North Dakota has determined under the Act and 20 CFR 618.19(b) (published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on March 23, 1976, at 41 FR 12151, 12157) that the average rate of insured unemployment in the State for the period consisting of the week ending on June 4, 1977, and the immediately preceding twelve weeks, was less than 5.0 percent.

Therefore, I have determined in accordance with the Act and 20 CFR 618.19(b), and as authorized by the Secretary of Labor's Order 4-75, dated April 16, 1975 (published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on April 28, 1975, at 40 FR 18515), that there was a Federal Supplemental Benefit "off" indicator in the State of North Dakota for the week ending June 4, 1977, and that the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in that State terminates on June 25, 1977.

INFORMATION FOR CLAIMANTS

Any individual to whom Federal Supplemental Benefits or Federal-State Extended Benefits were payable in the State (whether or not any payment actually was made), for any portion of the last week of the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period, will have an additional eligibility period beginning immediately following the end of the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period. During the additional eligibility period the individual will be entitled to Federal Supplemental Benefits to the same extent as if the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period continued to be in effect. The additional eligibility period will have a duration of 13 weeks, unless it is terminated sooner by reason of the beginning of a new Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in the State.

Individuals currently filing claims for Federal Supplemental Benefits will receive written notices from the North Dakota Employment Security Bureau of the end of the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period in that State and its effect on their entitlement to Federal Supplemental Benefits. The notice to any individual who will have an additional eligibility period following the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period will include information concerning potential entitlement to Federal Supplemental Benefits during the additional eligibility period.

Although the Federal Supplemental Benefit Period has terminated, an Extended Benefit Period will continue in effect in the State due to the National "on" indicator for the Federal-State Extended Benefit Program, as announced in a notice published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on February 21, 1975, at 40 FR 4722. Therefore, Federal-State Extended Benefits will continue to be payable to eligible individuals in the State unless that program subsequently triggers off in the State.

Persons who wish information about their rights to Federal Supplemental Benefits or Federal-State Extended Benefits in the State of North Dakota should contact the nearest Employment Office of the North Dakota Employment Security Bureau in their locality.

Signed at Washington, D.C., on June 17, 1977.

AMBOY MANUFACTURING CO.

Certification Regarding Eligibility To Apply for Worker Adjustment Assistance

In accordance with Section 223 of the Trade Act of 1974 the Department of Labor herein presents the results of TA-W-1574: investigation regarding certification of eligibility to apply for worker adjustment assistance as prescribed in Section 222 of the Act.

The investigation was initiated on January 17, 1977 in response to a worker petition received on that date which was filed on behalf of workers and former workers producing girls' coats at Amboy Manufacturing Company, Perth Amboy, New Jersey.

The Notice of Investigation was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on January 28, 1977 (42 FR 5447). No public hearing was requested and none was held.

The information upon which the determination was made was obtained principally from officials of Amboy Manufacturing Company, its customers, the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, the National Cotton Council of America, the U.S. Department of Commerce, the U.S. International Trade Commission, industry analysts, and Department files.

In order to make an affirmative determination and issue a certification of eligibility to apply for adjustment assistance, each of the group eligibility requirements of Section 222 of the Trade Act of 1974 must be met:

(1) That a significant number or proportion of the workers in the workers' firm, or an appropriate subdivision thereof, have become totally or partially separated, or are threatened to become totally or partially separated;

(2) That sales or production, or both, of such firm or subdivision have decreased absolutely;

(3) That articles like or directly competitive with those produced by the firm or subdivision are being imported in incerased quantities, either actual or relative to domestic production; and

(4) That such increased imports have contributed importantly to the separations, or threat thereof, and to the decrease in sales or production. The term "contributed importantly" means a cause which is important but not necessarily more important than any other cause.

The investigation has revealed that all of the above criteria have been met.

SIGNIFICANT TOTAL OR PARTIAL SEPARATIONS

Average employment of production workers increased 5 percent in 1975 compared to 1974, and decreased 6 percent in 1976 compared to 1975. Amboy Manufacturing Company closed permanently in December, 1976 when all workers were terminated from employment.

SALES OR PRODUCTION, OR BOTH, HAVE DECREASED ABSOLUTELY

Production ceased in December, 1976 when the plant was permanently closed.

INCREASED IMPORTS

Imports of women's, misses' and children's coats and jackets increased in quantity absolutely, but decreased relative to domestic production in 1973 compared to 1972, decreased both absolutely and relatively in 1974 compared to 1973, then increased both absolutely and relatively in 1975 compared to 1974. The ratio of imports to domestic production increased from 30.9 percent in 1974 to 31.1 percent in 1975. These imports increased absolutely from 1,517 thousand dozen in 1975 to 2,252 thousand dozen in 1976.

CONTRIBUTED IMPORTANTLY

Amboy Manufacturing Company was a contractor only for one manufacturer. Some customers of that manufacturer who were surveyed stated that they had switched purchases from the company to imports. The manufacturer did not contract work offshore.

CONCLUSION

After careful review of the facts obtained in the investigation, I conclude that increases of imports of articles like or directly competitive with girls' coats produced by Amboy Manufacturing Company, Perth Amboy, New Jersey contributed importantly to the total or partial separation of the workers of that firm. In accordance with the provisions of the Act, I make the following certification:

All workers of Amboy Manufacturing Company, Perth Amboy, New Jersey, who became totally or partially separated from employment on or after August 1, 1976 are eligible to apply for adjustment assistance under Title II, Chapter 2 of the Trade Act of 1974.

Signed at Washington, D.C. this 15th day of June 1977.

Director, Office of Management, Administration and Planning.

Investigations Regarding Certifications of Eligibility To Apply for Worker Adjustment Assistance

Petitions have been filed with the Secretary of Labor under Section 221(a) of the Trade Act of 1974 ("the Act") and are identified in the Appendix to this notice. Upon receipt of these petitions, the Director of the Office of Trade Adjustment Assistance, Bureau of International Labor Affairs, has instituted investigations pursuant to Section 221(a) of the Act and 29 CFR 90.12.

The purpose of each of the investigations is to determine whether absolute or relative increases of imports of articles like or directly competitive with articles produced by the workers' firm or an appropriate subdivision thereof have contributed importantly to an absolute decline in sales or production, or both, of such firm or subdivision and to the actual or threatened total or partial separation of a significant number or proportion of the workers of such firm or subdivision.

Petitioners meeting these eligibility requirements will be certified as eligible to apply for adjustment assistance under Title 11, Chapter 2, of the Act in accordance with the provisions of Subpart B of 29 CFR Part 90. The investigations will further relate, as appropriate, to the determination of the date on which total or partial separations began or threatened to begin and the subdivision of the firm involved.

Pursuant to 29 CFR 90.13, the petitioners or any other persons showing a substantial interest in the subject matter of the investigations may request a public hearing, provided such request is filed in writing with the Director, Office of Trade Adjustment Assistance, at the address shown below, not later than July 5, 1977.

Interested persons are invited to submit written comments regarding the subject matter of the investigations to the Director, Office of Trade Adjustment Assistance, at the adddess shown below, not later than July 5, 1977.

The petitions filed in this case are available for inspection at the Office of the Director, Office of Trade Adjustment Assistance, Bureau of International Labor Affairs, U.S. Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20210.
